inevitable. It may be deferred for a few years, but it will come. In the speech of Gambetta on Sunday last, for France political speeches are made of that nature as well as on any other. He displayed a boldness that was foolhardy. He is reported as declaring that "France had had more steadfast hearts and if virtue, patriotism and courage and disdain for material enjoyments had more than made up for the inferiority of her arms."

THE PACES IN SCHOOLS.
Philadelphia has another trouble. The Legislature decreed that there should be no distinction in the city schools, but that the public schools should be open to all children of both races. This effort to mix the races is proving troublesome. One of the schools refused to receive a negro child. The Times is strong for both sides in the same schools. This is all nonsense. We want to say that the editors of that paper do not send their children to schools attended by negroes. They are not so stupid as to do so. They are not so stupid as to do so. They are not so stupid as to do so.

Green wrote to Baron Steuben that "such conduct would have graced the veterans of the great King of Prussia." The Duke of Orange, and others in his army, were reported to have been the officers and men of the militia who formed the front line in the order of battle, and sustained the attack.
