Another violent and destructive cyclone has been heard from, this time in Michigan. Houses were destroyed and a number of persons were killed.

The Philadelphia Times is showing how its neighbor, the Press, manufactures at home its London dispatches. It simply copies from other papers, according to the Times.

Tennessee has filed a bill against Polk and his sureties for balance due the State of $292,427, with interest, and for $90,000 U. S. bonds coupons which were stolen by Polk-in all some $400,000.

Charles Dudley Warner, about the most gifted literary man in Connecticut, is to deliver the literary address before Roanoke College, at Salem, Va. Hon, John Goode will also deliver an address.

The Louisville Courier-Journal took two months of time, labor and outlay to work up a plan that was successfully carried out to get the complete result of the primary elections in every county within twelve hours after the county conventions adjourned. Enterprising but hardly necessary.

Rev. Dr. Milburn preached again in Charleston on Sunday night. The News and Courier says:

"An immense congregation, consisting of fully fifteen hundred persons and representing every form of religious belief and every class in the community, crowded Trinity Methodist Church last night to hear the Rev. Dr. Milburn preach. His sermon was a powerful plea for a more earnest consecrated, helpful Christianity. It was lofty in conception, magnificent in its rhetoric and most eloquently and foreibly delivered.'

Among the large towns of North Carolina we consider Raleigh the handsomest, and we have seen them all. Of those of the smaller places we have seen we incline to the opinion that it lies between Wilson and Tarboro with the advantage rather in favor of Wilson. We have seen all of the towns from Salisbury to Elizabeth City with the exception of two or three small ones.

Here is a description of the "Jersey Lily's" travelling car which is said to be very elegant and was built for exhibition at the Philadelphia Centennial:

"The main saloon of the beauty's travelling palace is fitted with four sections of the Wagner style of berths, supplied with spring mattresses and two folding beds, one double and one single, which, when closed, resemble sideboards. At one end of the car is the culinary department. This portion of the coach is supplied with a regular hotel range and all the necessary appliances. Adjoining are the butler's pantry and a closet designed for the silver and glassware. Lavatories with washstands, mirrors and all imaginable conveniences are provided for both ladies and gentlemen. Separated from the other portion of the car is the reading and smoking room. The coach is heated by a Baker's patent car warming apparatus, the heating pipes running along the side of the car. Electric call-bell buttons are fixed in various parts of the car. The woodwork of the inside of the car is of walnut, with mahogany trimmings."

We are glad to hear that the financial condition of the church is very satisfactory. The last debt against the church has been wiped out, the pastor's salary has been paid up to the first of May, the commencement of the fiscal year, and there is a small surplus in the treasury. This is a good showing for a church that a year ago was laboring under a debt of about $11,000. The result must be exceedingly gratifying to the pastor, who can thus leave the church in such a healthy financial condition.

A day or two ago a large owl, who had been "making a night of it," perched in one of the high trees in the neighborhood of Second and Orange streets for a little rest and repose. Recognizing his exhausted condition, and the effect of the sunlight upon his optics, a large number of the small-fry representatives of the feathered kingdom gathered around this giant of their tribe and went for him with a vengeance. The ceaseless chatter with which they accompanied their onslaught upon his wiship attracted the attention of severa little boys, as well as some older heads, when little Wilkin Roddick, who lived close by, ran into his house and got an air gun with the intention of trying his luck upon the suffering owl and relieving him of the tortures which his little tormentors were heaping upon him. He had but one cartridge, and success or failure depended upon the first shot. He aimed his toy weapon at his owlship, perched upon one of the highest branches of the high tree. with much intervening foliage, drew the fatal trigger, and down fluttered the nocturnal monarch of the forest. Upon examination he was found to measure forty inches from tip to tip of his wings, and not a spark of life could be detected, although no wound or abrasion could be found to mark the spot where the fatal puncture oc-

DON'T BE LED ASTRAY by the flattering talk DON'T RE LED ASTRAY by the flattering talk of some Merchants. The principle which we work under is, HUNEST GOODS at an HONEST PRICE. We do not force goods with false representations, but allow the customer his own judgment and willingly give him ours when asked for. Our Leader this season is the BHIGHTON SACK, an Honest all-Wool Suit, selling at $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00. These goods are good value at an advance of 25 per cent.
