The New York Times talks as if Conkling would go into the Cabinet after January 1 next.

As soon as Congress adjourns the President will go to New York. He can then see Grant and Conkling every day.

Senator Vance was to have spoken in New York, at Cooper Institute, on Wednesday night, at a mass meeting of anti-monopolists.

Blanche Douglass was arrraigned and accused by the State of administering arsenic to Jennie Cramer, thereby causing her death.

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston has visited recently Charlotte and Raleigh. North Carolinians hold this great soldier in high esteem.

The regular Democratic ticket in Baltimore for Mayor and Judge of the Court of Appeals was elected, and that too in spite of a split.

Grant is credited with having abandoned finally his third term aspirations. He is content probably to be "the power behind the throne."

The talk in Washington among the Stalwarts is that Conkling will go into the Cabinet certain after awhile. The Stalwarts are said to wear a very Five "small boys" have run off from Philadelphia to help "kill the Indians." More victims of trashy novels. Catch 'em, thrash 'em and put them to bed hungry.

Two New York men made a bet of $10, and referred it to Dana, of the Sun. The question was, who was the bigger fraud, Haves or Vennor? Dana did not wink his eye before he said Hayes, and he said right.

Louisville Courier-Journal had the following editorial paragraph a few days ago:

'Gladstone, in his Leeds speech, praised Mr. Dillon as a model patriot, a loyal and devoted subject of the Queen; but a few lays afterward the same Gladstone had Dillon thrust into Kilmainham prison. The Premier seams to have lost his balance of late. He is certainly 'a little off.'

It seems to be a favorite. It has appeared already in a leading Georgia daily and in a North Carolina daily as original editorial.

It is mentioned that Confederate bonds are still being registered in London. The Times of October 8th contained an advertisement signed by David B. Lindsay, Clerk, No. 80, Coleman street, London, E. C., which began as follows: TO A A A A "The Confederate States of America Loans (Dollar and Cotton Bonds.)—Notice. —All holders of dollar and cotton bonds of the various series issued by the Confederate States of America, from 1861 to 1864 inclusive, willing to cooperate with and en-trust their interest to the committee ap-pointed in pursuance of the resolution passed at the meeting of the bondholders held on the 81st day of May, 1881, at the Cannon Street Hotel, are requested to send in their bonds to the office of the committee, No. 80 Coleman street, London, for the purpose of having them stamped and regis-tered in view of the proposed negotiations by the committee for an equitable adjust-ment of the debt represented by the bonds to be registered.

What this means we know not. It is suggested that the purchase now going on is on speculation.

Carpet-bagger Tourgee's new play is a failure evidently, we rejoice to believe. That blatant organ of Stalwartism, the Philadelphia Press, damns it with the faintest praise possible. It was tried at the Arch-Street Theatre. The Press says:

"As a political novel Judge Tourgee's work is an important contribution to current literature, but the time is hardly ripe as yet for the dramatic presentation of such a topic. * * * Uncle Tom's Cabin is not yet a favorite play in the South, and Diplomacy and the Danicheffs are not for Russia. Therefore, A Fool's Errand, which was first played last night at the Arch, appeals to only a part of a whole, and its sentiments can never awaken a responsive feeling in the heart of every one in the audience. * * * The author has set too much store upon his cherished lines to give the dramatist a fair chance."

The Times says it was a failure. Good!

The behavior of the Massachusetts roughs sent South to kick up a row has not been commented upon among our Northern exchanges as it deserved to be. If a Southern regiment had so disgraced themselves in Boston or any Northern city we would not have heard the last of it for a half century to come. The Richmond State says moderately:

"The unfortunate episode of the Massa chusetts Ninth Regiment at our Centennial should be a warning to us all, North and South, to be very careful of the character of the men we allow to go from home to represent the people and their manners upon any and all occasions."

A Good Day for 'Possums. A party in Messrs. Hall & Pearsall's alley baited a trap for rats on Thursday night, and yesterday morning, when he went to look after the same, he found a fine 'possum in the trap. This was a little singular, but we should not have thought so much of the circumstance but for the fact that, a few minutes after being informed of it, we learned from Wm. Hill, porter at the New Hanover Bank, that he had that morning caught a 'possum sitting in one of the basement windows of the bank. Truly it was a good morning for 'possums, especially when the locality is taken into consideration. The two must have come in town together on a "big tare."

The Twentieth North Carolina. We have received a "postal" circular, adsed to the "Survivors of the Twentieth North Carolina Regiment," by their former commander, Col. T. F. Toon, suggesting that they form survivors' associations for each company, elect officers, and collect all authentic information possible in regard to the regiment and forward it to him at Fair Bluff, Columbus county, N. C., when he will compile and furnish the same to Col. Moore, now writing a history of North Carolina Troops. He begs a letter from each surviving member of the regiment, and says that Maj. N. SNATCHED FROM DEATH. Narrow Escape of Mr. John W. Reilly from Death by Suffocation at the

Yesterday morning, about 10 o'clock.

Wilmington Gas Works.

