Jefferson played to a fine house in Charleston and the News and Courier says the performance was finished and very satisfactory. It says:

'It has been said of 'The Rivals' that there is no more diverting play when the parts are adequately filled, and none more indifferent when the acting is in any wise faulty. If this be true, the cast last night indeed have been a strong one; for the very large audience were kept alternat-ing between laughter and appliance from the beginning to the end of each of the those acts, and not one of the good things with which the comedy abounds was lost upon the house. The Lenoir Topic tells of Mr. R R. Hodges being fined $200 for contempt and ordered to jail for 20 days because he refused to serve on the jury that was to try a prisoner to whom he was related. The Topic says that the attorneys for the defense insisted that as they had made no objection, he was bound to serve; whereupon Hodges arose in his seat and stated rather vehemently that the court might keep him in the panel by force, but that he absolutely refused to serve as a juror in this case. The fine was not remitted but the jail sentence was.

A horrible affair occurred at Monterey, Highland county, Va. Mr. Ruckman, county superintendent of public schools, questioned the accuracy of a quotation from Shakespeare that a Mr. Atchison, a Northern man, had given. This incensed the latter to such a degree that he plunged a knife into Ruckman several times. Atchison was jailed, whence he was taken by a mob and hanged. Ruckman is not dead, and the lynching is regarded as most atrocious, and

It is proposed, we understand, to insure the construction of the road to Wrightsville by the summer, to commence with, and it is intended to push the matter vigorously. To this end the new president will very shortly start out on a tour of the State to secure stock in the proposed enterprise. He is said to be a man peculiarly adapted to the business of canvassing, having made a very successful tour of Europe in the interest of colored schools some years ago. He is a lawyer by profession, is a native of Louisiana, but has been practising in Pennsylvania. In company with the Board of Directors he passed over the road-bed on Wednesday.

Hanlon Brothers. These remarkable comedians will appear at the Opera House Tuesday, January 23d. The New York Evening Post of September

"The Hanlon Brothers still retain the gility for which they were celebrated a few years ago, and put it to excellent use. But they are something better than mere gymnasts. The are clever pantomimists in the true sense of the word, with an ample mastery of the art of comic expression and esture and they are often most amusing when in comparative repose. It would be useless to attempt anything like a description of the performance; it is one which appeals almost entirely to the eye. There is thread of story, but that is of no sort of consequence, except as an excuse for the introduction of the different performers and some elaborate stage mechanism. It is sufficient to say that the entertainment is brief, full of fun, and free from vulgarity.
