EVENING EDITION.

THE LATE JUDGE MURPHY.

The venerable Lyndon Swaim, of Greensboro, now passed his seventieth year, and the oldest surviving editor in the State, we believe, has written an entertaining and graceful article for the Greensboro Patriot in memory of the late Judge Archibald D. Murphy, one of the most scholarly writers North Carolina has ever had as well as one of the most honorable and able of her jurists. Judge Murphy's address at the University is the best production but one that we have known to be delivered there. We would rather be the author of it than of any other save the delightful address of the late Rev. Dr. William

We are glad to learn more of Judge Murphy, and Mr. Swaim paints him as he appeared fifty or sixty years ago. Judge Murphy at one time was in very prosperous circumstances, but his fortune disappeared and he became so poor that he was actually put in prison in Greensboro for twenty days because of debt. It is hard to realize that such a barbarous and absurd law was ever in force in North Carolina. We have seen a clever man jailed for debt, and that within forty years. Judge Murphy was a man of great sensibility and of the highest integrity. He was the victim of ill-luck and had to bear the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune." Mr. Swaim, referring to his removal to Greens-

"He had owned and lived upon the fine property on the Alamance, near its confluence with Haw river, afterwards owned and occupied by Judge Ruffin. Judge Murphy had been broken up in estate, in health and in his future prospects. Whether he came to this place as a temporary refuge, or with a view to permanent abode, I do not know. A portion of the time of his sojourn was an enforced one, for he was put in jail here for debt. And he was not the last man in North Carolina who was put in jail for the crime of owing an honest debt and honestly trying in vain to pay it.

The following will be read with interest by many of our readers, for Judge Murphy was one of the most noteworthy men of our State, and as Mr. Swaim says, "was intellectually a great man and a learned one." If he had been prosperous and had devoted himself to historical writing, he could have produced a work on North Carwith the best State histories that have been written in our country. He wrote with much elegance, and he . knew how to draw a pen-portrait that would not have discredited a writer of the high skill of Clarendon even. But to the extract. Mr. Swaim says:

"I never heard a breath against his integrity. His honor was unspotted. He was the victim of a law inflicting torture as exquisite to the sensitive soul, if not to the body, as the rack or thumb-screw of the

I heard good old Sheriff Doak say that no occurrence of his life, official or other-wise, was so painful to him as the execution of the ca. sa. upon the venerable judge, the meekness and dignity of whose bearing was so impressive, and his resignation to the inevitable so touching."

Judge Murphy's name deserves to ed to him."

be classed with those who by reason of actual service and true culture and high accomplishments and superior abilities belong to the really illustrious men of North Carolina. We doubt if any man who has worn the ermine in North Carolina was such a writer as he. Mr. Swaim thus

"He was very small of stature, thin and pale, with a kindly kindling eye, and a gentleness, nay, sweetness, of expression almost feminine. He was dressed with remarkable neatness, his coat hanging somewhat loosely upon his attenuated frame. The lifting of his hat as he stepped into the bar, his bow to the judge, his greeting to every member of the bar and to the officers of the court-nobody was omitted-was such an exhibition of self-possession and grace as I had never witnessed before, and such as, I yet verily believe, is seldom seen outside of a Parisian salon; and the crowning charm was that he made everybody feel that he was sincere. His hand-shake, even with a boy, left a pleasant memory. There was no hurry about it; he took time to attend to the matter in hand (pardon the pun); the softly repeated pressure and the lingering glance of his dark eyes were mag-

We are glad that Mr. Swaim has published his recollections of this great man. If other gentlemen of advanced years who are trained to the use of the pen would prepare reminiscences of the famous dead of our State there would be gathered material which in after years might be utilized by some man of power and eloquence in preparing a gallery of portraits of those men who had reflected honor upon their native

