The opinion begins to prevail in Washington that there will be no xtra session.

Speaker Randall is of the opinion that the approaching session will be only "moderately lively."

A negro boy, aged 9 years, was killed the other day in New York by a tail from a velocipede. Look out, "young 'ans."

l'resident-elect Garfield has gone home. The office scekers came near killing him with their attentions in Washington.

Massachusetts has a great horror. A Mrs. Littlefield procured morphine, with which she poisoned her husband and child, and then shot herself dead with a revolver.

It only cost $50,000 to gather Mr. B yeatt's crop for him with the use of bayonets. Grant bulldozed two States and throttled two Legislatures at less cost than that.

The Concord post office has been graded higher and it is now worth $1,000. Wade Harris might have got that crumb, but alas ! the Democratic roosters were not allowed to John Sherman will try to get Congress to change the weight of the silver dollar from 4121 grains to 450 grains. John is still talking about "honest currency." John will be hardly gratified.

Mr. A. M. Keiley, Chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, of Virginia, has issued a long address to the voters of that State. It takes ground in favor of the final readjustment of the public debt of the State.

The New York Tribune is fighting the appointment of Levi P. Morton, of New York State, for the office of Secretary of the Treasury under Garfield. This is a good sign. Probably Morton is the man. He must

What nonsense to talk about the Democratic party being sectional, in view of the recent vote. What nonsense to talk about its dying when it gave a million and a quarter more votes in the North than in the South, and had a total of nearly four and a half millions.

"Jotton goods are fairly active in the first bands, and prices remain firm, with an up-ward tendency. Fruit of the Loom bleached shirtings are advanced balf cent (+). Prints are sluggish, but steady. Men's wear woolens are in irregular demand, but spring cassimeres are rather more active. Foreign goods are quiet."

WILMINGTON, N. C., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1880.

We know that gentleman who like to smoke at intervals during a theatrical performance will not violate good taste and true politeness by aunoying the ladies unless from inconsiderateness. Latterly there has been complaint. To abate the infliction all that is necessary is to mention it. The smoking is done in the entry instead of the smoking-room, and when the doors are open that lead into the theatre the smoke enters, to the distress of ladies to whom it is offensive.

Some of the Philadelphia Radical papers evidently look with favor on the proposition to elect Grant to the U. S. Senate in place of Senator Wallace, Democrat, whose term expires March 4th, 1881. There is no legal bar to such a course. Grant is a sort of wandering mendicant, and he can squat down anywhere and call it home. Well, he is probably no worse than old Simon Cameron, and Pennsylvania stood him for a infantile city of many hills, bounded by

The Raleigh News-Observer pubishes Gov. Jarvis's letter of instructions to Mr. F. M. Simmons, who was the State proxy in the late meeting held to consider the lease of the A. & N. C. Railroad. We will publish it in our next, that the Governor may be heard and our readers may form their own opinions. Whilst differing from the Governor sometimes we will not intentionally misrepresent him or do him an injustine.

Salvini first appeared in Philadelphia as Othello. His success was great and the impression "immense." The Times's critic says:

"No actor ever has trod our stage who so combined the utmost refinement of detail, in voice, face, attitude and gesture, with the grand and broad effects of classic art, and one not only feels that he has never seen Othello acted before, but really questions whether he has ever before seen

The postal car was buried in the mud. Of the thirty passengers on board, none were hurt. The track was in bad condition, owing to the

David Alexander, of Tyrell, planted a gallon of rice on a quarter of an acre this past season, and gathered and measured up 20 bushels of rough rice. - Warrenton Gazette : Mr. Walter Parker, who has recently returned from a business trip to Nash and Edgecombe, tells us of good crops and bright prospects for the farmer. Turner Battle, Esq., has picked six hundred bales of cotton from as many acres. Mr Elias Carr made seventeen bags to the horse. A Mr. Avent of Nash has picked twenty-two bags to the horse, and will get more. Mr. Parker says that this is no exaggeration, and the figures are accurate. - Morganton Blade: Mr. Worth, the very clever superintendent of the fish

- Lumberton Robesonian: Owing to the recent high prices for timber, naval stores, tar, etc., there seems to be a great demand for labor just now, and it is very difficult to control in this and surrounding vicinities. -G. R. Townsend, colored, left for Central Tennessee Medical College last week to attend medical lectures. Robeson county is ahead. —We learn that the still belonging to Mr. Woodberry Lennon, at Blandenboro, was burned last Thursday night and his store robbed the previous night. —A son of Mr. Arp, of Pates, had one of his hands badly torn by being caught in Mr. O. S. Hayes' gin about two weeks ago. — Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Kelly, of Plummersville, lost both of their children last week with membranous croup.

