The Morning Star.

BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.:

SATURDAY MORNING, April 9, 1881.

CONCERNING GIFTS.

The men of the North who have means are quite apt to give liberally. Many of them do not forget the South and her poverty and wants. The late Cornelius Vanderbilt gave a million or so to create a grand University at Nashville, Tennessee. His son W. H. has added, we believe, a hundred or two thousand to the fund. He has also given the University of North Carolina $10,000, for which we were all grateful, only wishing it had been ten times as much. Jay Gould gave freely to aid the smitten people of the South during the rage of the yellow fever epidemic. Mr. Cyrus McCormick gave $100,000 to the University of Virginia, and W. H. Vanderbilt also gave a handsome sum, we believe. Mr. Tom Scott, the railroad magnate, with genuine liberality has given $60,000 to Washington and Lee University, Virginia, without conditions. Tens of thousands have been given to Richmond College by rich Northern Baptists. Mr. George L. Soney, of New York city, has given $50,000 to Emory College and $50,000 to Wesleyan Female College, at Macon, Georgia.

These are only a part of the benefactions bestowed by men of the North. They are not only munificent gifts, but they are more; they speak loudly for peace and good will. They show there are men all through the North who are bound by no narrow limits of section in their charitable bestowments. They show that, appreciating the benefits and blessings of liberal education, they are willing to help generously the people of the South in the midst of their cares and poverty, and to do what they can to cover up the wounds of war. We say God bless the givers. They mean well, and they deserve the grateful thanks of the whole people of the South. We can only wish that the benefactors may be multiplied in every section.

In our own little city there is a standing testimonial of the far-reaching sympathy and liberality of a Northern lady. The Tileston Normal School, which has done and is doing a most important work for Wilmington in educating free of charge scores of pupils who otherwise could not find such excellent advantages, and that offers to those who can pay rare opportunities for acquiring a thorough education, is the creation of Mrs. Hemmenway, a benevolent and sympathetic lady of Boston.

As we said once before in these columns, so we repeat, the wealthy people in the North are much more accustomed to give largely to works of benevolence than people of corresponding wealth in the South. When you find a man worth a hundred thousand or a half million dollars in the North you will find a free giver, who is very apt to bestow a portion of his worldly goods in relief of the poor or in some other benevolent way. Somehow they are trained to give. The Southern people might surely learn a good lesson just here. Take the University and Colleges of our own State. They need money—some of them need money very much. How easy it would be if some twenty wealthy men of the State would give $10,000 each to the University to put it at once on the highway to great and permanent usefulness. Endowed properly the complaint would soon cease that it did not perform the functions of an University.

There are largely over one hundred thousand Baptists in North Carolina. Their College, Wake Forest, is crippled for the want of money. It needs generous endowment. There ought to be twenty-five Baptists in the State with expanded hearts enough to give it $5,000 each; and there ought to be fifty who would give it $2,500 each; and a hundred who would give it $1,000 each, and a thousand who would give it $100 each. Why not? There are the members, and hundreds of them are well to-do, and dozens are rich.

And so with Trinity and Davidson. The Methodists are strong numerically, and among its members are men of wealth. It would seem, if a proper liberality existed, that Trinity would be generously endowed, and without much tax upon any. Davidson is better off than the others, but doubtless a larger endowment would be very acceptable, and it would be the better able to enlarge its operations and extend its facilities. Let the rich men of the South learn to give. Do not be selfish. Do not spend all upon yourselves. Do not be content with accumulating and with self-indulgence. Help on the grand benevolent causes and aid in building up on a permanent and broad basis the educational institutions of the South. There is real luxury in giving. A liberal bestowment, made in the right spirit, is sure to bless the giver and to bless the receiver. Some few North Carolinians since the war have made some handsome gifts. They are none the worse for the deeds. Let others follow. We will be glad to record all bestowments of the kind, for

"One good deed dying tongueless,
Slaughters a thousand waiting on it."

NORTH CAROLINA IN THE SENATE

For the first time during the extra session of the Senate North Carolina has been heard. Senator Vance made a speech in defence of the State against the aspersions of Northern Radicals. He also put in some very effective blows on the new alliance between the Radicals and Mahone, and was specially happy in the way he treated the Riddleberger nomination. He wanted to know how the Republicans could support Riddleberger? He was an unrepentant rebel, an unrepentant Democrat, and an unrepentant Readjuster—i. e. Repudiationist—and the question was, how could they support such a man? Unrepentant and unshriven, never having tasted death, he was yet adopted and translated into the heaven of Republicanism. That was well done, and the Radicals must have felt it. He was funny in discussing the disintegration of the solid South. It is good enough to be reproduced:

"It reminded him of the story of the boy whose dog Tag had died, and who bet that the angels would be scared when they saw Tag trotting through the front gate. The solid South was to be broken when Tag came trotting through the front gate. [Laughter.] Had so great an undertaking ever been inaugurated by such small means? Had anybody ever before hear a party announce the exercise to which it was introduced when it announced that it relied for success in an alliance with the Senator from Virginia, and the election of Riddleberger to the office of Sergeant-at-arms. Instead of the movement being as was stated, an alliance to promote the purity of the ballot box, it was, he said, an attempt once more to subject the people of the solid South who had been free long enough to gather a little money, to the domain of carpet-bag rule, in order that their little savings might be swept away."

Senator Ransom also participated in the debate. The telegraphic abstract, however, gave only a small portion of what he said. He showed that by a fair financial test North Carolina's credit was good in the markets, her 4 per cent. bonds fetching a fair price. North Carolina's good name will be taken care of always as long as Ransom and Vance are in the Senate.

