Mrs. Garfield's physicians of both wire are confident of her recovery. There is a rumor that Grant is belighted at the outlook, and says hat the defeat of Conkling is sare. We are sorry to see that Mr. Sey-

We regret that Mr. Gladstone's health is breaking down steadily under the immense barden of work. He has failed much latterly.

The idea of the newspapers quot my liob ingersoil as to the value of the new revision of the New Testsment is most preposterous.

Conking and Platt are in the field backed strongly by Vice President, whats-his-name, and Gov. Cornell. There will be a lively fight.

The Baltimore American prosounds this conumdrum:

"If Garfield and Arthur die before Congress meets, who would then be resident?"

Wouldn't Mahone be the man?

Judging from a large number of pinions of divines in the North as reported in our exchanges the New Revision meets with great and general favor. Nearly all we have seen are strong in its commendation.

A medical college at Buffalo, New York, has revoked the degree of M. D. conferred upon William R. Crump, because his thesis was not original. Suppose that rule was to be extended throughout the country. What an viarm signal it would sound.

It is an ill wind that will not blow a great and good man good. We hope Mr. Davis's book will reach a sale of hundreds of thousands of copies. The educated world will read his book, and ever the North, that calls him "traitor." will be anxious to see what the "Southern scape-goat" has to say. Everybody has heard of the big steal of 1876. Every one knows how the Radicals cheated the people and defranded Mr. Tilden and put Haves in possession of the stolen goods. The New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Times has been talking with a leading Conklingite of that city. Said Stalwart is reported as

"Don't you believe that Roscoe Conkling has fired off all his ammunition yet. I know that Mr. Conkling has regretted ever since that he did not do as he was prepared to do at the time the electoral count was before Congress and denounce that infamous steal and all connected with it, and he is not the only one who regrets it. Hundreds of Republicans in this State-and I was one of them -were prepared to act with him. Well, Mr. Conking has now in his possession such positive proof of the corruption of Blaine and Garfield, and especially of the former, that were he to make it public no decent man could longer consent to stick to this administration or declare himself its friend."

Here is another illustration of the old saw concerning rogues failing out. We can but hope Conkling will tell all he knows.

McCullough appears to have met with a financial success in London and to have been praised far more than censured. He pleased a great many who would not like a more artistic and intellectual performance. The Baltimore American's new para-

"His success proves that cast-iron actors of the ranting school are still popular in London. McCullough's Othello, after Booth's, Irving's and Salvini's, is like the kettle-drum after the violin; but the big bow-wow style always captivates a certain class of people. They can see and hear without the bother of having to think."

The pistol shooting on Memorial Day reminds us of a new epidemic that has broken out in New York A cheap revolver for boys of an adventurous turn of mind has been made, price ninety cents. It is said that a half million of them have been sold, and one hundred and twentyfive thousand are in the pockets of the New York city boys. Here is a good cause for alarm. But what can be done? The law against carrying concealed weapons is not enforced. and boys will carry their death-dealing weapons.

The New York Times closes an editorial on the Conkling episode

"The resignation was almost destitute of any political significance. The re-election, should there be a reelection, would be scarcely less meaningless. The episode, when consluded, will probably be considered one of the most undignified and inexcusable in recent political history.'

Robbery of the Carolina Bice Mill. Officer Marsh Walker, of the police force, reported, when relieved at 8 o'clock last evening, that he had observed two men loafing around the Carolina Rice Mill in a rather suspicious manner, and Officer O'Brien, who succeeded him on the beat, was notifled to keep a sharp lookout in that vicinity. Arriving at the mill he discovered it open, and that one of the men had taken a bag of rice outside, and that the other, who carried a light, was in the act of following suit, when the officer entered, and he quickly dropped everything, and mounting the stairs, jumped from a second story window and escaped. Officer O'Brien succeeded in capturing the other fellow, and was on his way to the guard house with him, when he broke away, and after a long race also made good his escape. The policeman, however, promptly reported the fact at the City Hall, and Sergeant Robert Green, with a detail of men, repaired to his residence, on Twelfth street, and succeeded in rearresting the culprit and safely lodging him in the lock-up. The man who escaped was recognized as the engineer of the mill, an employe in whom the utmost confidence had been placed, and who had been above suspicion, though it was well known that thieving was going on about the premises.

She says she and her husband emigrated to Illinois fifteen years ago, where the former worked as a mechanic until he died, since which time she has found it difficult to keep body and soul together, and she is now making her way to her old home where she hopes to improve her condition somewhat. Neither the city or county funds could be used for such a purpose, but some of the officials aided her out of their private means to reach Goldsboro, where she will probably succeed in securing further assistance.