-A writer in the New York Free. man's Journal says of Asheville: "Two hundred and seventy-five miles from Raleigh is growing a veritable second Chicago (to the State of North Carolina). If there ever existed a Paradise on earth, so far as beauty, scenery, health, fine water and such requirements are needed to make one, Asheville is the place. Situated on the French Broad and Swannanoa rivers, surmounted by blue-capped and black mountains, the lovely valleys as well as mountains, Asheville, to my mind's eye, is the loveliest of America's charming villas. Shelley would have gone into ecstacy over Asheville, could he have viewed the grand scenery which surrounds her, surpassing even the most romantic views in snow-capped Swit-

- Tarboro Southerner: On Monday morning three Mormon preachers reached Tarboro and put up at the Bryan House. They are Henry Jolly, leading elder, and J. Clark and J. Johnson, juniors. Elder Jolly left Edgecome when but two years of age. One of his wives (we don't know which one) is related to Mrs. Belcher, of this county. He is an old man with 68 grand children, we learn. We do not know, however, how many women produced them. They are quite reticent, will not talk of their religion, but affirm they want emigrants for their "beautiful" country. They have made no announcements to preach yet. — Mr. Wm. Hodges, of this county, raised this year 200 bales of cotton on 190 acres of land, using mostly home manure. He stands forth the champion on so large a scale. — A negro named Red Batts killed another named Ed Robbins last week in Nash. Whiskey fight.

- Monroe Enquirer: We were shown by Mr. J. C. Bates, a few days ago, a nice bar of gold which was taken from the Washington mine, now being operated by Mr. Bates. The bar referred to was the result of only a few days work, and was worth some three hundred dollars. -Mr. and Mrs. William Massy, of Matthews, with two small children, were returning from a visit to relatives in South Carolina, and when some seven miles south of this place Mr. Massy got out of the buggy to walk, being very cold. Shortly afterward the horse became frightened and started to run. Mr. Massy caught the bridle-rein, but this broke and he fell, the buggy passing over him. After running for something near a mile Mrs. Massy, who was holding the lines, was thrown out and the horse was now free from any restraint, and the children were alone in the buggy. Fortunately for them they crawled under one of the seats and the horse kept the road. They were thus saved from harm. After running some three miles the horsewas stoppeed by Mr. Amos Helms. No one was seriously hurt except Mrs. Massy, who received by her fall a severe cut over her left eye and an injured ankle. THE CITY

The following are the Indications for the South Atlantic States to-day: Stationary or higher barometer and temperature, westerly winds, partly cloudy weather, with occasional rain.

Movements in Cotton.

The receipts of cotton at this port for the month of November, 1880, foot up 30,430 bales, as against 18,471 bales during the same month in 1879, showing the handsome increase in favor of 1880 of 11,959 bales.

The receipts since the commencement of the cotton year to date foot up 74,559 bales,

The Philomatean Society.

