EVENING EDITION

DESERTION OF PARTY DOES NOT INCREASE CONFIDENCE.

The most conspicuous failure in the history of North Carolina polities is the attempt of a few score of | powers of the South, and have been disappointed office-seekers in the Democratic party to set up a party | that have taken place in the South of their own under the leadership of have been due almost entirely to Mott, Ike Young, Moore, Jim Harris and a few other wool-dved Radicals. It has been a fizzle from the start, and in the Centre and West, where it was thought it would develop considerable strength, it is almost extinguished, and like an old-time tallow-dip, it will expire about November 2d with much spluttering and stinking. Where the Radicals will gain one vote by such an unnatural, unholy, and unwise alliance, they will lose two votes. And this ought to be the case. Why should the long tried men of that party be set aside to give prominence and office, if the people at large shall be stupid and to such heary-headed Democratic | but the work of recuperation and deoffice-seekers as Clingman, Johnston, Leach and Edwards? Why shall the goslings of Democracy who go limping into the Radical preserves be fed by the tender hands of Mott and Young and Jim Harris, the bribetaker, to the exclusion of the stout ducks of the Radical party who have been "quacking" and spluttering for so many years, trying to get their heads into the great National Radical dough-trough?

But this is not all. The fellows who deserted took the people of North Carolina for fools, and lo their mistake. They went masquerading in the thinnest, gausiest of all possible coverings, and as they pranced around, pirouetting and gambolling this way and that way, they thought all the time the people who looked on took them for "Liberals"-for members and avant-couriers of the "new party," without principles or ideas, that was to regenerate and disenthral and make glad the hearts of mankind. But how mistaken they were! The people gazed at the cavortings and at the very thinnish guise, and then they laughed as they saw the tail of the old Radical party hanging out behind, and saw, too, the hoofs and horns of the same old animal that had wrought so much mischief in the years gone by. So the only persons that have been fooled are the fellows who tried to deceive the people.

But why should any one be deceived by the "Liberal" farce? Who compose the company who are playing it? Men mainly who have been "acting" with the Democrats since serve and give control to the Democratic party. Why have they left it? Can there be but one answer? What is there in their antecedentsin their wisdom, unselfishness, devotion to principle-to make any one believe that a new party composed of such men will be any better than the party they have served for so long a time and deserted and which contains so much material so infinitely sounder than they are? Does a change of party cause also a change of character? Has Leach or Clingman or Folk or Edwards changed their true characters by changing political front? They gave to one party their allegiance, their professed support, the labor of their best years. They went off after office and set up a little concern of their own, leading Radicals and of the Revenue stamp at that being sponsors and parents of the new-fangled clap-trap affair. So no one is deceived by the "Liberal" dodge. The nickel-plated Democrats would do well to take down the

be donned and they will be better thought of if not better understood. Senator Garland, of Arkansas, in a recent circular letter addressed to the Democracy of his State, placed the question of desertion of party in this light. He asked:

sign. Let the old Radical garment

"He who crosses the ocean changes his sky not his soul; he who takes his hat and leaves the domicile of a party, after years of service in it, and crosses to the threshold of another party, to combat his old party, changes his base or location, but not necessarily his heart or his convictions or his methods of action. The pretence to the contrary is too etheral, if not too thin, to preach to flesh and blood. Therefore be not deceived in being asked to turn over to any new party. A new broom may sweep clean, but the old one knows best where the dirt is.

So do not allow yourselves to be deceived for one moment by the Democratic deserters in their persuasive blarney in behalf of a Mongrel Combination. When you vote for a Libeall practical intents and purposes. Do not desert the old ship in the midst of the storm.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

We are glad to notice that severa of the leading Southern papers have been discussing the recuperative showing that the vast improvements Southern men. We note this because it has been quite the fashion among Southern journalists to write about the need of Northern capital and Northern enterprise to rehabilitate and develop the South. This constant crying for help has acted in two directions; it has excited in the South hopes not to be realized, and it has provoked the North to put on an air of self-complacency and to look patronizingly down npon their "poor Southern brethren." A certain amount of self-reliance and self-determination are necessary for any people. The South has been aided and some good and true Northern men have blind and corrupt enough to consent, | moved in since the war, as before, velopment has been done by Southern men themselves.

