The Company have recently purchased and placed in the factory several thousand dollars worth of new and the most improved machinery, manufactured at Manchester, England. - Mr. William Haithcock, of this place, has several apple trees on which are ripe apples, being the second crop of this year. He was twice arrested. For the first the State paid a reward of two hundred dollars and the county of Moore five hundred dollars, and for the second arrest the State paid two hundred dollars, making nine hundred dollars paid for his two trials; and the costs of his imprisonment and trial were as much more, a total cost of nearly two thousand dollars. A few such cases would bankrupt a county. This case is a striking illustration of the costliness of

A. Daniels, near this place, and found the distiller "mashing in" in the absence of the storekeeper. They returned to town and the following day visited the distillery and found that the stills had been moved and that all the whiskey had been taken from the warehouse. We had a call yesterday from Col. Walter Southgate, Press Agent for Forepaugh's big show, which is to be here on the 12th inst., and he informs us that the circus will be entirely free from all the objectionable features usually attendant upon such exhibitions; that "amusement free from vulgarity or insult" will be the order of each performance, and that families and children will be protected from all improprieties. We are also requested to state that, as the performance here will be positively the last of the season of 1881, and the entire aggregation is en routs to Philadelphia, with plenty of time to spare, the management announce that the usual custom of "cutting the performance short" will not occur. The show will last until 10.45 or 11 P. M. We understand that the employees will all be paid off here and that, as above intimated, the show will go from here to Philadelphia, where it will go into winter

A LOOK BACKWARD. Extracts from the Diary of a Wilmingtonian-1862.

We resume our extracts from the Diary in reference to the terrible scourge in this city in 1862, drawing a little more from that part of it which relates to matters in the earlier stages of the disease after the record was commenced:

October 3.-Report for yesterday thirtyfour new cases and eleven deaths, among the last Cyrus Van Amringe. One death at Wrightsville. Those who moved to the Sound are bad off for medicine and doctors: several cases reported; this disease demands quick treatment. Every government de-partment is closed and officers scattered, save the commissary-Capt. D., and all his clerks at their post. There is consolation in the thought that if any of us shall be sick we will have best medical attention and nursing-being acquainted with all the physicians and in good employ—have been advised to stay at home. Gen. R- gave permission for the departments to seek refuge anywhere in this vicinity, and some have gone to the Sound, the woods, Fort Fisher and Smithville, but we have remained so long, think it best to remain, under medical advice. P. W. Fanning sick since Monday—called to-day and found him abed-he still directs in the matter of his sanitary duties, in which he is now and has been for some days kindly assisted by Jas. F. Post. * * * The general rule now to be observed is: Be within doors before sunset; avoid the night air; early to bed; keep out of the sun; cultivate a peaceful mind; regular habits, and go along smooth, if you can; weather warm, pleas ant and bright.

October 5-Reported 43 new cases since yesterday; the number of deaths it is impossible to ascertain; burials in cemetery is our guide; many are disposed to believe that there are more deaths than reported; it is conceded the average is 15 daily. It is as much as the well can do to attend to the sick; we need help to bury the dead. The authorities are doing their best, but most of them are overworked and broken down. You may form some idea of the sickness when I mention that at Meares' drug store over one hundred prescriptions were compounded yesterday. Lippitt is sick at the Sound; store closed. We need apothecaries, more nurses and help. Our sister communities have sent us ample provisions for the present. The fever shows no signs of abatement. It is said upon good authority that the disease is in almost every innabited house. Since my return the weather has been warm and close—as hot I think as June; favorable for the spread of the fever; the morning shows heavy dews, but no fog; it reminds me of the cholera epidemic at Poughkeepsie in 1853. The churches are all closed to-day. Revs. Drane, Pritchard and Father Murphy are the only ministers of God here; they are every one doing their full duty. The usual salutation is, "How do you feel to-day? What news of the fever?" and inquiries for friends. To those who have remained the advice is, stay at home and be prudent. Many who have fled have died from neglect. Ah, where shall we go? Every place is closed against us. It is best to make the stand here and fight it out; here we will have good medical attention and friends who will do their best. Captain Hallett is reported sick. No mustard in October 10.-Fever continues without any decrease; the deaths are less, yielding more readily to the trealment. J. L. died suddenly. The weather continues warm; rain last night. E. writes from the Sound that he is well; that connection is almost cut off from one place to another en account of the fever breaking out. There is sickness at Jewett's, McRae's and at Masonboro. Tell George no freights out north as yet Wilmington presents the most gloomy aspect; in truth, these are dreadful times; the greatest affliction is upon us. When will the end come?

October 18 .- The "Journal slip" will in form you in regard to the fever—a fearful mortality for the week past; no abatement of new cases: deaths are fewer than during the first part of the week. There is so much suffering and distress that, for the purpose of more united action, an association has been formed to co operate with the authorities, more especially for feeding the needy and more prompt rendering of aid. One committee is to visit every house, relieve and report wants and needs. Much good may be done in this way. No intelligence from the Sound-hear of no new cases. Smithville reports thirteen cases and four deaths-all by rumor. For two days had quite cool weather; frost is looked for. There must be suffering should cold comenot a cord of wood in town for sale. We are completely cut off from the rest of mankind. Every boat on the river stopped; no market carts; railroads are no better, all the operatives being away. Rev. Mr. Pritchard was taken down today; three in his house sick. Dr. A. is sick. Medical stores were received to-day, sent up from the fatal steamer Kate—a good supply. Since Medical Purveyor Boykin's departure Major W. L. Young has found the store room key and is kindly dispensing what medicines and stimulants he has in store The Major is in command of the battalion quartered between here and the coast moved out on account of the fever. He comes to town every day, "coming late and going early," but may be found at the Med-ical Purveyor's storehouse—north side of Dock-generally about noon. The government stores of provisions, medicines and liquors have been generously dispensed by the officers and have relieved much dis

Caught in the Act.

Every Tuesday for several weeks past Mr. Bordeaux, who keeps a grocery at the southwest corner of Market and Water streets, has been unfortunate in having a ham stolen from him, but was unable to detect the thief. Yesterday, however, his suspicions having been aroused against a certain colored individual, a watch was kept, and at last the man who was suspected came in, watched his opportunity, seized a ham and was making off with it, when a brother of the proprietor, who was a witness to the whole transaction, walked up to the fellow, knocked him down and held him until a policeman came and took him to the guard house, where he gave his name as Lewis Jackson. The case will probably come up before the Mayor this morning.

Guiteau could never sleep at proper hours; cursed with abnormal activity, his nerves were always on the qui vive. Could he have had the soothing benefit of Dr. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills, his wretched brains would not have raged with improper fancies.
