CONGRESS-TRIED SENSION.

THE OLD BOUTING STILL KEPT UP-MR. VANCE ADDRESSES THE SENATE ON THE SUBJECT OF THE STATE DEST OF NORTH CAROLINA.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.] SENATE.

Washington, April 7.—The Vice President laid before the Senate a message from the President, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the Senate of the 18th ult., a report of the Secretary of State, with accompanying papers, in relation to the ca-pitulations of the Ottoman Empire. Ortered to be printed.

The pending business, being the resolu-tion for the election of Senate officers, was then taken up, and a motion to go into Ex-cutive Session, made by Mr. Pendleton, was as usual voted down—year 29, nays 30. Mr. Vance addressed the Senate on the subject of the State debt of North Carolina, denying that the debt had ever been repu-diated, and asserting that one of the first acts passed by the Legislature of that State after the war had been one providing for the payment of the State's indebted-ness. Under the force of the reconstruction acts, for the first time in the history of North Carolina she had found herself compelled to repudiate any of her obligations hat she had to do at the dictation of the loyal, non-repudiating, honest and virtuous Republican party of the North. It was not the voluntary action of the people of North Carolina. He proceeded to criticise and carolina. He proceeded to criticise and ridicule the acts of the Republican Legislature during the years 1868 and 1869, instancing the fact, among others, that that Legislature had purchased eight thousand acres of land for the site of a penitentiary. It had authorized the issue of twenty-two million dollars of bonds for the purpose of million dollars or bonds for the purpose of constructing railroads, not one of which had been built, and had then passed an act repudiating every dollar of the debts which it has contracted

From the day that the citizens of North Carolina had received control of the State, Carolina had received control of the State, instead of trying to pay the debt created by the carpet-bargers, placed upon them in a franchient manner, they had resolutely turned their backs upon it. They never would try to pay it; it was fraudulent and ricious, and not a debt in any sense of the word. The Republican side, he said, coming down to the question of an election of effects. had inquired why the Demoof officers, had inquired why the Demo-crats would not vote for Riddleberger. That was shifting the issue. The question was how could the gentlemen on the other side support him? He was a rebel-an unrepentant rebel; a Democrat-an unrepentant Democrat; a Readjuster-an unregive him? What was the object for their supporting him? He (Vance) objected to voting for any man who called himself a Democrat who had a surname before the word Democrat. He objected to the man-ner in which the Republican party had undertaken to force a candidate upon the Senate, because it was in defiance of the whole plan of political civilization. Riddleberger had been taken up, his sins unrepented and unshriven, and had been translated into the haven of Republicanusm without having tasted death. [Laughter.] The Senator from Connecticut (Hawley) had stated that this movement was going to break up the solid South. It reminded him of the story of the boy whose dog Tag had died, and who bet that the angels would be died, and who bet that the angels would be scared when they saw Tag trotting through the front gate. The solid South was to be broken when Tag came trotting through the front gate. [Laughter.] Had so great an undertaking ever been inaugurated by such small means? Did anybody ever before hear a party announce the extremes to which it was reduced when it announced that it relied for success in an alliance with the Senator from Virginia, and the election of Riddleberger to the office of Sergeant-at-arms. Instead of the movement being, as was stated, an alliance to promote the parity of the ballot box, it was be said, an attempt once more to subcet the people of the solid South who had been free long enough to gather a little money, to the domain of carpet-bag rule, in order that their little savings might Mr. Keilogg followed on the subject of the North Carolina debt, asserting that of the Democrats the debt had been scaled lows from twenty-six million to four million dollars, a repudiation of twenty-two

A long discussion ensued, the North Carcharges, and denying that the Blate had re-Mr. Ransom called attention to the fact that North Carolina 4 per cent, bonds were quoted at 85, and, appealing to Mr. Sher-man, obtained from him the admission that this was a fair price for 4 per cent. State bonds. Mr. Ransom then argued that as North Carolina bonds sold as high as any other State bonds it would not do to say her name was discredited. He asserted that the settlement of the State debt was estisfactory to the creditors, and that it was an honest settlement.

Mr. Rollins, referring to remarks made by Mr. Vance about carpet-baggers, inquired how long it was necessary for a mas to hve in a Southern State before he would be recognized as anything but a carpet-bagger?

Mr. Vance replied that if he came with a trunk, twenty-four hours would do; but if he came with a carpet-bag and hunted around the purlieus of cities, looking for a colored man to co-operate with him in cheating people, twenty-four years would light norther in Texas."

Mr. Rollins said that the gentlemen on the other side were shocked at the idea that the Republicans should dare to give a rote for a readjuster in Virginia who was with them on the question of free vote and an honest count.

Mr. Vance-What is the difference beween counting a man out of his vote and out of his money?

Mr. Rollins-You have tried both and ought to be able to answer that question yourself, [Laughter.] Mr. Vance—I have not tried both-have not tried either; and the Senator knows I have not tried either. My State has not tried either. The assertion was witty, ood it isoked truth.

A coloquial debate then followed, somewhat sharp at times, between Mesers, Dawes, Rollins and Salisbury.

Dawes, Rollins and Salisbury.

Mr. Call challenged say Republican Senator to produce evidence to prove that there had been either intolerance, ostracism, or violence of any kind on account of political opinions in any Southern State. He then went into an axhaustive history of carpetbag government, dwelling at some length apon the corruption and infamy which be found had characterized those governments. He was frequently interrupted by Mr. Blair, who asserted that the carpet bag governments had suited materially in the prosperity of the South. He denied that freedom of suffrage was restricted in the South, and cruicised with great carnestness laws which in Massachusetta did restrict that right. He also charged that many votars in that State had been deprived of a less ballot by the influence of money and by the influence of money and by the influence of corporations. This brought Mr. Dawes and Mr. Hoar is their
