WILMINGTON, N. C .: WEDNESDAY MORNING, April 20, '81.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW AND CENTRALIZATION.

The readers of the STAR will remember that during the last Presidential campaign we discussed in a dozen editorials the dangers arising from the usurpation and centralizing tendencies of the Federal Government. We regarded that as the great question of the hour. We looked upon Garfield as the exponent and representative of strong government ideas. During the campaign the papers and the speakers had much to any about the corruptions and usurpations of the Republican party. Because the election is over it need not be supposed for a moment that the advocates of a strong government are satisfied or have ceased their efforts to gather still more power at the centre. For a hundred years the wo antagonizing elements-centralzation and the government of the people-have been warring, and the fight is no nearer ended now than it was three-quarters of a century ago. The fight will continue with growing fervor and determination. Thus far the victory remains with the enemies of a republican government-a government of the people.

The STAR, in editorial after editorial, pointed out the usurpations and systematic and deliberate violations of the organic law of the land. This was denied, and we undertook to establish by facts that could not be assailed successfully, that there had been the most dangerous assaults upon a free government, and to such an extent as to change greatly, if not altogether, its very form.

In the May number of the North American Review Mr. David Dudley Field, an eminent lawyer of New York, has a paper on the "Central-A Luon in the Federal Government." We hope it will be widely read. It is well calculated to arrest the attention of all reflecting people, and to arouse the fears of all genuine lovers of liberty. We have been gratified to note how many of the instructive points raised by Mr. Field were precisely those we discussed in our own way last year, and concerning which we warned the freemen of our country.

We are gratified at the identity of view because it shows we had apprehended correctly the potency and number and character of the dangers that threatened the safety of Republican institutions and the perpetuity of the States. The tendency is to destroy the autonomy of States and to weaken or wipe out altogether local self-government.

We cannot follow Mr. Field to-day · 10 his instructive discussion. But we may refer to a point or two. He opens his paper with the remark that, "The perpetuity of the American Government is an object of supreme concern to every American." And so it is, and every true man and pa-oppose every encroachment on the part of the Federal authorities. Mr. Field shows tody our Government should be preserved. He shows that it is our duty, and it will be the duty of our children, to preserve it. He defines the American Government, and shows who framed it and what the founders held. He says: "Each State was then independent of the others; each had its own traditions, wants, and policy. Massachusetts, whose towns had been little republics from the first settlements, would no more have thought of subjecting those towns, for their domestic concerns, to the rule of Virginia, than of sinking Boston in the waters of Massachusetts Bay. New York, which had her feet already planted at the entry of the sea, would as soon have thought of turning the Hudson backward upon the lakes, as of giving over to her sister States the unlimited control of her river valley and her imperial haven; and Virginia, which did more than any other State for the establishment of the Constitution, would have expected the closing of the Chesapeake by a fence of stone, from beadland to headland, as soon as the assumption by New York and Massachusetts of the power to regulate the counties and parishes of the old cavalier commonwealth."

He then proposes, after the lapse of nearly a hundred years, to take soundings that we may see where we are. He first points out now the Federal Government has overshadowed the State Governments. goes into a history of the many encroschments, beginning in 1798. He

"Hardly had Washington left the Presidency when, on the 14th of July, 1798, a statute was passed by Congress for the punishment of libel upon the Federal Government, either House of Congress, or the President. If this were within the competency of Congress, the punishment of libel apon any officer of the United States would be equally within its competency. Indeed it is not easy to perceive why Conrress might not take upon itself all remedies, criminal and civil, for any wrong done to the good name, person or preperty of any Federal office-holder, and send the parties before Federal courts for trial. Can there be a doubt that such an assumption of power was never dreamed of by those who framed or those who ratified the Federal Constitution? That statute, by its own limitation, expired with the administration of the elder Adams, and was one of the causes which led to the overthrow of the Federal party at the beginning of the century. The Democratic party then took possession of the Federal Government, and the Presidency in 1894."

