Some of the Republican Senators regard Congling's course as decidedly tarmeal. Garfield is serene and Blaine jubilant. Conkling is mad and Platt is the tail to his kite. The Democrats are in a broad grin.

Mr. G. W. Smalley telegraphs to the New York Tribune that it is the opinion of play-goers that Booth excalled Irving in both Iago and Othello. Kach appeared in these characters, alternating the succeeding night.

We see it mentioned that Priester, the South Carolina parrieide, not only killed one colored man in Charlotte, but dangerously wounded another one in Augusta, Ga. His last act, killing his father, and his previous exploits show him to be a veritable Blue Beard or a victim of insanity.

Senator Vest's head is level. He has thus foreshadowed the Demeratic purpose:

We will go right abead, confirm the resident's nominations at once, and send him a message asking him if he has any urther business to communicate. If he has not we will adjourn immediately. The lemocrats are in a majority again, and we propose to do bostness.

For candidates I propose two well thows citizens, long tried in the public service, namely: "William A. Robertson, of Westchester,

This is a fusion ticket. It might go through, and then wouldn't Conking be mad "sure enough."

WILMINGTON, N. C., THURSDAY, MAY 19, 1881.

There is a peculiarity in North Carolina journalism. Papers in the State may from time to time have news articles concerning the various proportions of given sections, or of the State at Targe, and they will be copied probably by one or two, or, it may be, a half dozen papers. But let a paper beyond the State, or some newspaper man from a distance, who shooting through the State, tell but not dangerous would. -Winston Sentinel: Fifty thousand the same things, and every paper

Peaches will be scarce, but the crop of apples, cherries, pears, grapes, &c., never promised to be more abundant. - On Friday a small colored boy was thrown from a buggy attached to a runaway team and had his arm broken at the wrist.

- Monroe Express: We learn that the commencement exercises of Albemarle the commencement exercises of Albemarie Academy, W. H. Spinks, Principal, will begin on the evening of the 24th inst., and will embrace the 25th and 26th. Major Dowd, of Charlotte, will deliver the annual address on Thursday, the 26th. — Mrs. Nancy O McCain, an old lady 72 years of age, who lives with Mr. John J. McCain, in Jackson township, met with a peculiar accident on last Friday morning. She was sitting before the fire and she says not making any effort whatever with her making any effort whatever with her mouth, when suddenly her lower jawbone flew out of its sockets on both sides.

- Statesville Landmark: Intelligence of an occurrence at once comical and tragical, comes from Union Grove township, in the extreme northern portion of this county. One day last week a youth by the name of John Brown, about 21 years old, with a view to breaking a little nephew of the habit of eating dirt, which he had unhappily contracted, took him ont to a tree and told him of his purpose to hang him for his vile habit. He accordingly tied a rope around his neck and swung him up to a limb. After letting him hang awhile, for the purpose of threatening him thoroughly, he cut the child down, but unfortunately the experiment had been carried too far

The same night the child died. - Pittsboro Record: Mr. B. On last Sunday two young men, near Cane creek, in this county, named Aaron Mc-Pherson, Jr., and James Terry, had a fight, in which the latter struck the former with a fence rail, dislocating his shoulder and gashing his head. - A few weeks ago we published a communication in regard to the seventeen-year locusts, and predicted their return this year, and sure enough they have already made their ap-morning of May 4th the wife of David Willia, colored, who lives near Brice's creek, sent her four-year-son, Wm. Henry, into the woods in search of some cattle that had strayed off. Wm. Henry, whilst looking for the cattle, got into Brice's pocosin and lost his way, and remained in the pocosin until Thursday night, May 13th, sustaining life on green whortleberries alone. On the afternoon of that day, while wandering about, he heard the dis-tant sound of a cow bell, and followed the sound as best he could until he found himself in an open field, from where he soon found his way to some colored people near by, who brought him home to his distressed parents, who were sorrowing for him as one dead.

- Lenoir Topic: The mining fever is attaining a wonderful height in this portion of the State. On all sides there are rumors of old mines reopened and new it has a bonanza in the new mineral-hiddenite; a Caldwell gentleman, who has an interest in the Baker gold mine, says he is receiving constant application from north-ern and western capitalists to lease the mine; Burke is said to be swarming with pect to find in its beds are offering to pay the river bed contains gold in sufficient quantities to justify them in paying that

- Reidsville Times: And ab, if al the men who loudly cry for prohibition would just practice that little advice of laws in the world—"If honor make my brother to offend I will drink no liquor" but don't say, "Yes, I will drink it myself but I will pass a law that others shan't"and that's the word Governor Reid is opposed to, that word shan't. --- We hear that the issue of prohibition in Charlotte was squarely drawn between the Church resign for voting the anti-prohibition ticket, and both Presbyterian churches lost a member who was in the liquor business. The towa goes dry the first of June, but we shouldn't advise putting on the ascension robe until all sides get in better humor.

