The Philadelphia Press, Rep., says the Southern Democratic papers are more favorably disposed to the Burnside Educational bill than the Northern press is. The South will get some benefit, and that explains probably the course of the papers in the respective sections.

Acritic in the last British Quarterly Review, in a paper on Tennyson, by no means remarkable for sympathy or appreciation, closes his elaborate discussion with the following:

It is singular that so few Democratic papers should be published where there are 76,000 voters, and that where there are so many Republican papers there should be still such a strong minority.

Little Ugene Hale is almost certain to be elected from Maine to the U. S. Senate in place of old Hannibal Hamlin who has been Senator so long the mind of man runneth not back to the contrary. Little Ugene is a big man in the "Pine Tree State." One thing must be put down to Maine's credit: it is the only State that reports no iliterates of school age. But is it a fact that the Maine people are any wiser or better than their fellows?

-New Berne Nut Shell: We learn from parties who arrived here on yesterday's train that a shooting affair took place in Greensboro on Thursday, which probably resulted in the death of Dr. S. P. Mull. Dr. Mull was one of the proprietors of a livery stable in Greensboro, and on the day mentioned he called on Robert A. Ford, Esq., a young law student of the place, with a bill for horse hire, which Mr. Ford claimed had been settled. The two men had some words, when Dr. Mull drew from his clothing a cowhide and threatened to use it on Mr. Ford. Mr. Ford in his turn drew a pistol, when Dr. Mull threw away his cowhide and advanced on Mr. Ford with a dirk, inflicting a wound on the side of his face. Mr. Ford then discharged three chambers of his pistol at his assailant, each ball taking effect in Dr. Mull's breast. Mayor's Court. Benjamin Robinson, colored, was arraigned before Mayor Fishblate, yesterday morning, on the charge of stealing a toy safe, a toy refrigerator, and some other smaller articles from Messrs. Brown & Roddick's notion store, on the corner of Second and Market streets, on Friday evening, about 7 o'clock. The evidence was to the effect that he was caught going out of the store with the articles under his coat, and the clerk, upon being questioned, denied having sold them to him. Mr. Roddick followed him to a shop on Second street, where he had deposited the goods alleged to have been stolen, and took Robinson back to the store, when he offered to pay for them, but was told it was too late, and he was soon afterwards handed over to a policeman and taken to the guard house. At the close of the examination the defendant was ordered to give a bond in the sum of $50 for his appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court, in default of which he was committed to jail.

Peter Jones, a white tramp, and an old offender, was arraigned for drunkenness, but was let off on the promise of leaving the city instanter.

Christmas.

Christmas Day was observed in this city much in the usual manner. It was a very disagreeable and gloomy day, especially the latter part of it, and very few people, comparatively speaking, ventured out after dinner. There was more drunkenness on the streets than we remember to have seen for many years, though fortunately it was not of the bad natured, demonstrative sort, and very little disturbance occurred as consequence. The guard house was pretty full of those queer specimens of humanity who find enjoyment in beclouding their brains and befuddling their intellects on such occasions by a too full indulgence in intoxicating liquors, but Sunday morning some ten or twelve, whose excesses did not lead them into any serious violations of the city ordinances, were turned loose with an admonition to do so no more.

An Amusing Incident. The most humorous incident connected with the Christmas holidays that has yet come to our knowledge is that of a white man, who got so bewildered Saturday evening that he mistook Oakdale Cemetery for the railroad depot, where he was to take a train. When he found himself surrounded by the white and solemn tombstones instead of puffing engines, comfortable cars and bustling hackmen, express-men, etc., he arrived at the realization of the grave predicament into which his numerous Christmas potations had led him, and made up his mind to seek more congenial quarters with the greatest possible dispatch. By this time, however, owing to his surroundings, and the fright which had naturally seized upon him, his bewilderment became redoubled, and in his frantic efforts to find an outlet he burst the large arched gateway at the entrance almost from its fastenings, badly shivering and splintering some of the wood-work of which it is composed. Finding it impossi ble to effect an exit here he next turned his attention to the fence on the south side of the enclosure, through which he finally succeeded in making his escape by tearing