> We would not claim more in this matter than we think is warranted by facts. In North Carolina, we are sure, that most of the enterprises of importance have been undertaken and carried out successfully by South ern men or Northern men long resident in the South. The men who have made the largest fortunes, with out an exception, we think, were born South of Maryland. We could mention a dozen of the most prosperous men in the State and they are al Southern, we believe, and most of them North Carolinians. The aid received from the North, whether in men or money, has not been one-

The Baltimore Day points to two cities to show that Southern men have done the work of rebuilding and developing. It says:

tenth as large as is supposed.

"As an illustration none better can be found than the natural progress of the city of Atlanta since the war, which has no parallel in Southern history, and its growth will be for all time a monument to Southern energy, Southern brains and Southern capital. The men who have made it are rincipally Georgians, South Carolinians Alabamians and Tennesseans. They furnished the brains which God gave them and the money which their hard labor had earned, the outside assistance being indeed scanty. Take another instance. A few months ago the prospectus for a milliondollar cotton mill was issued in Augusta, in the same State of Georgia, and one man in that city subscribed a hundred thousand dollars and one woman fifty thousand. It is true Northern capital was invested, but the majority of the stock was taken right there in Augusta. It has been just so ever since the war with industrial enterprises all over the South.' That our readers may see how the late Thomas G. Lowe impressed a scholar and divine of eminence, who the war, and some long before the is himself an orator and a preacher war. They have helped all they can of very rare powers, we copy to-day to make the Democratic party what | an article from the Raleigh Chrisit is. They have spent their best | tian Advocate from the pen of Rev. years in helping to build up, pre- Dr. Charles F. Deems, pastor of the Church of the Strangers, New York. It will be good Sunday reading.

In Maine the divorce business is neavy also. It is so much so that the Episcopal Bishop in a convention address was led to say this:

"The ratio of divorces to marriages in Maine is certainly not less than one to ten. This could never have happened against the protest or without the express or tacit consent of that portion of the community which profess fidelity to the revealed law of God, and implicit obedience to the precepts of Christ; and therefore it denotes either gross unfaithfulness or gross negligence on the part of Christian organizations in our midst. * * But I shall have no confidence in the effectiveness of any measures which are not based squarely and uncom-promisingly upon the Christian conception and law of marriage, as opposed to the civil-contract theory, and to all other theories which do not recognize in marriage a divine institution, imposing of itself peculiar and perpetual obligations which no human hand may justly assume to annul or modify.'

This is a serious charge about a very serious matter, and the worst part is that it is a true charge. So Massachusetts and Connecticut do not have it all to themselves in this undoing of the Divine law of marriage. There is no social ulcer in the South half as rank and as dangerous as this divorce ulcer in New England; their own people being the witnesses.

Senator Davis, of West Virginia, made an attempt to investigate the books of the United States Treasury. It was a task too great for Hercules or the lightning book-keeper. He discovered enough to show that Radical book-keepers did not understand the art of balancing by at least one hundred and fifty million dollars. This is bad book-keeping. Something very corrupt has been back of those figures. The Louisville Courier-Journal says:

"The Register's and Treasurer's books fail to agree within $144,577,678, and Boutwell himself admitted once that there was 'no check upon the accounts of the Register as to the public debt.' The books are known to be full of alterations and eraral you are voting for a Radical to | sures, which would be a disgrace to any