With the commencement of the winter months begin a great variety of amusements which engross the time and attention of the young. In this category there are few diversions better calculated to prove of material and lasting benefit than those having their source in the Philomathean Literary Society. This important organization had its origin in March, 1872. A few boys, since grown into vigorous manbood, met in the basement of a certain residence in the city and started the Society upon its mission, and, with an ardor seldom evinced by the youth of our day, they have kept i meantime a great many have been connected with it, but, by change of circumstances, have been compelled to abandon their membership, leaving only a few to maintain and perpetuate it. From year to year they have had a great many disadvantages to contend with, but have struggled bravely on, and to-day can boast of a society continued in existence longer than any similar organization ever attempted in Wilmington. Lawyers, doctors, ministers and business men have gone out from the society benefited and encouraged in their enterance upon the busy walks of life. Historical subjects are discussed, which tend to refreshen the memories of students in regard to matters of vital in terest, while subjects of national importance and those immediately connected with our own State, are brought to their attention and fastened upon their minds. Political subjects, in their general bearing upon the world at large, are entered into, as well as subjects of minor importance that do not require much research and investigation, yet tend to arouse the thinking and reasoning faculties. The declamatory exercises are in the main very improving, particularly because the speaker is allowed to consult his own judgment in the style, or subject matter of his oratory, instead of being compelled to conform to some rule or mode of speaking, as is the case in schools. These are some of the advantages the society offers, and as this institution has outlived any of its predecessors, it would hardly sperk well for the young men of the community to let it expire now. Rather let the interest in it be redoubled

The following order was made on Tuesday evening and not included in our report: "It appearing upon the record that the offence, if any was committed, was committed in the county of Columbus, it is ordered by the Court that the papers in the case of the State vs. Mary Brown, charged with bigamy, be sent to the Clerk of the Superior Court of Columbus county, to be furnished to the Solicitor of that Judicial District for his action, and the defendant is recognized in the sum of $25 for her appearance at the next term of said Columbus Court." The case of C. H. Grant, on motion for removal, and W. H. Goodman, in which there was a mistrial, will be taken up toto-day.

Peanute Suffering from Wet Weather.

We learn that in some instances planters in this vicinity have lost heavily in the article of peanuts, in consequence of the damp and rainy weather which has prevailed almost incessantly for the past two or three weeks. Those who had stacked their peanuts before the wet weather set in suffered no inconvenience, but not a few had them on the ground waiting to be dried sufficiently to be stacked, in which position a large proportion of the best on the vines have rotted. Mr. W. P. Pope and others in his section have suffered heavy loss in this way.

Inquest. An inquest was held by Coroner Hewlett, yesterday morning, over the body of Isabella Gause, the colored woman whose sudden death, while sitting in a chair, was mentioned in our last, the remains having in the meantime been removed to the residence of the deceased, on Brunswick, between Fifth and Sixth streets. The verdict of the jury was to the effect that the woman came to her death from some natural cause to the munknown, but supposed to be heart disease. Deceased was about 70 or 80 years of age.

Fire broke out on board of one of the foreign vessels lying at the upper compres wharves late last evening, but the flames were fortunately extinguished before doing any damage of moment. The alarm was sent through the telephone to the City Hall but was immediately afterwards countermanded, hence it did not become general.

The universal opinion is, another good woman has been gathered unto her Father in heaven. I first had the pleasure and honor of forming her acquaintance when led to the marriage altar by the object and idel of her youthful leve. She was one of the most beautiful and accomplished daughters of the most beautiful and accomplished daugnters of her native county; a lady whose charms of per-son and brilliancy of intellect were equaled only by her ewn amiability of disposition and nobility of soul, and who as a wife proved herself the choicest soul, and who as a wife proved nerself the choicest blessing God ever vouchsafed to man. "In hope she was his bright incentive; in the hour of triumph she was his joy; in prosperity his pride, in adversity his solace, in pain and angulah his support, in all his constant companion, his guardian angel, his heaven sent friend." When first I met them hand to hand with their young hearts elete with joy and in hand, with their young hearts elate with joy and hope, they were radiant with sapproving smiles of angels looking down upon them. When I saw them last the still loving husband was bending in anguish over the cold, pale form of the wife, who had devoted her love and her life to him. She was true in all the relations of life. Her sweetness and amiability were beautifully illustrated in the ten-der solicitude she always manifested for her hus-band and children. Her affection for them sprang from a deep and pure heart. The last faint tremfrom a deep and pure heart. The last faint trembling accents ere her spirit took its flight were a prayer for their protection. She has gone from among us. We desire to honor her. Can we better accomplish this desire than by striving to imitate her high example, to the end that the world shall not be a loser by her departure? A noble determination to emulate her character is the best conceivable method of perpetuating the memory of her we so reverently cherish. Farewell, my friend.
