markable coming from the great Tory organ. But our space is up, although there are dozens of things we would like to quote.

Mr. William H. Hayne, of Georgia, in a critical review of Mrs. Margaret J. Preston, in the Philadelphia American, mentions very great praise that was bestowed upon a poem written by her on the recovery of the Prince of Wales. We copy:

"Here is a newspaper paragraph that speaks for itself. We are sure that it will gratify Mrs. Margaret J. Preston of Virginia to be informed that H. R. H., the Princess of Wales, has written us a letter of thanks for her beautiful poem, 'Sandringham,' republished in The London Spectator."

We have regarded Mrs. Preston as a true poet ever since 1865, when we read her war poem entitled 'Beachbrook.' But we confess, after regarding her as a Southern singer of no mean parts, we were much disturbed when we learned that she did not have a drop of Southern blood in her veins, but was of Pennsylvania parentage and birth.

Walt Whitman says in The Critic of Poe, that "there is an indescribable magnetism about the poet's life and reminiscences as well as poems." We have long regarded Poe as a wonderful genius in verse, and this combined with his remarkable stories and his critical powers, has given him, in our judgment, a position equal to that of any author in American literature.

In England five times as much tea as coffee is drunk. In 1848 Great Britain had a population ten millions less than in 1881, and yet it consumed 5,000,000 pounds more than it did last year.

There is a project on foot to erect a monument at Charlotte to the memory of the Mecklenburg patriots of 1775. Senator Bayard has written a letter to Col. Wharton J. Green, in which he says:

"Will it not be possible to have a strong, impressive monumental column raised at Charlotte to the memories of the 'signers' of the Declaration of Independence, by Thorensen, the most admirable type of such commemoration, and it dignifies immensely the ninety-odd Swiss, who were only military police at the palace of Versailles, serving for money only in a foreign country, but who fell the post?"

Rev. John B. Williams, a native of Johnston county, but now of the diocese of Maryland, delivered the Alumni Address at Randolph Macon College, Va. The Richmond Dispatch says of it:

The Radical Raleigh correspondent of the Philadelphia Times thus puts the difference between Mahoneism and Johnstonianism. He telegraphs as follows on the 14th inst:

"The success of the so-called liberal movement in the Old Dominion has evidently given impetus to the one proposed in this State. The difference in this alliance is that instead of the Democrats taking charge of it here, as is the case with Mahone and his lieutenants, the Republicans in North Carolina are at the head of it. An allusion made in a speech delivered in convention to-day by temporary chairman Judge Russell to old John Brown's soul marching on was

POLITICAL POINTS.

—Some day the Egyptians will take Egypt as the Dutch once took Holland—why not let them take it now?—Springfield Republican, Ind. Rep.

—What is to be done with the surplus revenue from now until a Democratic majority in the House reforms the whole business?—Nashville American, Dem.

—The very least that the Arthur administration could do would be to send a letter of farewell to that gifted Statesman, the Hon. Charles J. Guiteau.—Atlanta Constitution, Dem.

—What a spectacle we have of slavishness, slave driving slave, one slave a little higher than the other, but still a slave—worst slave of all, the Boss—slave owned in Washington and permitted to come to Virginia to drive more slaves into Slalwart Radical pens.—Richmond State, Dem.

—The people are not attending side-shows this year so much as they were. Neither the tattered remnants of the bloody shirt, nor the virgin simplicity of an independent Sambo can turn the current which has set toward the broad and solid platform of democratic reform through and by the Democratic party.—Boston Post, Dem.

—The very essence of a free government, John C. Calhoun, "consists in considering offices as public trusts, to be bestowed for the good of the country, and not for the benefit of the individual who holds them; and that system of political morals which regards office to be used and enjoyed as their proper spoils, strikes a fatal blow at the very vitals of free institutions."

—The bodies of the two young men, Daniel Reedy and George Dexter, who were drowned in Hampton Roads last Sunday week, have been recovered.

—When Republicans become Liberals, then beware of the Liberals. This is the lesson to be learned from the recent political proceeding in North Carolina can possibly inspire.—Washington Post, Dem.

—Major Bellamy, who once was one of Georgia's most prominent slaveholders, now employs 1,000 negroes on his large plantation, and each family has a neat cabin, a vegetable garden and some fruit trees; a plantation church and a school are also maintained at the Major's expense. Some Northern employers should take a trip to Georgia and learn how to treat white workmen.

—Says the Richmond Whig: "The Bourbons' Fugate" call Massé's defenses of his treason to Readjustment 'Philippic.' Better call them 'Jackassics.' Whereupon the Hanover News rises to the classical remark that, as the orations of Demosthenes were called 'Philippics,' by the Athenians, so the orations of Mr. Massé's might very appropriately be called 'Jackassics' for a similar reason.

It is gratifying to hear that Mr. John B. Green, the historian, has gained health and strength during his residence at Mentone.

—Mr. Aubrey De Vere has a new volume of poems almost ready. Its title will be "The Foray of Queen Meave and other Legends of Ireland's Heroic Age."

—A final volume of Longfellow's poems, containing all that he wrote since the publication of "Ultima Thule," will be published shortly under the title of "In the Harbor."

—Mr. W. L. Courtney, Fellow and Tutor of New College, Oxford, has in the press of the Livingtons a volume of "Studies in Philosophy, Ancient and Modern."

—"Natural Religion," the work on which the author of "Eccle Homo" has been engaged for several years, comes almost unexpectedly and unexpectedly to the press. It was published last week in England by the Macmillans.

—Mr. Julian Hawthorne is at present living in the home of his boyhood, at Concord, Massachusetts, in the house now owned by his brother-in-law, Mr. Geo. P. Lathrop, and formerly occupied by his father, with whom he lived for many years before he came to Concord.

—The literature of the Tractarian movement will be immensely enriched by Mr. Mozley's volumes of "Reminiscences," which in an American edition has just issued from the Riverside Press. It will cause many who have read his "Apologetic" and Rev. William Palmer's "Narrative of Events" in the history of the "Tracts for the Times."

—Dr. Littledale's "Plain Reasons Against Joining the Church of Rome" has now reached its thirteenth thousand. The latest edition contains some 30 pages of new matter, and is a most valuable work. It was published by the Birmingham Oratory, entitled "Catholic Controversy," which has just been brought out by the Catholic Publication Society of New York, and is sold at a low price.
