WILMINGTON, N. C., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1883.

The largest tobacco factory in But if the fusionists unite on Mr. John King, of Pitt, and he accepts, there is breakers ahead. Mark what I say. (Who North Carolina is at Henderson, Vance county. The main building is thus described in the Gold Leaf : gress last winter, has not been applied, for the reason that the appropriation was deemed too small to justify the outfitting of a contract or to undertake the work.

"The main building is 40 feet wide by 130 feet long, 3 stories high, with garret and basement, virtually making it 5 stories; while the "L," or wing, is 40 feet wide by 50 feet long, 3 stories high. There are 27, 500 square feet of flooring in the building. To give it sufficient light and ventilation there are 98 windows, besides 4 large double doors and one single one—for the diffice. There are 200,000 feet of lumber in the building."

The largest store in the State is that of Watkins & Brother of the same town of 1,800 people. It is four stories high, all the way, is 160 feat long and 40 feet wide. They earry about $100,000 stock. We heard a Baltimore merchant say within forty-eight hours, that he would give them $75,000 for the stock he saw there a few days ago.

We learn from Mr. T. M. Arrington, Assistant Secretary of the Rocky Mount Agricultural and Mechanical Association, that Senator Vance will deliver the address at the Fair on Thursday, the 26th of October. Senator Vance can make as many kinds of good speeches as any other living American. He excels on literary, patriotic and stump-speaking occasions. He is good at the bar and effective in the U. S. Senate, and he can beat the farmers themselves at an Agribultural Fair if he is a shade-farmer. A big crowd will hear that speech, we predict, at Rocky Mount.

In the Episcopal General Convention a memorial relative to the divis on of the diocese of North Carolina was presented and referred to the committee on Dioceses. We note the following North Carolinians as signed to committees: Rev. Dr. Huske on State of the Church; Dr. DeRosset, Domestic and Foreign Missions; Rev. Dr. Watson, Chairman of the committee on Canons; Rev. Mr. Hughes, Memorials of Deceased Members. In the House of Bishops Bishop Lyman is on the committee on Canona.

How the bragging over Ohio by the Radical press modifies nearness of the election creases. A staff correspondent of the Philadelphia Press telegraphs from Columbus that the political situation in Ohio is sadly mixed, and that "there is an aggressive element of uncertainty in it that is seriously embarrassing both parties."

We have heard nothing said about reopening the iron mine of Ore Hill, but as it is such valuable property we should think work would be resumed at an early day. Mr. Hicks refused to pay more than the price agreed upon, and went off to his work at 1 o'clock. The foundry is not far from his home and when he got there he heard screams and cries apparently coming from his house. Running back, he found that the scoundrel Scott had attacked Mrs. Hicks in a most savage manner with the saw. He had cut her in three places, twice on the arm, once on the wrist, all the wounds being very painful and causing the loss of much blood. Neighbors sided Mr. Hicks in arresting the negro. Officer C. SAD DROWNING CASE.

Man and Two Women Drowned by the Swamping of their Boat while Crossing the Biver.

A colored man and two colored women started to come across the Cape Fear river from the Mesers. Kidder's rice fields to the city, about half past 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and had nearly reached the middle of the river, when the little batteau in which they were seated was suddenly seen to capsize. A colored man who was hunting in the rice fields, put off to their rescue as soon as possible, but before he reached the scene of the disaster the unfortunate trio had all sunk for the last time. The name of the man was Charles Simmons, formerly employed at Messrs. Northrop & Cumming's mill, and well known about the city. His age was about 31 or 32 years and his place of residence on Surry, between Castle and Queen streets. He was unmarried. His companions were Mary Eliza O'Hannan, daughter of Lewis O'Hannan, aged about 20 years, and another woman whose name we could not ascertain. It was reported at first that the third party was one Cornelia Johnson, more familiarly known by the nick-name of "Pocha" short for Pochahontas, but parties who visited the neighborhood of the accident after it happened, for the purpose of ascertaining the particulars of the terrible calamity, were told that the girl supposed to be Cor neija Johnson, was another and a strange young woman whose name they had not heard The friends and relatives of the Johnson girl were of course very much relieved upon receipt of this information.

