A young colored female, about twenty years of age, was brought to this city yesterday morning, by Special Deputy Thos. Payne, under a commitment from Justice R. K. Bryan, charged with the murder of of her own child. It seems that Payne found the body in a pond Monday morning, and reported the circumstance to Justice Bryan, at his residence at Scott's Hill, when, suspicion pointing to Abbey Howard, she was arrested as the inhuman mother who had committed the foul deed. She claims, we understand, that after the birth of the child, which was an illegitimate one, she was turned out of doors by the parties with whom she was liging, and that the little one died from exposure in consequence, when she threw the body into the pond. She will be held in the county jail in this city to await a further examination.

"To the contrary Just the Reverse." Under the head of "Mecklenburg Trips New Hanover," the Charlotte Observer a few days since stated that the State tax for that county would foot up, this year $17,218.37, and that the Sheriff claimed this would give Mecklenburg the second place among the tax-paying counties. In other words, that whereas last year it stood Wake, New Hanover, Meckienburg-this year it would stand Wake, Mccklenburg, New Hanover. We are sorry to spoil this little arrangement, but the result shows tha General Manning, our Sheriff, pays into the State Treasury this year $18,814.64, or $1,601.27 more than Mecklenburg.

At a meeting of the Bishops and Clergy present at the funeral of the Right Rev. Thomas Atkinson, D. D., LL. D., late Bishop of North Carolina, held at the Rectory of St. James' parish, Wilmington, North Carolina, January 7th, 1881, the following minute was adopted:

We, the Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese of North Carolina, present at the funeral of our late Father in God, the Rt. Rev. Thomas Atkinson, D. D., LL. D., being desirous to give expression-to our sense of the severity of the loss we have sustained, do adopt the following minute,

While recognizing most fully and heartily the wisdom and goodness of God in all things, and as heartily in our bereavements as in the additions to our earthly joys; and while accepting, therefore, even our sorrows at His All Merciful Hand as being for the hest, yet we feel that we should not be true to the human sensibilities and affections by which the Great Father of All would bind His family on earth in one as brethren, did we not keenly feel and deeply mourn the loss of one so endeared to'us as was our late beloved Bishep.

We know that no man is necessary to God or to the work of His kingdom, yet we trust we may, without inconsistency, feel that in the removal of such a leader a chasm has been created in the actual life and movement of the Church which will be severely felt, not only by ourselves, but by many others. In our late Bishop we recognise one of God's great mercies to us, in that for more than a quarter of a century He has given us in him such a Teacher of Truth, such a Defender of the Faith, such a Preacher of Righteousness, such a Chief Pastor of the Flock, and such an example of virtue and godly living. We desire affectionately to bear witness to his great virtues and abilities; to his range of knowledge; to his acquirements as a theologian; to his accuracy and depth of thought and breadth of view; to his power to asimilate and reproduce in instructive form the result of his varied reading; to his force and logical power and persuasive watchfulness as to public events and the greater issues of the day.

We recall with filial pleasure his sensibility as a man to all that was honorable, noble and becoming; his refined and gentle bearing as a gentleman; his unvarying affability and cordiality of manners by which the approach of the most humble was made ever easy; his sympathetic ature, entering so sincerely and heartily into the joys and serrows of those about him; his large hearted and unstinted liberality; his public spirit, alive to all that concerned society; the justice and impartiality and withal the tenderness and courtesy which he exercised toward those under his authority; his singular simplicity of life and manners; his genuine humility; his self-control and self-sacrifice; his moderation as to all the more exciting questions of the day, yet his zeal for all that was worthy of it; his earnestness as a Christian, his devout affections and his reverent and simple
