VOL. XXIX,---NO. 82.

WILMINGTON, N. C., SATURDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1881.

The North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, is the largest body of the kind in the connection, we believe. Is it not about time that one of its members should be raised to the Episcopate? Virginia has had Early and Doggett; South Carolina has had Capers and Wightman. Why should not North Carolina have one? It has as good material, we are sure, as some we have seen manufactured into Bishops. It is understood that at least three Bishops are to be elected at the General Conference of 1882. We have noticed in the papers speculations as to who they will be. One from Virginia is among the number, but none from North Carolina. A hint.

A lawyer by the name of Appleton Morgan has written a book to prove that Shakespeare did not write his plays but only edited them. It is said to be interesting and ingenious. Lord Bacon used to be saddled with the authorship by literary cranks. This is the age of vionoclasm. Many historical myths have been exploded. After Morgan we shall hear no more of Shakespeare. Farewell, a long farewell to all thy greatness. A Mr. Burr, of Washington, has made another discovery equally mighty. He has found out that Tom Paine wrote the letters of Junius-stat nominis umbra.

It is announced that John Kelly and President Arthur have fused or pooled their issues. The Philadelphia Times says of this new alliance:

"The coalition between President Arthur York. Kelly will give the Stalwarts the control of the Legislature, and Arthur will give Kelly his reward in legislative protection for his local power. As Boss Kelly elected Cornell and Garfield, there is fitness in his distinct recognition by the Stalwart

- Mr. J. G. Rencher, of Chatham, replies pointedly to the very pointed card of Dr. J. M. Worth, State Treasurer, who therein defended his action in the Best Midand matter and other matters and went for Mr. Rencher and others. Mr. Rencher says in conclusion: "It is a bad sign when the policy of an official cannot be criticised by those most directly affected by his action, without being threatened with "hard and harsh things," which are only pitifully withheld because the writer hopes to make more by the innuendo than the publication. - Goldsboro Messenger: Senator Vance has introduced a petition of citizens of Warren county, praying relief against the discriminations and extortionate charges of railroads. — The grand opening of the Messenger Opera House, which took place on Wednesday night, was an important and enjoyable event in the history of Goldsboro. — Those good friends of Goldsboro who so generously contributed toward providing so handsome a suror Goldsboro who so generously contrib-uted toward providing so handsome a sur-prise for this editor last week, have our sincerest thanks. A negro behaving on Mr. Foucette's premises. - Maj. W. A. Hearne writes to the Raleigh News-Observer as follows: This Midland project is not the dream of a visionary enthusiast, but a living reality. The old Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, from Beaufort harbor to Goldsboro, ninetyflye miles, has been merged into the Midland, and its extension, in the direction of Salisbury, has been graded and practically bridged and tied to Smithfield, in Johnston county, a distance of twenty-two miles, and now only awaits the iron, the Welsh consular invoices of two ship loads of which are already in the hands of the Collector of Customs at Beaufort. I have been over the entire line of railroad work from Smithfield to Goldsboro, and nothing approaching it has ever fallen under my observation. The grading and road bed are all first-class in every respect, while in the matter of superstructure, North Carolina and the South have never seen such railway construction. The trestles are fourteen feet on top, after the English method, and so perfectly fitted and braced as to defy an accident from any passing train. The culverts, etc., are of the same character of work, and Mr. Brown, the superintendent of structure, has the proud satisfaction of knowing that he has "got in" the best railroad work in the State.