A novel is to be published pur porting to be by Nathaniel Hawthorne, the greatest American writer, Miss Una Hawthorne, Mr. Lathrop, son-in-law of the great novelist, and his wife Rose Hawthorne, all insist that there is no such novel. They say that their father left "a fragmentary and unfinished sketch." Per contra Mr. Julian Hawthorne, the son, and, with some marked gifts of his own, says they are mistaken, that there were two manuscripts, one fragmentary with parts of the plot, &c., the other elaborated in detail. He will publish the latter. It is entitled "Dr. Grimshawe's Secret." The title is Hawthorneish at least,

The Star Route trial will be long remembered because of the position of the defendants, the nature of .the accusations, the length of the trial, the impudence and effrontery of the criminals, the character of the defence, the efforts of so many papers to shield the rascals from an outraged public sentiment, and the attempt to bribe the jury. Long ago the public decided as to Dorsey, Brady and others that they were guilty. Judge Wylie seems to have been anxious to vindicate the law.

The papers in the North are still harping on the adulterations of cotton. It is said that the United States Consuls at St. Petersburg and Gothenburg have written to the State Department making heavy complaints. The New York Commercial Bulletin has an editorial upon the subject, and thinks there must be some good grounds for the complaints. That there is some cause for the complaint may be accepted as true, but that the adulterations are as extensive as has been charged we have seen no

Two noticeable political events have occurred. Luke Poland, whose memory is savoury, has been restored to public life by being elected to the United States House from Vermont. This is distressing. The other event is that "my dear Hubbell," the corrupt and bare-faced Radical fraud, who levied the two per cent. blackmail upon the women and poor clerks in the departments, has been defeated for renomination. This is en-

We see it stated that the Mormon missionaries have taken the people of Cleaveland county at their word, and have fled. Now they are moving, keep them at it. Let there be no rest for the wicked this side of Salt Lake or Salt River. But the latter is the delightful home of the disappointed politicians and deserters. Folk, Edwards, Dockery, Darby and company will take passage early in November. They would do well to pack their traps, for the hand-writing is on the wall. It reads-30,000 majority for the Democrats.

DR. DEEMS ON THOMAS G. LOWE.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

Rising from the perusal of Mr. Kingsbury's oration on the 'Life and Character of the Rev. Thomas G. Lowe," I feel impelled to lay my humble tribute beside this brilliant garland on the grave of North Carolina's

I do this with the mingled emotions produced by the recollections that Kingsbury was my pupil, and Lowe, for more than a quarter of a century, my devoted friend. From him I had many a token of affection and from my first knowledge of him I always loved him. We are friend and-friend. He was a "brother born for adversity." With the gentlest manners-manners which would not be unbefitting a pure maiden, there was in him a tenacity of purpose which quickly clung to his convictions and kept him to his moorings. I shall never cease to cherish the memory of the man who was so great and spotless in himself and to me such a noble, devoted friend.

In the spring of 1842 I was in New Berne. Under the ministry of John E. Edwards and John Todd Brame a great revival of religion occurred. I had just attained my majority and reached New Berne as Agent of the American Bible Society. There I preached twenty-eight times in twenty-five days, under circumstances I have never seen paralleled. Towards the close of the services Thomas G. Lowe arrived. He was tall, slender, sallow. He was gentle and unob-trusive. I was told that he was uneducated. He preached several sermons, the like of which I had never heard and have never heard since.

I shall not attempt to add to the full and fully deserved description of his powers which Mr. Kingsbury has made. But a few things I will mention. In preaching he was absorbed by his theme and gave no evidence of self-consciousness. The plans of his sermon seemed mapped by his imagination, rather than wrought out by his logical understanding, but they endured analytic examination. His arguments were pictures; but they were no daubs; they were master-pieces, many of them very beautiful, some of them gorgeous. His voice-oh! his voice-what miracles of music it wrought. I can even yet feel their delicious thrills along my nerves. I have heard Mr. Lowe and Dr. Hawks. These will never be forgotten-the organ-like sonorousness of the latter as he once read the Episcopal service in Spanish from the pulpit from which I afterwards preached, nor the soft and luscious tones of the former, in which flutes and hautboys mingled with the notes of larks as he leaned on the pulpit in New Berne and preached of the pleasures evermore. Mr. Lowe had a little peculiarity which interested me. Every now and then he licked his lips quickly-I do not know how else to express it—as if the words he was about to utter sent forward their sweetness to his tongue and he seemed to be tasting what we were about to hear.

