The liquor dealers of Richmond, Va., who are Roman Catholics, held a meeting on Monday night. Bishop Keene made a strong speech against liquor trafic on the Lord's Day. Res. marines against it were adopted and a medge to that effect was signed by more than thirty dealers in that which doth inebriate and fails to enrich the drinker.

The new army appropriation bill calls for $30,000,000. This is not large enough for some people, so they are for increasing the size of the army so it can spend more money. If 20,000 men cost $30,000,000, the probability is that 50,000 would cost $75,000,000, as much as a good Democratic President before "the late unpleasantness" required to run the entire machine.

The London Globe waxes wroth over the Calkins resolution in the United States House of Representatives as to Ireland. It says that such an indictment as that contained in the resolution of the policy of England towards Ireland, if laid before the ministers of a free country, by a foreign power, would be regarded as an intolerable act of interference and probably be resented as an

We received days ago No. 1 Monthly Bulletin of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. We propose to copy a few paragraphs frem this instructive issue hereafter. The new Commissioner, Mr. Mc-Gehee, is a gentleman of real ability and is a practical farmer as well as a man of marked culture. His first paper on the relations of the Agri cultural Bureau to the people is an instructive and timely discussion.

The idea of Gov. Holden writing a poem "superior to anything by Tennyson" is rich. Presently we may hear of some Yankee distancing Shakespeare, or Milton being surpassed by Walt Whitman or Dr. Holmes. Criticism as a science is far advanced in the South, and specially in North Carolina. Edgar Poe, an obscure fellow, supposed to have some genius until the New York Herald denied it, some thirty odd years ago was so impressed with the unique and exquisite genius of the Laureate that he said he was not sure that he was not the greatest poet that God ever made. Poe would not have said that if he had read Holden's poem. Poe died too early. Happy Christmas, anyhow!

Magistrate's Court.

The case of Fanny Gore, charged with the larceny of money and a watch belonging to one Joe Voss, colored, a returned turpentine hand from Georgia, came up before Justice Millis yesterday morning. when the evidence went to show that Voss entered Fanny's house and went to sleep, being under the influence of liquor, and that his money and watch were taken from his person by the accused, in the presence of two or three witnesses, and given into the possession of a third party for safekeeping and as there was really no evidence to show (what might be reasonably presumed) that there was any intention to hold on to the valuables, the defendant was discharged.

Christmas Cantata. All who would like to pass an evening pleasantly should make it convenient to attend at Tileston Upper Room this evening and witness the rendition, by over fifty pupils of Tileston Normal School, of the heautiful Christmas Cantata entitled "Santa Claus." The admission will only be 25 cents, and we are sure that none will regret the small outlay when they have seen the attractive and amusing performance. Give the young folks a big house.

Little Thieves. Two or three small colored boys were caught Tuesday evening in the act of filling bags with potatoes from a box in front of one of the stores on Front street, but they effected their escape before any effort could be made to arrest them. Merchants would do well to have a strict watch kept upon the boxes and barrels about their doors, where they contain anything that can be readily appropriated.

Accident on the Carolina Central Rallway.

Intelligence reached here yesterday of quite a serious accident on the Western Division of the Carolina Central Railway, and as usual in such cases, the first reports were greatly exaggerated, particularly with reference to the conductor, a son of Capt, V. Q. Johnson, the superintendent. The accident happened to the accommodation train at what is known as the Indian Creek trestle, four miles beyond Lincolnton. There were but six or seven passengers on the train-which consisted of only one passenger, a mail and a freight car-the passengers being bound for Charlotte. The train broke loose from the engine and ran into the trestle, breaking it down and precipitating the cars over it. The cars caught fire and the mail agent, a Mr. Bloom, said to be a brother of Mr. H. H. Bloom, of this city, together with a colored brakeman, perished in the flames. The other brakeman was taken out of the train dead. The conductor, Mr. Harry Johnson, was only slightly injured. Two or three of the passengers, who were not seriously hurt, together with the conductor, were carried to Lincolaton,

