We learn from the Richmond Nosts that the event of the season was the appearance of Miss Mary Anderson as Parthenia. The audi ente was one of the largest and most brilliant ever seed in Richmond, and a more delighted or demonstrative one was never seen there. The State says she has become "artistlike and graceful, ranking with the successful actors of any era in the history of the dramatic profession." And yet she will not come to Wilmington. Sorry.

The publication of the new revi sion of the New Testament may be delayed for a long time-for months or even for a year. It seems there is an old English law which prevents the publication of any revision unless it has the approval of the ecclesiastical court commission, which the revision committee did know of until they were ready to go to press. They will, therefore, have to submit their work for approval, which is necessarily of slow process. Let them send the sheets to the United States-the land of the free-and there will be no delay from any such antiquated and unnecessary law.

Wake county ought to be happy. It has a member who is always hunting demagoguery and is successful. He has introduced any number of absurd bills, and all to consume time or make what he thinks is a popular record. His latest is to introduce a joint resolution to pardon Jeff Davis and Bill Holden. The Legislature can hardly pardon the latter, and it will do a big business when it pardons the ex-President of the late Confederacy. Of gourse the ruse is penstrated easily. A trick, that is all-

House bill -, to establish and organize the county of Durham. The bill was upon its third reading. I had been defeated upon its second reading, and the motion to reconsider had been laid on the table.

Mr. King moved to reconsider the vote by which the reconsideration was tabled, which motion the chair held to be competent according to Mr. Jefferson's Manual.

The bill passed its third readingvens 25, nave 15.

The motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The special order was the consideration of Senate bill 547, in relation to the construction bonds of the North Carolina railroad. This bill proposes to continue the commission to adjust the construction bonds of the North Carolina railroad by the issuance of new bonds, at a rate of interest not to exceed four per cent., in renewal of the old bonds. A substitute was reported by the committee repealing the law of 1879 authorizing the commission, which was adopted. The bill passed its second reading. On its third reading Mr. Finger offered a substitute proposing to continue the commission for the purpose of exchanging the State stock for the bonds at par, which was ordered to be printed and made the special order for Wednesday at 11 o'clock.

was Senate bill to regulate the sale of liquors in this State.

Mr. Bowman thought the question resolved itself into one item, viz : whether liquor dealing redounded to the benefit of the State and the citizens thereof, and he was willing to risk the success of the bill on that proposition.

Mr. Glenn, of Stokes, sent forward several amendments, and stated that though his amendments might be voted down, he would vote for the bill at its final passage, although in doing so he signed his own political doom, as his constituents were opposed to anything approaching prohibition.

Mr. Day approved of the bill in all its provisions. It was a clearly cut and defined issue between the brutal part of man and the women and children of the State, and in such an issae he was, regardless of consequences, on the side of his mother, his sister and his wife. This is the first step in the right direction, and he supported it with all his soul and all his heart.

Mr. White thought the bill was not exactly what was wanted, but as the State was not in a condition to receive an absolute prohibitory law, he would willingly and heartily vote for the bill. Mr. Manning believed that this legislation was in the right direction, and would do much good, though not so much as its particular friends thought. A Disorderly Character. John Williams, colored, who on several occasions has tried to pass himself off as a "dummy," and who has proven quite an annoyance to a good many of our citizens by his bad behavior on the streets, was arrested yesterday, by Officers Moore and Watkins, for loud and boisterous cursing and swearing on a public thoroughfare in the neighborhood of Sixth and Walnut streets. He was lodged in the guard house to await his trial this morning.

Madame Carreno is a brilliant pianist, and readered the most difficult music in the rarest, most sympathetic and superb style imaginable. Her efforts won the warmest applause of a most cultivated auditory, who were enthusiastic in their laudations of the rapidity of her fingering, the delicacy of touch, and in short, of the entire and admirable command she displayed over the instrument, from which she produced so delicious a concourse of sweet sounds. Signor Tagliapietra appeared only in the act from the Opera of Il Trovatore, and delighted every one with his magnificent baritone voice, as well as with his splendid acting. He is indeed a great artist, and the other members of the company, good as they are, suffer by comparison. Misses Underhill and Roderick, and Mr. Stantini, each have exceptionally fine voices, and their singing was heartily approved and encored as it deserved.

The entire affair was successful and greatly enjoyable throughout, and we can assure the company that at a more opportune season their performance would be patronized most liberally by our theatre goers, if they can make it convenient to again visit us.

The "Poor Man's Bill." This is what some of our people have christened the bill lately introduced in the Senate by Mr. Scott, from this county, and alleged to be for the protection of farmers and fishermen. The bill had already passed its several readings in the Senate, and was thought to be hanging fire in the House, but yesterday a letter received from a prominent citizen of Wilmington, now in Raleigh, to the effect that the bill passed the House Monday night, and stating that it was not generally understood by our citizens: that it is not of such a sweeping character as had been imagined; that it is not intended to interfere in the least with the sanitary regulations of the city, and that its provisions are of such a character as to commend it to our business men, and especially to poor people. Another telegram was received by Mayor Fishblate to the effect that the bill in question was rushed through the House Monday night with a slight amendment, which would take it back to the Senate for con-

There seemed to be no doubt, however, of its final passage. The news that the bill had passed the House caused no little excitement among our people generally, and especially in market circles, and comments one way or the other were to be heard on every side.

At last accounts the provisions of the bill were in substance to the effect that the Board of Aldermen shall not tax or prohibit by ordinance, or otherwise interfere with, the free sale of fresh meats, fresh fish, oysters, poultry, vegetables or other farm products, within the corporate limits of the city, provided that nothing contained in the bill should interfere with the sanitary regulations of the same. What the amendment in the House amounts to we have not heard.

Death in the Station House-Inquest. A sick colored man, who gave his name as Johnson, and said he came in on the Fayetteville boat, was picked up on the street by a policeman, early yesterday morning, and taken to the station house, where he was made as comfortable as possible. He appeared to be very ill, and said he was suffering from heart disease. Dr. Walker, the city physician, visited him and prescribed some medicine, which appeared to give him considerable relief, but later in the day he commenced growing worse, and about half-past 4 o'clock death ensued.

Deceased appeared to be about 40 years old, with a dark brown complexion, and has two fingers missing from his right hand. He said he was born and raised in Wilmington, and left here to go to Fayetteville about Christmas. He was quite a respectable looking colored man, and had a satchel and watch. Coroner Hewlett was notified, and held an inquest over the body yesterday evening, the jury returning a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death from natural causes.

"The largest house of the season greeted Billy Arlington's grand minstrel organization. It was grand, comprising all good features that a first-class minstrel company should, without any of its stale or vulgar jokes or worn-out plays. There was a large attendance of the fair sex, and they were favored with a refined but novel and amusing entertainment. Billy Arlington is always a host in himself. The orchestra and vocalists were extra fine, which, with six very funny end men, excellent song and dance artists, new jokes and new acts, make up a pleasing performance which is certain to give entire satisfaction to the most critical of minstrel audiences. Attempted Incenderram.

An incendiary attempt was made Monday night upon the building just north of the new market. A wad of paper saturated with kerosene oil was forced in under the door and fire set to it, but the flames for some reason went out. All the evidences of the attempted incendiarism were to be found on the spot yesterday morning, including a bottle partly filled with kerosene, which was left behind.