Wilmington Gas Works, made a very narrow escape from death. There is an upright boiler attached to the works, known as a "scrubber," which is filled with brush, etc., through which, entering by a pipe at the top, the gas passes and becomes purified or separated from the tar, and then passes out through a pipe at the bottom into the syphons, thence through the purifying pans and on to the gasometer. On Thursday this boiler was cleaned out to the extent of the removal of the old brush, which had been in there for some time, with the intention of substituting new. This boiler stands on a brick foundation, and has two doors for entrance: one near the top and the other about three feet from the bottom. Mr. Reilly entered by the lower door to make some necessary repairs to the foundation, and had a colored employe on the outside to pass him bricks as he should need them. The work went on for awhile, and at last the colored man asked Mr. Reilly if he wanted more brick, and received no answer. He repeated the question, but still received no reply. Then, thinking something was wrong, he looked in at the opening, saw that Mr. R.'s head appeared to be drooping down between his legs, as he was stooping down to his work in the boiler, and gave him a shake, at the same time repeating the question, "Do you want more brick?" Then it was he discovered that Mr. Reilly was insensible, and it was known that he had be come suffocated by the gas and foul air still remaining in the boiler. The man immediately gave the alarm, and Mr. R. was drawn out of the boiler. In the meantime Capt. W. A. Cumming, who heard the cries of the men, hastened to the spot and dispatched messengers for physicians. Dr. J. T. Schonwald, Jr., was the first to arrive, and was speedily followed by two or three others. Meanwhile Mr. Reilly had been placed on an elevated cot, and the usual remedies and restoratives in such cases were then resorted to with vigor, and after the lapse of over an hour, during which the efforts of the physicians and others knew no diminution, the sufferer began to show signs of returning consciousness, and it was not long afterwards before he had sufficiently revived to warrant his removal in a buggy to his residence on Sixth, between Dock half-past eleven o'clock. The resuscitation of Mr. Reilly under the circumstances was almost a miracle, and had he remained one minute longer in the boiler death would in all probability have been certain. In fact, it was thought when assistance first arrived that life was extinct. At last accounts, about 6 p. m., Mr. Reilsionary. Many of our citizens listened with great deal of pleasure and profit, on Thursday night, at the First Baptist church, to an address or lecture delivered by Rev. W. W. Colley, for several years a missionary in Central Africa. In front of the pulpit and facing the audience was a large map of Africa, and as the speaker proceeded with his interesting description of Africa, the scenes and incidents connected with his long sojourn in that barbarous country, and his arduous labors for the evangelization of the people, he pointed out the locations referred to and thus added very materially to the interest. The address was one in every way calculated to enlist the sympathies of the people in favor of foreign missions, and those who were present were very favorably impressed by the earnest manner of the speaker, his manly and dignified bearing, and the signal ability he displayed in the handling of his subject. To add to the interest of the occasion, he exhibited many curiosities in the shape of articles manufactured by the natives, including mats, fans, cloth, hats, implements of husbandry, images worshipped by them, etc. The returned missionary is colored—a rather light mulatto-but a man of fine presence and excellent delivery. The large audience, including quite a number of colored people in the galleries, listened with marked attention to the remarks of the speaker and were evidently well pleased.

A Fight Among Circus Men.

An Atlanta, Ga., dispatch of the 26th states that after the performance at Coup's circus the night previous at Cartersville, Ga., a difficulty occurred between some of the circus men and deputy marshals and others. A negro was shot in the head and killed. Others were badly beaten and bruised. Two of the circus men were shot. Whiskey was at the bottom of the trouble. A lion and a bear escaped from their cages during the melee. The bear was shot and killed. The lion is still at large. Considerable excitement prevailed at last accounts.

The only case before the Mayor's Court yesterday morning was that of a party who purchased a beef without its first having been weighed, in violation of a law of the State, to which both buyer and seller are amenable, requiring all beef cattle to be weighed before changing hands in the mar-

- Capt. Jones, of the Schr. E. Frances, from New River, reports that a piece of a vessel was found on the beach at that place a few days since, which had painted on it the words "N. W. Drew, Lake City Mills, Florida," and that subsequently the wreck of a vessel, apparently about one hundred and fifty tons burthen, was discovered about two miles out from the inlet, bottom upward. She was badly broken up and her cargo of lumber was rapidly washing out of her, and drifting off. No signs of

WHO IS MRS. WINSLOW?—As this question is frequently asked, we will simply say that she is a lady who for upwards of thirty years has untiringly devoted her time and talents as a female Physician and nurse, principally among children. She has especially studied the constitution and wants of this numerous class, and, as a result of this effort, and practical knowledge, obtained in a lifetime spent as a nurse and physician, she has compounded a Soothing Syrup for children teething. It operates like magic—giving rest and health, and is, moreover, sure to regulate the bowels. In consequence of this article Mrs. Winslow is becoming world-renowned as a benefactor of her race; children certainly do rise up and bless her; especially is this the case in this city. Vast quantities of the Soothing Syrup are DAILY sold and used here. We think Mrs. Winslow has immortalized her name by this invaluable article, and we sincerely believe thousands of children have been saved from an early grave by its timely use, and that millions yet unborn will share its benefits, and unite in calling her blessed. No MOTHER has discharged her duty to her suffering little one, in our opinion, until she has given it the benefit of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. Try it, mothers—TRY IT NOW—Ladies' Visitor, New York City. Sold by all druggists. 25 cts. a bottle.