He had another peculiarity. He was as ignorant of grammar as was Father Taylor, the great sailorpreacher of Boston. The latter once, in a gale of eloquence, got tangled in an intricate sentence which he could not straighten, but carried everything before him by clapping his hands and shouting, "Brethren, my verb has slipped my nominative, and I can't get it aboard again, but, nevertheless, glory be to God, I'm bound for the kingdom!" Lowe's sentences were sometimes intricate, parenthesis within parenthesis, but I never heard him, under any circumstances, utter a single grammatical error. I cannot say that of any

Above all, he was pure and thoroughly religious. No man in all my acquaintance has left in my memory and heart a sweeter, deeper sense of purity than has this unspotted man. He believed the gospel he preached. It was through and through him. It both subdued and exalted him, and when he preached you felt that on the altar whence came down that blessed thing, which "touched Isaiah's hallowed lips with fire," there are still buring the glowing coals of fire.

Far more noble and unselfish is it to bury any personal slights we conceive we have received than to desert to the Radicals, a taste of whose misrule the white people of North Carolina have already had, and which bitter taste they have not forgotten. Democrats should ponder well before taking a atep that is prompted only by sel-

THE STAR ROUTE TRIAL. The Jury not yet Agreed-They Ask for Further Instructions, Which are Given Strongly Against the Defend-

[By Telegraph to the Morning Star.] WASHINGTON, September 9 - The jury in the Star Route cases came into Court a short time after 10 o'clock, and announced that they had not agreed upon a verdict, and asked for further instructions. These were given by Judge Wylie at considerable length, and their general tendency was strongly against the defendants. At their own request the jury were allowed to take their notes to the jury room and again retired. They will report at 2 o'clock, to which time the court took a recess.

YELLOW FEVER.

The Epidemic Rapidly Disappearing from Matamoras and Increasing Slowly at Brownsville.

[By Telegraph to the Morning Star.] GALVESTON, Sept. 8.—The News' Matamoras special says: "The yellow fever epidemic is rapidly disappearing from this city. During the twenty-four hours ending this morning at 9 o'clock there were but two cases of fever recorded, and so far but seven persons have died in this city of that disease, an enormous reduction from the same period during the past two weeks; and the fever does not spread to any alarming extent among the ranches.' A report from Brownsville says that the fever seems to be increasing slowly. The official report for the last twenty-four hours shows only forty-eight new cases and two deaths for that period. The Relief Committee furnished aid to 387 families. Col. Grasty is reported to-day as dying; Wm. Scanlon is very low. Several new cases have broken out among the soldiers stationed here. Maj. Witherell's son is down. Letter Relative to the Sale of the Irish Vote in Pennsylvania to the Republican Party-Scandalous Exposures. [By Telegraph to the Morning Star.]

PHILADELPHIA, September 9.—The Times to-day publishes a letter from Col. A. K. McClure, editor-in-chief of that paper, addressed to T. P. O'Malley, Secretary of the Central Branch of the Land League at Scranton, Penn., in reference to the charge by the Times that certain assumed leaders of the Irish Land League were bargaining with the leaders of the Republican party for the transfer or sale of 30,000 Irish votes. The letter is of great length, and reiterates in detail the charge originally made, which is that a contract was to be made with Cameron on the basis of the removal of Minister Lowell from England, to enable Edward O'Meigher Condon to mislead the Irish, and the payment of a liberal amount of money to Condon.