The younger Adams was elected as a States Rights man. He had professed to believe in the great principle of reserved rights and local selfgovernment. Had not the Constitution defined the very principle? Did it not say -" The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

Mr. Field shows that up to that period, with the exception of the tariff, the relations between the Federal and State Governments remained unaltered. He shows that in regard to the tariff there had been great change. He then considers the two thousand national banks, and points to the change in ideas in regard to managing the finances of the country. He then specifies many radical changes in regard to post-roads, holding courts, holding elections, &c. These and other significant points he discusses, and in them all finds the most direct, positive centralizing tendencies. We may recur to the matter again and very soon. Having discussed many of these points so recently we do not deem it necessary at this time to go into the subject as fully as we would have done otherwise. There are some points of so much importance, however, raised by Mr. Field that we shall make no apology for taking them up here-

If we may trust an editorial in the Augusta Chronicle there are several Democratic Senators who are discussing among themselves whether it is better to support the President or Conkling. The Chronicle has a three-fourth column article on the subject. The following is the gist of

"That Mr. Conkling is a bitter enemy of the South, especially in oratory, is well known. But it has also become a matter of recent history that the President has allied himself with Mahone, and favors the schemes of that trickster not only in Virginin but in the whole South. Between the wo, therefore, Democratic Senators have small choice, and they may conclude that the man in the White House is the more dangerous of the two, because of the pat-ronage he wields. Then there is such a thing as precedent and courtesy. Nominations are always in bad oder when both the Sepators from the State affected by them object to the appointees. Here is precedent for tavoring Conkling; but the sympahies of the Democratic Senators are, in our opinion, largely on the other side, toward the President.

The monetary conference will meet in Paris in a few days. The United States Commissioners are now on the Atlantic. The refusal of England to participate will cause the conference, probably, to amount to but little. England, at present, prefers the one metal-gold. We notice, however, that a memorial, largely signed by capitalists, asks for English representation and that the question be now settled. The object of the conference is to establish a bi-metalic currency. The United States, it is believed, will not enter into any agreement without

PUBLISHER'S ANNOUNCEMENT. | triot should watch and denounce and | English cooperation. The Philadelmatter, in referring to our country seting without the accession of England to the conference:

"To do so (that is to act without England) would be to arrange the commerce of the world for her convenience, and to enable her to pay her debts in silver, while she refused anything but gold when the balance was in her favor. It would be the first step to gathering into England nearly the whole specific the state of t the whole supply of the more valuable and convenient metal of the two, while she went on with her old policy of discrediting and depreciating the silver, to whose use she left the rest of the world. For our part, with twice as much gold in the National Treasury as in the vaults of the Bank of England, and with the certainty that our importation from Europe this year will reach a hundred millions, we can afford to wait notil Europe has been so drained of gold that the remopetization of silver will have become a necessity."

A new committee of the New York Poe memorial has been formed, and the entertainment will come off on Saturday evening. The committee have issued an address to the public. It is signed as follows: Wood Davidson, Fletcher U. Harper, George Edgar Montgomery, A. M. Palmer, William Winter, Algernon S. Sullivan, Gen. Charles E. Furlong, and Lester Wallack. These names are supplemented, says the Times, by those of the ladies, who represent what is best and highest in our social life, and whose good will is a guarantee that the festival will be a successful effort in an admirable cause."

Thus far by the two previous entertainments nearly $3,000 has been raised. Saturday is the anniversay of Shakespeare's birth. The commit-

"Their purpose is to prove the public regard for the greatest among our early authors, Edgar A. Poe, whose wide renown has helped to raise American literature to its now high level They will exert themselves to make this entertainment worthy of its purpess and memorable "

It is said serious threats have been made against good Queen Victoria. She has been on the throne nearly forty-four years and England has prospered vastly under her reign, and the reforms introduced have been numerous and radical. Why kill her then? Why do foreign Socialists kept it until the younger Adams came into | wish her removed?. How could England be bettered by her death?

CURRENT COMMENT.