It is stated-that Simmons had been guning in the rice fields and was returning home, accompanied by the two women when the accident happened.

The news of the drowning created no lit tle stir and excitement among the colored people about the wharves during the after-

Criminal Court-Report of the Grand

The following is the report of the Grand Jury, made to His Honor, Judge O. P. Meares, at the late term of the Criminal Court, which closed its labors on Saturday

The Grand Jury made a visit of inspection to the County Jail and found it secure, and the general condition fair. Some of the rooms, though neat in appearance, are offensive to the smell, and the cause of this, no doubt, is a want of proper ventilation of the mattrasses; as they now are, they are not fit to be used, and we would suggest to the Court that new mattrasses be obtained, or else the ticking should be washed and refilled with new material, and from time to time said mattrasses should be put outside of the jail in the open air, so as to get necessary ventilation.

Repairs are needed to patch up broken places in the walls. This is essential to protect the rooms from vermin. The walls of one room particularly, show evidences of large quanties of vermin.

On inquiry at the jail it was found that the prisoners are fed only once a day. It s suggested that this matter be looked into and some better arrangements be made for their comfort.

The visit of inspection to the County Work House or Poor House was omitted by permission of the Court. Respectfully submitted,

B. P. HARRISON, Foreman of the Grand Jury.

Charles Williams and William Edwards, the latter colored, were arraigned on the charge of disorderly conduct at a dance house on the wharf Saturday night. The evidence was to the effect that Edwards, who was drinking, was ordered out of the house, but refused to go, and finally called Williams by an ugly name, when the latter kicked Edwards out of the door and upon the sidewalk, at which moment they were both arrested by Officer Henry Mints. Williams was required to pay a fine of $2 and Edwards $5 or thirty days in the city

Scarcity of Fish.

Fish of all kinds are unprecedentedly scarce in this market, and have been ever since the storm in the early part of September. The consequence is that not only are we fish-eaters in Wilmington deprived of the favorite dish to which we have been so often accustomed, but people along the line of the roads, who have been in the habit of receiving regular instalments of fish for their customers from our fishermen here, are at a loss to know what is the matter. It is certainly a bad season for the fishermen, and we hear that the same scarcity prevails at other points on our coast.

Again the grim monster Death hath entered the home circle, and with his icy breath blasted the fairest flower. Again the grave hath opened Again the grim monster Death hath entered the home circle, and with his icy breath blasted the fairest flower. Again the grave hath opened and received into its relentless bosom one so gentle so amiable, so lovely, so dear to all with whom she was associated, and so hard to part with, that we can scarce behind so dark a cloud discern a Father's hand. In the death of Miss HATTIE HARDY, so young, so much beloved, and under such pathetic circumstances, so far away from home and loved ones, so sudden and so unexpected, there is indeed much of darkness and sorrow in the sade event. Of the grief of the stricken household we would not presume to speak—it is too sacred for public mention; but bereaved friendship would pay this simple but just tribute of affection to the memory of departed gentleness and worth. The writer of this brief sketch had the pleasure of being intimately associated with her in the social circle, and also in the church and choir of which she was a useful and faithful member. How often has eur heart been cheered and comforted, and we trust uplifted, in listening to the strains of her sweet voice as she sang the sweet Sunday school melodies she so much loved to sing. How we loved to mingle our voice with hers in such sweet strains as "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow," "We're marching to Zion," "All the way my Saviour leads me." and many others equally touching and tender. But, alas, our voice shall mingle with hers no more, until we sing "the glad new song" in our Father's house of many mansions. The gentleness, the sweetness, the faithfulness of her life, is a precious memory to those who survive her, ard will ever be cherished and faithfully treasured while life shall last. Dearest Hattis, we have bid thee farewell, but not forever. The love that fills our hearts for thee is a love that out lasts this fleeting life,—that bids defiance to the surging waves of this mortal life are ended. We feel indeed that another hand is beckoning us and another loved voice is bidding us to "come up highe