We will supplement the above with a brief reminiscence of our own. The late Colonel Richard O. Britton, who represented Bertie county in the Legislature and long resided at Oxford, told as that he was once journeying through Tennessee on horseback-probably about 1838 -when wearied and thirsty he stopped at some draw-bars and hallooed to the owner of a rude log shanty that stood some twenty or thirty yards distant. A woman coarsely but neatly clad appeared at the door when he asked for a drink of water. She readily obliged him by bringing a gourd full to the fence. As she approached he saw a very striking face in its refinement and strength The manners of the woman were so dignified, quiet, elegant that he was amazed when he looked at the rude surroundings and the coarse garb. After drinking he detained her by a few questions concerning the road, distance to the town, &c. Eyeing her with exceeding scrutiny he was moved to say: 'Madam, excuse me for saying, that I am persuaded that you have seen better days." She looked astonished if not mortified for a moment, and then with evident repressed emotion replied, "Yes sir, I have seen better and happier days. I am now very poor, far from my kindred and friends, with several little children to provide for as best as I can. My father was Judge Murphy of North Carolina." She had left her State with her husband who was or became exceedingly dissipated and dragged her down to poverty and toil, although

Freddie-Langtry's fellow - got into a difficulty in St. Louis and wanted to lick Maj. A. B. Cunningham, of the Globe-Democrat. He insulted the Major very grossly and abused him roundly. A dispatch

she was well born, finely educated, traits of a noble womanhood. Col.

Britton told us that he was actually

ifraid, such was the unmistakable

pride and dignity of the true woman, to offer any assistance, but at the next town, a few miles distant, he mailed to her ten dollars to give her some temporary relief.

'Major Cunningham, who has an unimpeachable record for courage and served with great credit in the Confederate army during the war as a cavalry officer, kept his temper, and informed Mr. Gebhard that he appreciated the fact that he had been insulted, and that Mr. Gebhard would hear from him the following day. Mr. Gebhard wanted to insist upon a fist fight, and told Major Cunningham he could knock him out in one round, but Major Cunningham informed him that he was not a pugi list, and that he would soon give him (Geb hard) an opportunity to select gentlemen's weapons with which their difficulty could

The "Lilly" is overwhelmed and with "tears in her eyes" entreats the olina that would have taken rank bellicose New York pugilist not to fight with pistols the bloody-minded Southern duelist. P. S. There will be no tight. Freddie has left St Louis with the Langtry and Cunningham posted him as a coward after challenging him. Gebhard says he would not fight a duel but he would act promptly if attacked. He seems to have pluck enough. Cunningham was prevented by his friends from attacking him after the challenge was declined, and says his intimate friends know what were "the most potent and overwhelming reasons that prevented him from resenting on the spot the insults offer-

The following concerning the new railroad route proposed from Richmond to Ridgeway, we find in the Raleigh letter to the Richmond Dis-

"Application for the charter of the Virgiuia & Carolina Railroad, to run from Richmond to Ridgeway, where it will tap the Raleigh & Gaston Railroad and secure southern connections, has been made by a bill of incorporation It is said that it is a scheme of Mr. Moncure Robinson, and that he is seeking a southern outlet for passenger traffic for his Richmond & Fredericksburg Road. This is possible. On the principle that freight will seek water at the shortest distance, he may rely on the Seaboard Railroad to carry freight, and seek rapid inland transit for the travelling public via Richmond to and from the northern cities. It may be a move to head off the Richmond & Danville Railroad in its proposed short line from Chase City to Clarksville, thence to Oxfork and Louisburg and Raleigh, where it has ample southern connections. Whether it is Mr. Moncure Robinson's project or another man's, this much is certain; that it will have riders enough put on it by such anti monopolists as Mr. Strudwick, of Durham, as to pretty well weight

Joe Patterson, aged 25, married to an attractive young lady, was spending the night about eight months after his marriage with his wife at his father's, in Banks county, Georgia, After they had retired the shrieks of the young lady were heard, and when the room was reached by Patterson, Senior, she was found lying in her blood terribly cut in several places, whilst the villain had fled. There is said to be no chance for her recovery. They are of good families, and the lady is described as "beautiful and refined." No explanation of the dreadful affair has been given.