A Flourishing Town. Laurinburg, the sprightly town which so many of our citizens visited on Sunday last on the occasion of the church dedication. is in Richmond county, ninety-five miles from Wilmington, on the Carolina Central Railroad. The shops of the C. C. Road are located there, and some of the best work in the country is turned out from them, under the management and direction of Mr. James McGlynn, Master Machinist, who has now under process of construction being done in the shops, including the forging of the axles. Mr. H. Behrens, of Wadesboro, has the contract for building a new round house for the company, which will be commenced soon. The town is improving very rapidly, and even the destructive confisgrations which bave almost devastated the place two or three times seem to have resulted beneficially in some respects, as the buildings which were destroyed have very generally been replaced by better and more substantial ones. The town has nearly recovered from the effects of the last big fire, and it is said that at least twenty-five new buildings are now going up in different locations, while preparations are being made to build others. In the meantime house room is in demand, and building operations will be pushed forward as rapidly as the necessary material can be secured. Mesars. M. G. McKoy & Bro. are now engaged in making their own brick for the construction of three brick stores on Main street. There are four very neat churches in the place: the Presbyterian, Rev. Mr. Coble, pastor; the Baptist, Rev. Mr. Stowe, pastor; the Methodist, Rev. Dr. North, pastor; and the Catholic, which will be supplied from Wilmington. There are also two colored churches, Baptist and Mez thodist. An attractive place of resort in the neighborhood is the mineral spring, located about one mile north of the town, the waters of which are said to possess very decided health-giving properties. Laurinburg has the good fortunate to be situated in the midst of a flourishing section and no doubt has a bright future before it, especially as it has a very good newspaper-the Enter-

Alleged Cheating and Defrauding. James P. Spann, colored, was arrested on Saturday afternoon last, by Officer Simon A. Richardson, charged with cheating and defrauding, and the case was heard before J. C. Hill, J. P., yesterday morning. It appears from the evidence that the defendant, who is a shoemaker, was employed by Mr. H. C. Twining to make him a pair of fine gaiters. Afterwards he (Spann) went to Mr. T. and repre sented that he needed $1.50 to procure certain material with, which sum was furnished in advance, and subsequently he went to Mr. Twining's store and took up $5.80 in groceries, etc., on account of the shoes, stating that they were ready whenever he (Mr. T.) was pleased to call for them. Afterwards Mr. Twining went to several places where he was directed to Howard, Isabella Hussey, Lew Hill, Lissie go by Spann, at different times, with the understanding that he was to get the shoes, and could never discover any trace of them, and finally came to the conclusion that he had been deceived and swindled. During the examination the defendant acknowledged that he got the money and articles, as charged, "but," said he, "! didn't get them on false pretense, for didn't I say the shoes were on the last? and where is the last and where are the shoes?" It is furthermore stated that defendant, at the close of the examination, asked permission to say a few words privately with the magstrate, and then offered to bribe him with fifteen dollars to require only a straw bond of $50, without justification, for his appearance at court; when the justice remarked that if it wasinot very certain that he would have to go to jail anyway, he would send him there for contempt of court. The accused was then required to give a justified bond in the sum of $100 for his appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court, in default of which he was locked up to await the action of the grand

Murderous Assault. A young man was on his way home Monday night, about half past 1 o'clock, and had just turned from Market into Ninth street, when he says he was set upon by two colored men, one of whom struck him with a stick and stunned him so that he had to lean for a moment against the brick wall at that point to recover himself. In the meantime the man who had stricken him with the stick had run across the street, but his companion had drawn a razor from his pocket and was in the act of using it upon the young man, when the latter seized the arm of the assailant and a struge gle ensued, during which both parties came to the ground, the young man at the bottom. The latter was then in a measure in the power of the man, but he succeeded in keeping him from using his razor with much effect, though he received some eight or ten wipes across the throat, each of which made a gash, but fortunately to only a slight depth. The young man also succeeded in getting hold of a brick at one stage of the assault, with which he struck the man on the forehead, causing a wound from which the blood flowed profusely. Finally he managed to turn his assailant and get on top, about which time the other man came across the street: when, seeing that both men were as bloody as butchers, hel commenced shouting "murder" at the top of his lungs. The young man says he then got loose from the man with whom he had been struggling and ran across Market street to the cartihouse in that vicinity, and about the same time two men reached the scene of the late disturbance, no doubt attracted by the cries, but made no attempt to arrest either of the colored men, who started to follow the young man up, but finally made off in another direction. The victim of the assault then went to the house of a relative in the neighborhood and washed the blood from his person. He says he generally carries a considerable sum of money about him when he goes home at night, and this fact was no doubt known or suspected by

COBSETS! CORSETS! CORSETS!

Brown & Roddick 45 Market Street. SOLE AGENTS FOR ROTH'S PATENT DOU-BLE BONE CORSETS. They are made with two rows of Bones placed one upon the other, on each side, giving it double the strength and elasti-city usually obtained in other Corsets; doing away with broken and rusty side steels, and making it absolutely unbreakable in those parts subjected to absolutely unbreakable in those parts subjected to the greatest strain. They have an extra long five hook double Clasp, and are cut proportionately long on the sides and back, thus meeting a popular de-mand for long Corsets. Sold only by BROWN & RODDICK, my 21 tf 45 Market St.
