THE RESULT.

Sufficient returns have been received to settle the question of the next Presidency. Garfield is elected beyond doubt. The Republicans will also, in all probability, have a majority in the next House. A few Democratic gains are reported, but we have but little hope that the Republican gains will be overcome.

SHACKELFORD.

There is no doubt of the election of John W. Shackelford to Congress from this District. A gentleman who left Jacksonville yesterday morning informs us that his majority in Onslow will be about 500. We estimate his majority in the District at 800 to 1200. Three cheers for Shackelford.

There were 30,300 immigrants who landed in New York last month.

The Oxonian is the title of a twelve page monthly devoted literature and education published at Oxford at 50 cents a year in advance. Mr. J. C. Horner is the proprietor, and it is edited by the teachers in the Horner School, but Kainly by Prof. T. H. V. Jasmund so well known to our citizens. The initial number makes an excellent beginning and we hope it will be well sustained. It has the promise of timely help from competent outside writers. It is pleased in its salutatory to thus refer to this

"The Oxonian undertakes to task, follow ing in the footsteps of its able contemporary, the Wilmington STAR, to urge upoc parents the absolute necessity of giving to their children a thorough education; of showing to toweships and counties the high importance of increased facilities for educating the people, and to demand from the Legislature a liberal provision for an efficient supervision of schools."

Among the oldest editors in the State it is a pleasure to be able to bear witness to the ability and effectiveness of our Democratic exchanges in North Carolina during the campaign just ended. We do not know that the papers as a general thing are any better edited now than formerly, but the tact, vigor and industry manifested during the prolonged and exciting canvass have been noticeable. We do not think we have known the Democratic papers to be so efficient and earnest and forceful as they have been in the great struggle of 1880. We could specify some weeklies that have been particularly strong and useful, but it is better perhaps to make no invidious destinctions.

the Riccion Yesterday. More interest was manifested in this city yesterday than at any previous election for many years. In the First Ward, from the moment the polis were opened until they closed, there was a perfect jam. More especially was this the case in the lower division of that ward, which had for its voting place a building on the corner of Seventh and Red Cross streets. Here the crowding to get to the aper ure where the tickets were taken was fearful. The colored people poll a large vote here, and it was amusing to witness the expedients resorted to by them, as by some of the white voters, to get to the coveted spot. Being more supple, they as a rule, succeeded where the whites would fail, and when an energetic and persevering voter would finally succeed in wriggling and pushing and jamming his way through the surging mass of hu-mahity, and had cast his ballot, the the shed until they had safely landed on mass to a safe position on the outskirts of the swaying, panting multitude. This state of affairs was owing in a great measure to the largely increased vote in this ward, and to the fact that the multiplicity of tickets required so much more time on the part of the poll-holders in taking and recording the votes, in doing which, on account of there being so many tickets and nine ballot boxes, they were compelled to exercise more than usual care. When the sun went down quite a number in this ward, both white and colored, had not