It is downwright mean that the New York Commercial Advertiser, a Conkling organ, should be raking up the old Credit Mobilier scandal about Garfield. That paper did its best to elect him knowing all about his record, and it is simply mean now to be printing facts concerning the great scandal just to give Conkling a triumph. Why be reprinting what Republican papers said of Garfield in 1873, when he is elected and installed as President? It would have done the honest and candid thing to have spread these opinions prior to the November election; it is but cowardly revenge to be doing it now when the Republicans have placed their man in the highest office and by the free use of money. Republican papers should not trench upon the rights of the Democratic press. It is the province of the latter to remind the country from time to time of Hayes, Garfield, Sherman and their hand in the Louisiana and Florida rape and in other acts of depravity.

Since we wrote our article a few days ago on silk culture we have ascertained that our figures were under the actual statistics. Special Agent Wyckoff reports to the Census Bureau as follows:

	1875.	1880.
Total number of operatives	18,017	34,440
Wages paid	$6,393,256	$9,107,889
Capital invested	17,013,858	18,899,500
Total value of product	27,158,071	34,410,463

The number of silk factories is 383. Of these 290 are in two counties in Connecticut, namely, Hartford and Tolland; Hampshire county, Massachusets; Hudson and Passaic counties, New Jersey; and New York county, New York. There are in these six counties 7,473 looms, and $15,394,700 capital invested. They produce yearly $27,716,035, and $7,651,630 are paid for wages. In the 383 factories there are 16,344 females, 9,350 males, and 5,605 children employed—total 31,299. In New Jersey there are 108 factories; capital $6,952,325; looms 4,351. Cannot North Carolina learn a lesson from this?

The Baltimore Gazette is the leading Democratic paper of that city. A good paper, it has never appeared to us fully up to the mark as a party organ in a city of 325,000 people. We are pleased, therefore, to see it announce:

"That the entire control and business management has been assumed by new parties, who will at once proceed to develop it in every possible way. In the course of a couple of weeks it will appear in an entire new dress, printed upon good quality of paper; and the new management hopes by energy and enterprise to produce a paper worthy of confidence and support. Mr. W. H. Welsh, so long connected with the paper, remains in the capacity of editor."

The British Government is making a mistake in warring upon Irish papers published in the United States. The New York Irish World is not to be allowed to circulate in Ireland. It will be difficult to prevent it, and no good can come from a war upon the rights of a free press. The Government confesses weakness and apprehension by such a course. The Irish World will make by the suppression in the end.

Many letters are received at this office of a most kind and encouraging sort. Whilst we appreciate the words of hearty approval we never avail ourselves of them to show our readers what is said of the STAR. Many letters come from persons of distinction in life whose good opinion is well worth having.

As was feared England declines to participate in the approaching monetary conference to be held at Paris. This declinature may prevent the conference from agreeing upon the adoption of a double standard.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—I have said nothing to-day that was intended to stir up any feeling of animosity between individuals or sections. I belong to that class of public men who were secessionists. Every throb of my heart was for the disunion of these States. If that deducts from the force of the statements I have made to-day it is due to candor and to you to admit it. I confess that I believed in the right of secession and that I believed in the propriety of its exercise. I will say further that it was a cherished conception of my mind, that of two great, free Republics on the continent, each pursuing its own destiny and the destiny of its people, and their happiness according to its own will. But, sir, that conception is gone; it is sunk forever out of sight. Another one has come in its place, and by the way it is my first love. The elements of it were planted in my heart by my father; they were taught by my mother, and they were nourished and developed by my own subsequent reflection. May I tell you what it is, sir? It stands before me now, ample in its majesty and sublime in its beauty. It is that of one grand, mighty, indivisible Republic upon this continent, throwing its loving arms around all sections: omnipotent for protection, powerless for oppression, cursing none, blessing all."—[Applause in the galleries.]—From Senator Lamar's speech in the U. S. Senate.

—The late elections in Cincinnati and Chicago may not indicate substantial Democratic gains, as there were no well-defined political issues in either contest, but they do show that the Democratic party in both cities has more than held its own. They also disclose the fact of serious Republican defections, and an unusual amount of independent voting in consequence.—Washington Post.

OUR STATE CONTEMPORARIES.

Your Political Self-Seeker doubles and twists and intrigues to get office, and if elected hastens to form a personal clique, and strengthen himself by dispensing his favors, very much as the Norman Conqueror parcelled out Great Britain to his impecunious followers who had backed him in the conquest. These things make shipwreck of a party; for good men do not vote the Democratic ticket for any mere party purpose. They vote it to put honest and capable men in office, and when they see that their chosen leaders are not acting as "servants of the public," but as chiefs of a "political clique," they no longer cling to the party.—Raleigh Farmer and Mechanic.

Hard indeed must be the heart that turns a deaf ear to the cry of the helpless orphan. We do not despise little, for we know their power. We are only wishing for greater and larger facilities, and money alone can give us these. The people of North Carolina, of every name and denomination have responded generously and kindly to the appeals made in behalf of our one hundred and forty orphans gathered from all parts of the State. As proof of this liberality, we refer our readers to our weekly receipts in cash and in kind.—Oxford Orphan's Friend.

POLITICAL POINTS.

—The amount of purely Federal business transacted by them entitles the New York and Pennsylvania Legislatures to be attached to Congress as tenders.—Phil. Times, Ind.

—There is no bargain about the Mahone business, of course. Everybody knows that the Republicans are supporting Riddleberger for no reason on earth but because they love a Confederate brigadier and a repudiator.—Phil. Times.

—Mahone and Logan have repudiated all their indebtedness to English grammar. Antipathy to their mother tongue is the ligament that binds together these two hearts that beat as one.—Louisville Courier Journal, Dem.