Superintendent Johnson left this city for the scene of the accident on a special train, being under the impression at the time that his son was killed, but at Lumberton a telegram intercepted him with the gratifying information that the young man was only

A press dispatch, dated at Charlotte, and received at 11 o'clock last night, gives the following particulars of the disaster:

"A fearful accident occurred on the Carolina Central Railroad, about three miles beyond Lincolnton, at 4 o'clock this evening. The entire passenger train, except the engine, which passed over safely, went through a trestle, which at this spot is fifty feet high. Full particulars cannot be learned yet, but it is definitely known that Mail Agent Daniel Bloom and a passenger by the name of Joseph W. Goodson were disabled by the accident and subsequently burned up by the flames, which were communicated, it is supposed, from a coal stove used on the train to the shattered and splintered cars, which were piled one upon another in the chasm. Capt. Harvey Johnston, the conductor, escaped with slight injuries. There were very few persons on the train and it is not known that any one alse was killed."

THE MENDELSOHN QUINTETTE CLUB

The celebrated Quintette Club of Boston was greeted last night by a large and appreciative audience. The entertainment was simply delightful, and the gratification of the audience was manifested constantly by well directed and well deserved applause. To write intelligent musical criticism you must be a musician. We regret. therefore, our utter inability to do justice to the occasion, and must content ourselves with an expression of admiration in general and unsatisfactory terms. Whilst unable to enter into minute technical criticism we are at least able to express warmly our deep gratification, and to thank our gracious and beneficent Maker that He has endowed us with capabilities that cause us to be moved by "a concord of sweet sounds," and to give a responsible echo to soul-touching harmonies.

We must first pay our respects to Miss Marie Nellini, who is all that the bills claimed for her-"a distinguished vocalist." She is not a great singer, but she is a most charming one. She is a very careful singer too, and she does not venture beyond the compass of her powers. Her scale is not very high, and she is too well trained-too conscious of her precise gifts to attempt to ascend to the highest heaven of vocalization. What she sings is admirable. Her voice is wonderfully sweet and liquid and bird-like. She rendered with exquisite art the two pieces assigned her, "Proch's Air and Variations," and Gottschalk's "Oh, loving heart, trust on." It has been a long time since we heard anything so absolutely fine as the last, although the first would probably have arrested the attention of a professional singer or critic more than the other. She was loudly, vociferously, importunately encored after both songs, and she was obliging enough to respond. She sang "Robin Adair" with a perfection that would rival the best of prima donnas, and we are not extravagant in this, as we think. It was delicious. Her last song was the 'Last Rose of Summer," and it was charmingly sweet and tender. Wilmington will long remember this gifted vocalist.

The music of the Quintette Club was all that could have been expected. The members of this Club are very accomplished performers, and the harmony was perfect, showing the most thorough practice and a consummate mastery of the respective instruments. Mr. Isidor Schnitzler gave a splendid specimen of his skill on the violin in the "Fantaisie on Gipsey Airs' by Sarasate. He was loudly applauded. Mr. Schade is the most perfect master of the flute we remember to have heard. Tershack's "Concerto for Flute" played with admirable power and gave us new revelations of the capability of that sweet instrument. Mr. Ryan's "Romance for Clarinette" was well received by the audience and showed him to be a most skilful performer. We never thought that much music could be evoked from the violoncello, but Mr. Giese convinced us that it was a very tuneful instrument and with great possibilities. He astonished us, forced to give a second selection. The entertainment was, we repeat, most delightful, and those who did not attend missed a very rare treat. The Club appeared under the auspices of the Wilmington Library Association. We take leave to add that Miss Nellini could draw a fine audience, we doubt not, if she were the only attrac-

We cannot look upon it other than a flagrant violation of the law of the land, as well as open insult to the Gentile race, and as fastening a stigma upon the otherwise fair fame of our city, which time cannot efface.
