THE PRESIDENT.

MANIFESTATIONS OF UNFAVORABLE SYMPTOMS—FLOW OF PUS FROM THE WOUND OBSTRUCTED—EARLY AND HIGH FEVER IN THE EARLY PART OF THE DAY, FOLLOWED BY REASSURING INDICATIONS—REFRESHING SLEEP AND HEALTHY ACTION OF THE WOUND—BREWED CONFIDENCE OF THE SURGEONS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 23.—The following bulletin was sent this morning to each of the Cabinet officers, by the President's Private Secretary:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 23, 8 A. M.—The slight fever which appeared last night, but which subsided during the night, is not noticeable this morning. This fever is due to local and temporary causes rather than to the President's condition. He is as well now as at the same hour yesterday morning, and this, taken into consideration with the fact that he did not sleep so well as on the previous night, seems to indicate a gain in his condition.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 23, 10 A. M.—The President was more restless last night, but this morning at 7 o'clock, while preparations were being made to dress his wound, his temperature rose to 100.4, respiration 19. At 7.30 he had a slight rigor, in consequence of which the dressing of his wound was postponed. Reaction followed promptly and the dressing was completed. At present his pulse is 110, temperature 101, respiration 24.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 23, 11.30 A. M.—Dr. Boylston who is just out of the President's chamber, attributes the sudden rise in the President's pulse and temperature to some obstruction in the way of the free discharge of the pus from the wound. Symptoms of obstruction were noticed along the track of the ball yesterday, and it is possible that this healing process, going on at some point comparatively near to the external surface of the body, has dammed up the pus in the deeper part of the wound, and that the chill and increased fever are to be thus accounted for. The discharge this morning, although perfectly normal and healthy in its character, was unusually scanty, which would seem to indicate that its flow had been in some way impeded or interrupted. The chill mentioned in the official bulletin commenced about 8 o'clock and lasted until 9, being quite severe, the pulse running up at once to 130. At this hour the fever is said to be gradually disappearing and the patient's condition is considered better than when the bulletin was issued.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—At 1.30 P. M. the President's symptoms were more favorable. At that hour the attending surgeons telegraphed to Drs. Hamilton and Agnew to come to Washington at once for consultation. At 2.30 P. M. Secretaries James, Kirkwood, and Hunt, who had a consultation with the attending surgeons, requested that a statement be made upon their authority that the President's pulse and temperature were falling, and that his general condition was improving.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 23, 7 P. M.—After the bulletin of 10 A. M. the President's fever continued. At 11.30 A. M. he had again a slight rigor, and his temperature subsequently rose, until at 12.30 P. M. it was 104, pulse 125, respiration 26. Between this hour and 1 P. M. perspiration made its appearance, and the temperature began to fall gradually. It is now 101.7, pulse 118, respiration 22. A free discharge of pus from the wound during the day.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 23, 8 P. M.—After the bulletin of 10 A. M. the President's fever continued. At 11.30 A. M. he had again a slight rigor, and his temperature subsequently rose, until at 12.30 P. M. it was 104, pulse 125, respiration 26. Between this hour and 1 P. M. perspiration made its appearance, and the temperature began to fall gradually. It is now 101.7, pulse 118, respiration 22. A free discharge of pus from the wound during the day.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 23, 8.30 P. M.—The President's condition is now improved since noon. His pulse is now below 100, and his general symptoms show improvement. There is not the slightest indication of pyæmia, which is the danger most to be feared.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, 8.30 P. M.—In reply to telegraphic inquiry, Attorney General McCay sent the following dispatch at 8.30 P. M.: The President's condition has slowly improved for several hours past, but is still a cause of anxiety. The consulting physicians have arrived.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, 10 P. M.—The explanation given by the attending surgeons of the unfavorable symptoms which manifested themselves in the earlier part of the day. The President is now asleep, and his pulse remains at about 100. It is the opinion of the attending surgeons that the chill and subsiding fever of this morning were caused by the formation of a pus cavity at some point along the track of the bullet, but this cannot be positively asserted until after the evening examination. Dr. Bliss says that he has in his practice seen cases where the formation of a pus cavity in the wound was followed by a much severer chill and higher fever than the President has had to-day, and that it is not necessarily an alarming feature in a case of this kind.

CONKLING. HIS ACKNOWLEDGMENTS TO THE SPARTAN BAND. (By Telegram to the Morning Star.) New York, July 23.—When Mr. Conkling received the dispatch advising him of the election of Latham, at Albany, he immediately sent the following telegram: New York, July 23.—To Hon. James Armstrong, member of the Assembly, Albany.—The heroic constancy of the Spartan band which stood so long for principle and truth has my deepest gratitude and admiration. Borne down by forbidden and abhorrent forces and agencies which never before had any way in the Republican party, the memory of their courage will long live in the highest honor, and the near future will vindicate their wisdom and crown them with approval. Please ask them all for me to receive my most grateful acknowledgments.

