"The Wilmington papers report the heaviest snow storm there last Saturday for many years."—Hickory Corolinean.

The snow storms in Wilmington do not amount to much. In some fifteen or eighteen years there has been one that was actually two inches deep. The last "snow storm"-the one referred to above-was barely three-quarters of an inch in depth. These are the only two, we think, that have covered the ground in about fifteen years or more. It will snow to the south, to the north, to the west of us, but owing to our nearness to the Gulf Stream it rarely snows in Wilmington, and when it does a half-peck measure would hold it all, and sometimes a tea-cup. Below Wilmington is Smith's Island, and concerning it Professor W. C. Kerr said to us, "It was a little patch of Florida near the mouth of the Cape Fear river."

Ex-Senator McDonald is by no means an extreme Tariff Reformer. He is moderate enough even to suit a Virginia Protectionist, we would think. Here is his position as taken last year in the canvass. He said in his speech at Hamilton:

"I will say I am in favor of a tariff for revenue, with such incidental protection only as would result from a just and equitable adjustment of the tariff for revenue purposes. The protection should be inci-dent and not the purpose of the law. But, while I hold to these doctrines as sound, and alike favored by the Constitution and true political econemy, I believe also in reaching the necessary reform by such reaching the necessary reform by such measures as will not unduly disturb the business of the country. I believe in doing the greatest good to the greatest number of people, and in regarding the rights that have been secured, although it may be under a false system of legislation; but let it be clearly and distinctly understood that these reforms must come, and that, too, without unreasonable delay."

west winds and rising barometer.

Yesterday morning, about half-past 2 o'clock, the alarm was sounded for fire in the 4th district, and the flames were found to issue from the residence of Mr. J. H. Pugh, a two-story dwelling on the east side of Eighth, between Market and Dock streets. The fire seems to have originated in a rear room on the second floor, and is generally supposed to have been caused by a defective flue, though the family say it may have been caused by fire from the grate igniting a pile of kindling wood which had been placed in front of it by the servant in the dining room below. The family were awakened by the dense smoke which was filling the rooms and threatening all of them with suffocation. A little daughter of Mr. Pugh, the first awake, gave the alarm, which tracted the attention of some colored men passing, who immediately turned their attention to removing the furniture from the house. In the meantime the fire department had arrived on the spot and quickly had streams from a neighboring hydrant on the burning building, and so admirably. was everything worked that much of the building was saved, though badly damaged by water, and the adjoining residences of Mr. John Maunder on the north and Mr. David Pratt on the south side, though only a few feet intervened, were not scorched in the least, their fences were not damaged and Mr. Maunder's front garden was not - Oxford Torchlight: Ex-Sheriff | injured. W. P. Oldham vs. the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad Company. The question involved in this case was one of public interest. Mr. Oldham sued the Railroad Company for the loss of oats which had been consigned to him from Chicago, and which were lost in transit. There was a condition in the bill of lading that the company should not be liable for losses sustained on other connecting lines. The plaintiff sought to make the terminal company liable, as it collected all the freight for the different lines, but as the loss occurred on the Baltimore & Ohio Road the W. & W. Company refused to pay and made a test case. The Court decided in favor of the defendant. Mr. Oldham was represented by Messrs. McRae & Strange, and the Wilmington & Weldon R. R. Co. by Messrs. Geo. Found Dead in the Woods.

An old colored man named George Merrick, living in that part of the city known as Brooklyn, left home on Monday morning to go to the other side of the river, over Hilton bridge, to cut some wood. Not returning that night, as was his custom, his wife became so uneasy about him that she started yesterday morning to look for him, and finally found his dead body in a branch about two hundred yards from the road and a short distance beyond the bridge. From his position, with his axe by his side, it was evident that he had been on a log, engaged in cutting it, when he fell backwards into the branch and expired. The horror stricken wife returned and notified Coroner Jacobs, who went out and viewed the body. It is supposed that the old man died of heart disease. He was about 67 or 68 years old. No inquest was deemed necessary. The body was subsequently taken up and carried to the late re-sidence of deceased, and afterwards interWilmington, Wrightsville & on clow Baifroad Co.
