It is understood that they can easily swell their ranks to the required standard if they can secure the requisite number of uniforms. They need about $500, about one-fifth of which, we learn, has already been pledged, and now the question is, how are they going to get the remainder? Wilmington should certainly be able to boast of one first-class military company, if no more; and the only way to accomplish this is for the people generally to become interested in the matter. Other towns and cities brag of their citizen soldiery, and why can't we bring ours up to the bragging standard and do the same? All the company needs is full ranks to make it the first in the State, and the material is not lackdaily at 3 P. M., except Tuesday, when it ing.