ROSCOE CONKLING. ELECTED TO SPARKS. Major A. D. Banks, a former resident of Virginia and prominent politician, died at Fort Monroe, Virginia, yesterday. A fire originating in a junk store on Peters street, New Orleans, destroyed three business houses adjoining. Loss over $100,000.

At New Orleans Henry Fisher, eleven years of age, and William Brien, age not known, were drowned yesterday while bathing in the river.

At Port Royal, S. C., an engineer named Blake, on board the U. S. steam launch Seaweed, was blown overboard while asleep on deck Friday night and drowned.

The walls of the Assembly chamber at Albany, New York, were yesterday morning repaired with handsomely decorated and executed plaques, reading: "For President in 1884, Winfield Scott Hancock."

TO MINISTER LONELY. At 10 o'clock to-night the President's symptoms are better; pulse, temperature and respiration are improved. The dressing of his wound has left, and there is no reappearance of chill.

UNOFFICIAL BULLETIN. EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 23, 11 P. M.—The President's pulse has fallen to 100, and he is now sleeping without any manifestations of restlessness or unfavorable indications. Drs. Agnew and Hamilton did not think it best to disturb him by making an examination to-night, and did not even see him, but had a consultation of an hour and three-quarters with the attending surgeons. They expressed gratification at finding his symptoms much more favorable than they had anticipated. All the surgeons have now left the Mansion except Drs. Bliss and Woodward, who are on duty.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE. EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS IN SWITZERLAND AND FRANCE—SEVERE STORMS IN AUSTRIA—BULGARIAN AFFAIRS—FRANCE AND TURKEY, ETC.

(By Cable to the Morning Star.) LONDON, July 23.—An earthquake occurred at half-past 2 o'clock Friday morning in Switzerland and in the eastern part of France. At Geneva bells were rung and houses shaken. At Morges the furniture in dwellings was upset, and there was great excitement, but no casualties. It was also reported at Berne, and at Lyons and Grenoble, France.

Two great thunder storms occurred at Vienna Thursday and Friday, which lowered the almost unendurable temperature prevailing for some days past.

The death is announced of the Most Rev. Daniel McCarthy, D. D., Roman Catholic Bishop of Kennebec. He was consecrated August 25th, 1878.

PARIS, July 23.—The Kappeler, Justice and Intransigent, Radical newspapers, attack the Republique Francaise and Gauche for their recent articles against Turkey. The Kappeler says: "If the object of our efforts be no longer in Europe, close to our own frontier; if it is in Asia, or Africa, or America; that we must seek compensation for the loss of Alsace-Lorraine, let us have the courage to openly say so. It is possible that France will oppose such a policy, but until we are quite sure she does not approve it the applause of Bismarck can only fail to satisfy us." La Justice says: "We are of pen and ink warriors. We saw them at work in 1870. After ten years of silence they resumed courage and shouted a Zuntz, as they used to shout a Berlin. Well they have gone to Tunis, and the result is Algeria is in flames and Europe disturbed and hostile. Tunis is having to be occupied with great difficulty, at great cost, and nobody can tell what this may not force upon us. Now they are beginning to shout a Tripoli—a trace to such insanity!"

Twenty-five pupils of the military school at St. Cyr have been expelled for attending mass on Count de Chambord's birthday, and will be sent to a regiment to serve five years as second class soldiers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 23.—A Cabinet Council discussed for twenty hours the subject of sending large reinforcements to Tripoli. A majority of the ministers advocated the step.

A high religious functionary has given it as his opinion that only the two actual murderers of Abdul Aziz can be lawfully executed.

The death is announced of Horace Norwood. He was for forty years pastor of the Reformed Church and honorary chairman of the Marseilles Protestant Consistory. He was a member of the venerated Norwood family, which has included several eminent evangelists.

WIMBLEDON. THE ENGLISH RIFLEMEN BEAT THE CANADIANS. (By Telegram to the Morning Star.) WIMBLEDON, July 23.—In the shooting match between the team of six Canadians and the team of six English riflemen, the Canadians were selected from the teams which participated in the competition for the Echo Shield, the scores were as follows: 800 yards—England 424, Canada 400; 900 yards—England 418, Canada 382; 1,000 yards—England 388, Canada 347. Total—England 1,232, Canada 1,105.

FINANCIAL. NEW YORK STOCK MARKET—DULL AND FLUCTUATIONS SLIGHT. (By Telegram to the Morning Star.) NEW YORK, July 23, 11 A. M.—The stock market was dull about matters of change in prices, and the dealings were of a very small scale. The fluctuations were extremely slight except in the case of Memphis & Charleston, which declined 3 per cent. Toledo, Del. & Bur. rose 1 per cent. to 29 1/2, and Western Union declined 1 per cent. to 82.
