We copy the following from one of the old Democratic members of the House whose head is evidently filled with brains instead of blarney and bluff. He says:

"One would suppose that Mr. Randall was another Minerys, the repository of the wisdom and courage of the entire Democratic party; that without his leadership the must necessarily go to the 'demni-how wows.' He has been Speaker in two Presidential compaigns. In the first he did as much, if not more, than any Republican to make Hayes President, and in the second contributed his high tariff views to defeat General Hancock on that purely 'local issue' in Pednsylvania."

The Keynote is the name of a new musical and dramatic paper just begun in New York. It is beautifully printed on fine paper, is illustrated and well edited without dirt or personalities. Price $4 a year or 10 cents a number. It is under the editorial management of Mr. Frederic Archer. It is illustrated and each number contains 18 pages with three broad columns. It ought to succeed. It is extremely well got up.

The Newark Journal says that Randall's proposition to abolish the quor and tobateon tax "will not com mend itself to the majority of the people of any political faith." Of course not. Men are not so unjust and so unwise as that. The remark of the Journal leads the Baltimore

It has been said of him before that he is essentially a melodramatic actor, and this his Louis proves to be true."

Thanksgiving Day. This is the day set apart by the President of the United States and the Governor of the State, to be observed as a day of thanksgiving and praise for the many blessings showered upon us as a people during the year now drawing to a close. A word about the origin of thanksgiving will not be uninteresting. There is a tradition that in the planting of New England, the first settlers met with many difficulties and hardships, as is generally the case when a civilized people attempt to establish themselves in a wilderness country. Being piously disposed, they sought relief from Heaven by laying their wants and distresses before the Lord in frequent set days of fasting and prayer. Constant meditation and discourse on these subjects kept their minds gloomy and discontented; and, like the children of Israel, there were many disposed to return to that Egypt which persecution had induced them to abandon. At length, when it was proposed in the assembly to proclaim another fast, a farmer of plain sense arose and remarked, that the inconveniences they suffered, and concerning which they had so often wearied Heaven with their complaints, were not so great as they might have expected, and were diminishing every day as the colony strengthened; that the earth began to reward their labor, and to furnish liberally for their subsistence; that the seas and rivers were found full of fish, the climate healthy; and, above all, that they were there in the full enjoyment of liberty, civil and religious: he therefore thought, that conversing on these subjects would be more comfortable, as tending to make them more contented with their situation, and that it would be more becoming the gratitude they owed the Divine Being, if, instead of a fast, they should proclaim a thanksgiving. His advice was taken, and from that day to this a day of general thanksgiving has been proclaimed and observed.