Through no fault of the proof reader a line was left out in Col. Green's letter that really destroyed the very point that he made, and that corrected an erroneous statement that is going the rounds of the press. The paragraph should have read as follows: "You are in error in to-day's issue in regard to Col. Marshal T. Polk's identity. His father was Marshal Polk, Sr., of Mecklenburg county, N. C., and was a brother of the honored President of the same name, who adopted the son after his father's death." Such errors are annoying.

Father Frank, real name Thomas Waldron, a Catholic Priest, is in jail at Buffalo, New York, for violating Hattie Carr, a little girl seven years old. The evidence against him is said to be most conclusive.

Old Boreas on the Rampage. The high wind whistled around the chimney tops and steeples, and blew bricks down into the street, scaring the people who walked below. Snow, sleet and hail drove into the faces of those who dared expose themselves, and made them button their coats tight around their throats. Of course there were sore throats and colds and coughs and rheumatisms the next day. But what were these to men and women who could step into any drug store and buy a bottle of Perry Davis's Pain Killer? †

The Distinguishing Charm. A delightful fragrance of freshly gather ed flowers and spices is the distinguishing charm of Floreston Cologne. OUR STATE CONTEMPORARIES.

The present Legislature promises to be not behind its predecessors in passing new laws and in amending and repealing those already in existence. It was generally sup-posed that the Code Commissioners would revise and complete all the laws in force and that when their work was completed but little additional legislation would be needed at the present session. But this example set by the Legislature of 1872 and 1873, when Battle's Revisal was reported to that body, seems likely to be followed by the Legislature of 1888. This "amiable weakness" which seems to possess the av-erage legislator, needs the imposition of all the restraint which backless was reported to the restraint which public opinion can impose. - Wilson Advance.

The recommendation of the message in regard to the equalizing of property valuations in the different counties is of vast importance, for it involves the principle of equal taxation. Under the existing system property is valued in some counties far below its real worth. Such valuations are a fraud on other counties whose valuations are correct. They throw upon the property holders of those counties an unjust burder of taxation. Such valuations are an outrage on justice, and ought to be corrected. If this were done, it would add to the taxable resources of the State, increase the amount of school money and lower the rate of State taxation generally. - Fayetteville

The Khedive has pre sented her with land for her buildings, and her Cairo schools number 300 boys and 200 girls, more than two thirds of the girls and half of the boys being Moslems.

 Hahnemann Medical College, of Chicago, continues to be the largest homoopathic college in the world. The winter session opened with 250 students, male and female, from all parts of the United States. Before the end of the year the class promised to exceed 300-more students than there were homeopathic physicians in 1835.

"SOUTHERN STAR" PURE RYE WHIS-KEY is the leading brand in the market, and the daily increase of our sales is the best testimony we can offer to sustain this assertion. We annex the certificate of Prof. Chas. W. Dabney, State Chemist, and graduate of the University of Got tengen, in support of the purity of our "SOUTH ERN STAR" "RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 7th, 1882.

"I have examined carefully and thoroughly analyzed a sample of whiskey, certified to be a fair sample of the brand, known as "Southern Star," manufactured by Messrs. H. Brunhild & Bro., of Wilmington, N. C., and find it a remarkably pure and strong whiskey, free from all adul-terations and fraudulent additions usually made in whiskey. "CHAS. W. DARNEY, JR., Chemist."

Still a Kicking.

I HAVE JUST RECEIVED A LARGE LOT OF Carriages, Phætons and Buggies of the latest styles. Also a lot of Road Carts and Sulkies. Also a large assortment of Oroide and Nickie Harness, selling very low for the quality of the goods. Repairing done at short notice, at Factory, on Third, between Market and Princess streets.
