The Morning Star. BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C., FRIDAY MORNING, April 8, 1881.

WHAT A NORTH CAROLINA LAWYER SAID.

The New York Tribune has been interviewing a leading lawyer of Salisbury, North Carolina. According to this "leading lawyer" the ablest Judge North Carolina had was Tourgee...

nately in the North it is not generally known that brought about the creation of such a mysterious, midnight, dark-lantern combination. That part is suppressed, and the ordinary Northern mind, simply credits it all to the natural depravity and blood-thirstiness of the ordinary Southern. The North believes that thousands of men organized without cause and went to killing and burning and laying just from an insatiable deviltry and mania.

Correctly understood we imagine that the person referred to has said no more than any intelligent gentleman in the State would say. He accuses Tourgee of the very thing that the Star and dozens of papers have accused him of—that he takes a few real or imaginary personages and makes them representatives of a whole people.

Since the above was prepared the Raleigh News-Observer is to hand with an editorial upon J. M. McCorkle, a well known Radical lawyer, who was the person interviewed. The Americans gave no name, but left us to suppose that he was a Democrat. The opinion of Mr. McCorkle is of no special value because of his party affiliation.

The Virginia Headwaters who are Democrats are beginning to take position as to the Mahone betrayal, and to declare their purpose to stand by the old Democratic flag. They cannot follow Mahone into the Radical camp. Several leaders have spoken out already, and others will follow soon.

Coaching began to realize that in his war upon Garfield he can do nothing without the help of the Southern Democrats. He cannot command enough of his own party to defeat the President's nomination if the Democrats of the South vote to confirm them.

only the contempt of Southern people. Kentucky has been addicted all ways to scenes of violence. Vandalisms are common now. In the beginning it was known as "the dark and bloody ground," and it is bent on keeping up its old reputation for feuds and violence.

The people of Tennessee, through their Legislature, have taken the wise step of settling the State debt at par and 3 per cent. interest. This is vastly better than repudiating any part of it.

Mahone is gravitating to his proper level. The "dusky dame" of "old Virginia" has been showing upon him their floral favors. It came over him like the sweet South breathing not from a bank of violets, but from where the odor and the mark had been reposing. It was not exactly out-of-rose either.

OUR TABLE. The Physical Basis of Life; with Other Essays, by Prof. T. H. Huxley. No. 31 of the Humboldt Library of Science. Price 15 cents. J. F. Rogers & Co., publishers, 148 Fourth avenue, New York.

A Fair Barbarian, by Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of That Lass o' Lowrie's. James R. Osgood & Co., Boston. This is a charming story, short, fresh, sparkling, graceful, full of dash and point.

It was argued in the Republican Senatorial caucus that the issue whether or not the Republicans of the Senate will support the movement in Virginia "for a free ballot and a fair count" has been joined by the nomination of Mr. Riddlesberger.

Men like Mr. Lamar, who has unquestioned courage and intellectual ability, would do well to leave to the adventurers and the hacks of their party the apology of the past, and to turn their attention to the real lesson of the present situation.

Col. J. M. McCorkle, Raleigh News-Observer. In the New York Tribune we find an alleged interview with Col. J. M. McCorkle of Salisbury. We print it in order that Mr. McCorkle may, if it misrepresents his views, make his correction, and if it does not misrepresent him that the people may understand what opinion this gentleman entertains regarding North Carolina affairs.

Notice. CERTIFICATE NO. 121 FOR 30 SHARES OF the capital stock of The Bank of New Haven, in the name of Col. J. M. McCorkle, is hereby notified to be made to said Bank for a duplicate of same at the expiration of 30 days from date hereof.

MISCELLANEOUS. quarrel arise between a Union man and a secessionist, the advantage is with the latter, who, perhaps, indeed the Legislature to appoint the justice. We can hardly believe that Mr. McCorkle could have uttered such statements.