- Kinston Journal: Hon. J. W. Shackleford introduced a bill in the House of Representatives on Friday. December 17th, to provide for the survey of New and White Oak rivers, which was referred to the committee on Commerce. - One after another of the "exodusters" to Indiana last year return to their old homes. Some bring tales of suffering and woe, while others give a more favorable account, and say that by industry and economy one can live in that country, If a living is what is wanted it is no use to leave North Carolina, for many obtain it here without economy and with but little labor. There may be a political significance connected with the return as well as with the leaving. The Republicans would like to master the situation in North Carolina the coming year. --- Mr. E. B. Isler, of Jones county, sums up his crop of cotton and corn for the year 1881, with seven plows, to be 65 bales of cotton and 490 barrels of corn. —La Grange items: A meeting expressive of the sentiments of the citizens in regard to the proposed railroad from Clinton via Faison's and White Hall to this place, was held here on Wednesday night of last week. The meeting was very largely attended, and showed that the people were in full sympathy with the movement. A delegation was appointed to attend a meeting at White Hall the next day. The meeting at that place, I learn, was attended by nearly all the prominent citizens of the community, and a disposition was shown to encourage the work. —Plenty of water in Neuse river. The steamer Neuse will make regular trips. — Raleigh News-Observer: The "Vokes Family" is billed for Tucker Hall. - Governor Jarvis is at Greenville spending the holidays. —The negroes will have but a poor celebration of the first of January, "Emancipation Day," it is said. There is much dissension among them in regard to some of the persons chosen to take part in the exercises of the day. Rev. H. M. Tupper requests us to say that at present there is no sickness at Shaw University. — Monday evening, about dusk, as Fab. Fowle, son of Hon. D. G. Fowle, was walking in company with a son of Mayor Manly, a burly negro suddenly ran up, and, grasping a watch chain worn by the former lad, jerked it away, pulling the watch with it. The watch was of gold and quite handsome, and was the property of Mrs. Fowle, who prized it highly. The thief made good his escape, though pursued.

On Monday night Mr. John Harp, a farmer who lives about eight miles from this city, on the road to the Falls of Neuse Paper Mills, indulged in the Christmas sport of fooling with fire crackers, his sons assisting. The night being exceedingly stormy, with wind and rain, they used the second floor of the house as the scene of When they had "popped" all the fire crackers they went down stairs and sat by the fire. After a time they heard a sudden crash and roar and saw a bright light. Rushing out doors they were astonished at seeing that the entire upper story of the house was in flames, and that parts of it had fallen in. Above the noise of the wind they could hear the roar of the flames, while the rain, which fell in torrents, seemed not to be able to check the fire in the least. The terrified family were only able to save a little bedding from the house, which, with all of its other contents, was totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at about $2,500, with no insurance.

HEINSBERGER-A happy new year to all. Selling Liquor to Miners. A case was before one of the Justices vesterday, where it was shown by the evidence that the defendant sold a bottle of whiskey to a couple of small boys, since the commencement of the holidays, upon which one of the little fellows got thoroughly intoxicated, the said sale being in violation of the law which prohibits the sale of spirituous liquors to minors. The defendant was adjudged guilty and required to enter into bond in the sum of $100 for his appearance before the next term of the Criminal Court.

Rather Unpleasant Adventure. Quite an adventure befell one of our country friends, here on a shopping expedition, as he was about departing for his home yesterday afternoon, about 3 o'clock. He came to town in an ox cart and had almost literally filled the vehicle with the purchases he had made, when he drove down to the foot of Market street with the view of going across the river on the ferry flat, and thence to his home in Brunswick county. In the meantime our friend occupied a geat in the cart and awaited the return of the flat, when the ox, suddenly becoming impatient at the delay, marched deliberately into the dock, cart and all, before he could be restrained by the driver, who jumped off into the water, where it came up about to his armpits, and returned to the wharf. The ox, however, kept steadily on, commencing to swim as soon as he got to the proper depth, and had reached a point nearly half way the river, when he suddenly changed his notion, and turning around, swam back to the east side of the river again, making his way out on the wharf as best he could. In the meantime, while out on the river, the wheels came off the cart and several bundles floated out, and, after drifting a short distance, until thoroughly saturated with water, went to the bottom-all but one glass bottle, containing some kind of a fluid, which sailed off majestically down the river, head and neck erect, and bobbing up and down among the little wavelets as it followed the current oceanward. The wheels were subsequently recovered, with the assistance of some of the sympathizing but amused spectators, and our rural friend finally got safely across the river and wended his way homeward.

A Street Scene. The interesting spectacle of a man and his mother on the street in a state of intoxication shocked the sensibilities of unwilling spectators on Front and Market streets yesterday, and the fact that the old lady was knocked down once or twice by her affectionate offspring, by way of variety, did not add materially to the attractiveness of the scene. They were accommodated with quarters in the station Watch Night Meeting.