- Raleigh News-Observer: The thunder storm of Saturday night played destruction around the city. - There is talk of a new hotel for Raleigh, to be located on Payetteville street. - Gov Jarvis is much annoyed at the wanton act of the person who destroyed the poison vine (trumpet flower) on the capitol. The half dozen countrymen who were here last forenoon were noticed to get through with their business a great deal more rapidly than usual, and hurry back to their farms to thin out their cotton. Last night the small-pox patient, a woman, as usual, at the bottom of it, was removed to a small cabin in the woods, on Mrs. Sarah Young's place, isolated from any human habitation by half a mile. For the Star. An Appeal.

DAUGHTERS OF CAPE FEAR. - Spring in her fresh beauty is once more among us. In living green and sunshine glorious, she sits enthroned over nature, while the air is thronged with tuneful birds, and "the voice of the turtle is heard in the land." This, our memorial month, will soon sink into the past, a past, perhaps, of vain regrets, cast aside like sea weed upon the shores of time. While the floral offerings of Memorial Day are fading in their beds of gray moss upon the graves of our boys, and the echo of the sacred service still lingers lovingly upon our neares the little band of untiring women would fain gather themselves together once more for their annual meeting, and it is to this meeting that they urge your earnest attention. The object of a yearly gathering together s to reorganize the Association, to elect officers and managers for the ensuing year, and to hand in the small annual fee-fifty cents-which entitles each subscriber to a nembership for one year and to a seat in the enclosure during the memorial services. At their last annual meeting they numbered not over fifteen souls present; at the meetng of the year before-May, 1880,-not more than nine ladies responded to the summons. Such a lack of interest, of pas triotism, of gratitude, where so little required, is almost unparalleled, renders those who are not physically unable to attend, unworthy to place even a withered leaf upon the mound, which they should hallow with tears and bedeck with flowers! Be ye wives and mothers, and encourage such neglect? The cause was a common one; should not the care also be common to all? Let not this appeal be made in vain. With your hearts in your hands come forward and join the thinned ranks of earnest women, whose only ambition is, to keep loving watch over their sacred dead! The boys in grey bivouse no more beneath the stars. Homes are no longer deserted, and the tocsin of war has sounded its final clang. We are living, but they are dead—dead for you and for us! Daughters of Wilmington, will you, can you forget them?

For the Star. The ladies of Wilmington are asked to meet at the annual re-union and join the Memorial Association, and it is to be hoped that each and every lady will be animated by the desire to keep alive in the memory f the older folks and to teach the younger to love and revere the deeds and memories of our dead soldiers.

To many of us, old soldiers, there has appeared for some years past a lack of general interest in this sad memorial, and as one of them who fought and bled for principles even now held dear, I plead, in benot to permit to languish and die the interest thus far sustained and which tends to nourish in our children the love of those principles for which the life blood of so many we loved and held dear was given in vain and whose memories even now, we fear, are fading away.

Where are now those noble ladies who ministered in those troubulous times years ago so lovingly and so tenderly to our suffering and starving as well as sick soldiers? We remember them and thank them for their kindly interest then, but those same, or some of them who are still left here, de not now aid to keep alive the memories which they and we once loved.

As year after year rolls on, the scythe of Time cuts down from our midst one by one those who know of the deeds of those who now sleep in Oakdale, and 'tis but a few years hence when the Ladies' Memorial Association will be composed of those too young to know of themselves the trials and dangers to which their fathers and brothers were exposed.

It is only through the Association that general interest can be sustained, and the ladies of Wilmington, who were never known to be backward in their duty, have this burden upon them. Let them consider it a labor of love, and every old soldier will give his aid, and love them the more for keeping alive the recollections of the 'time that tried men's souls." "I DON'T WANT THAT STUFF," is what a Boston lady said to her husband when he brought home some medicine to cure her of alck headache and neuralgis which had made her miserable for fourteen years. At the first attack thereafter it was administered to her with such good results that she continued its use until cured, and was so enthusiastic in its praise that she induced twenty-two of the best families in her circle to adopt it as their regular medicine. A DOWN TOWN MERCHANT, having passed several sleepless nights, disturbed by the agonies and cries of a suffering child, and becoming con vinced that Mrs. Winslow's Boothing Syrup was just the article needed, procured a supply for the child. On reaching home and acquainting his wife with what he had done, she refused to have it administered to the child, as she was strongly in favor of Homeopathy. That night the child passed in suffering, and the parents without sleep. Returning home the day following, the father found the baby still worse; and while contemplating another sleepless night, the mother stepped from the room to attend to some domestic duties, and left the father with the child. During her absence he administered a portion of the Soothing Syrup to the baby, and said nothing. That night all hands sleept well, and the little fellow awoke in the morning bright and happy. The mother was delighted with the sudden and wonderful change, and although at first offended at the deception practiced upon her, has continued to use the Syrup, and suffering crying babies and sleepless nights have disappeared. A single trial of the Syrup never yet failed to refleve the baby and overcome the prejudices of the mother. Sold by all Druggists. 25 cents a bottle.