- The Land bill, which Premier Gladstone is attempting to pass through the House of Commons, is as progressive a measure as would have any possible chance of success in obtaining the necessary support in the House to go through on, and is a very long stride toward a just settlement of the Irish land question. What then must be the supreme folly of Mr. Dillon and his ultra Radical friends in asking to defeat the bill because it is not up to what their extreme ideas of a reform land measure should be! It would be equally sensible for a man to refuse a modest competency because he is aiming at wealth. Get the competency first. That would only make the ultimate object so much nearer .- Baltimore Mahones to come forward from the South-men who will bargain support for office. Very likely; we presume there are plenty such. There are always hucksterers by nature in all parts of the world. The South has always been spoken of as chivalrous and generous. But the Southerners in fact fully equal the New Englanders in avarice and meanness. Of course there are many very free-hearted, liberal men in the South, as there are in the North. But these hucksterers are everywhere-North, South, East and West. It is now thought that the "bloody chasm" between the North and South may be bridged over by these hucksterers. -N. Y. Sun, Ind. Dem.

- Walt Whitman, in his last paper, confesses to being a half paralytic.

Curious Old West Point Orders. There is an old manuscript West Point orderly book preserved at-Washington Headquarters which contains some carious entries. Under date of July 8, 1780, is the follow-

"To-morrow being the anniversary of the Independence of America, the commander wishes to have the pleasure of seeing the officers of the garrison at 11 o'clock, to drink a glass of - with him. The troops will be served with a gill of rum at the same

In another place is the following: The children of non-commissioned officers and privates will draw but half rations. Sucking ones to draw no public provisions." "No woman who shall in the future be married to a non-commissioned officer or soldier by a Justice of the Paice of this State shall be allowed to remain at this point."

"John Gordon, of the 12th Mass. Regiment, has been found guilty of stailing salt, and is sentenced to receive 100 lashes on his bair back."

"Benj. Kerchill and Ebenezer For good are sentenced to run the gauntelope bare back'd through a file of men, in open order, with a bayonet at each of their breasts."

OUR STATE CONTEMPORABLES.

The Mahone of North Carolina who is to lead the Republican party out of the mire and mud will have a great undertaking before him, particularly if he be required to cleanse them of all their sins. One of their members of the Legislature has been accused of larceny, another has not clearly shown that he was not guilty of the charge of forgery brought against him, and now comes the story that still another has eloped with the wife of one of his fela low-citizens. And the first year of their membership has not yet expired. - Char-

Mr. McCorkle says that in the negro counties of Eastern North Carolina the tism sue ballot is and has been long in vogue, and is freely used to defeat the wishes of the majority. Now we think Craven is a fair sample of the Eastern counties, and as the elections are conducted here, so are they elsewhere in the East. Can any man in Craven county (we speak regardless of parties) be found so lost to all sense of truth or shame as to say that an election here, held under Democratic auspices, has ever been conducted otherwise than with the most exact and scrupulous fairness? We challenge the most rabid partisan to point out one act in any election in this county that would not have been tolerated and endorsed anywhere in America where a "free ballot and a fair count" obtain .- Now Bernian.

POLITICAL POINTS.

- Says a correspondent of the Hartford Times: Tweed himself never had a firmer grip on New York than the Republican machine has now, nor were the people a bit more helpless under him than they are under the present regime, of which it is notorious that Chester A. Arthur, Vice President of the United States, is the real

- We call upon Senator John I. Mitchell to break from this suicidal and senseless compact. He is the representative of independent and reputable Republicans in Pennsylvania. Judge Robertson repre sents the same element in New York, and the only escape from the pernicious rule of the Imperial ring is to pool issues to break its un wholesome power .- Pittsburg Dispatch, upon its recognized importance than upon its in terest to mankind. From morning to morning THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates, and troubles. This story is more varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised. III. Good writing in every column, and fresh ness, originality, accuracy, and decerum in the treatment of every subject.

IV. Honest comment. THE SUN's habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.

V. Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebuie what is blamable in Democrat or Republican.

VI. Absolute independence of partisan organizations but newspering lovely to the live but newspering lovely. tions, but unwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. The Sun believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its utmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to get up another form of government in place of that which exists. The year 1981 and the years that which exists. The year 1981 and the years immediately following will probably decide this supremely important contest. The Sun believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Rings for monopoly, the Rings for plunder, and the Rings for imperial power.
