sudden Death on a Steamboat.

Lotta Robinson, the well known colored stewardess of the steamer Wave, dropped dead on that boat on Saturday night last, about 10 o'clock, while she was on her last down trip to this city. It appears that the boat stopped for a short time at Pridgen's Landing, about thirty miles above this city, to take in wood, and while the crew were performing that work the cries of some one in distress were heard, and, upon investigation, Lotta Robinson was found prostrated upon the upper deck, back of the ladies' cabin, in the agonies of death. Every attention was paid to the unfortunate woman by the officers and crew of the boat, but she breathed her last in a few minutes. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause of her death. Deceased, who was well known both here and in Payetteville, was about 50 years of age. The remains were brought to this city, where they were prepared for burial, and then shipped back to Favetteville, where they will be interred. She leaves five or six children.

The officer determined to save them at the peril of his life. Re-Gabrielsen to give him a man to steer, that he might swim to the wreck and rescue the unfortunate men. The captain granted the request and Lieutenant Roath was placed in the boat. But on nearing the steamer, it was found to be folly to attempt to go alongside. Lieutenant Rhodes refused to abandon the attempt, and asked the men in the life boat to take him to the wreck. Lieut. Rhodes boarded the life boat, and tying a rope about him waited until he was within about thirty feet of the vessel, when he sprang luto the sea. He had nearly reached the wreck when he was struck by a piece of timber on the leg and sank. He was pulled aboard by the boat and taken to the cutter. His leg was found to be cut, but after changing his clothes, as the sea was smoother, he determined to make a last attempt. The Lecture Last Night and the Lec-

Rev. J. B. Hawthorne, though a native of Maryland, is a grandson of North Caroina, his father, an honored Baptist minister, having been born and reared in Robeson county. After graduating at Harvard College, Alabama, he practiced law in Mobile for several years before he entered the ministry. He has served with distinguished success' prominent-churches in Alabama, Kentucky, Maryland and New York, and is now pastor of the First Baptist Church of Richmond, Va., one of the largest and most influential churches of the country. His church will seat fifteen hundred people, and is always filled; and it is said that five hundred young men wait upon his ministry every Sunday. He probably preaches to the largest congregation of the South. Dr. Hawthorne is in the prime of life, being now 46 years old. He is tall, dignified and of commanding presence. He has great power as an impressive speaker. His thoughts are fresh, stimulating and weighty; his language is graceful and vigorous, while his utterance is deliberate. He has extraordinary dramatic power and is-as Dr. J. C. Hiden once said-"a fine specimen of the typical

His lecture last night, entitled "Be True o Thyself," was received with the warmest admiration by the limited, but intelligent audience who heard it. It was full of grand thoughts, grandly expressed; it sparkled with wit, and was spiced with much real humor, and contained some passages of extraordinary pathos and power. This lecture alone would prove Dr. Hawthorne to be beyond all question an orator of a very high order; and, if you don't believe this statement as coming from us, we respectfully refer you to any one who heard it. -

To sight, Dr. Hawthorne will lecture on 'Eminent Orators, Ancient and Modern," This lecture we have heard, and we never heard anything better of the kind from any

The audience room of the Tileston School is the very best we have seen in the city, and was warm and in every way comfortable last night. The price of the tickets to the lecture to-night has been reduced to 25 cents. All we have further to say is that those who fail to hear Dr. Hawthorne to night will miss a rare treat.

Dr. Hawthorne at the First Baptist Church-The Night Service.

Sunday morning a very large congregation assembled at the First Baptist Church to listen to a discourse from Rev. J. B. Hawthorne, D. D., of Richmond, Va., whose reputation as a pulpit orator has gone abroad in the land. The Doctor is a gentleman of fine, imposing presence and commanding figure, being over six feet tall and well proportioned, and with a clean-shaven face. Upon being introduced by Rev. Dr. Pritchard, he slluded to the interest which had been awakened in his mind by a knowledge of the struggle which it had cost pastor and people to secure the erection of the fine church building in which he was then speaking, and the satisfaction he felt in common with them, at the final consummation of the work. His sermon was based upon a clause of the twenty-fifth verse of the twenty-sixth chapter of Matthew:-"Then Judas, which betrayed Him"-and was an able and eloquent exposition of the character of the despised betrayer of innocent blood and of the motives which influenced him in the act which has handed his name down to succeeding generations stamped with the seal of infamy. Dr. Hawthorne has a splendid delivery, an attractive voice and a graceful manner, all of which combined to enhance the favorable impression which his appearance had inspired. After listening to him, his audience could well understand the strength of the attachment felt for him by his people in Richmond, who would not hear to his leaving them for another field of labor. He will always find a hearty welcome in Wilmington, and it is hoped that he may be induced to pay us another visit soon.

At night Rev. Dr. Pritchard delivered the third of his series of sermons addressed particularly to young men, taking for his subject, "The Infidel's Testimony to Christianity," and he handled it with a great deal of ability, presenting to his audience, in support of his views, many interesting and important facts, in a style at once attractive and forcible.

The Loss of the Steamer City of Columbus-Gallant Conduct of a Well Dispatches from Boston, under date of the 18th inst., alluding to the heart-rending disaster to the steamer City of Columbus, which was lost off Gay Head, off Martha's Viceyard, Massachusetts, on Thursday last, thus refer to the deeds of daring and herolem performed by Lieut. J. U. Rhodes. formerly of the revenue cutter Colfde, at "The captain is positive that he struck of the bar, and in backing drifted inside. The officers of the cutter Dexter furnished the following statement: At 12.30 we sighted a vessel on shore on the reef near Gay Head. The wind was blowing a gale and a terrible sea was running. roached we saw the vessel was a As we approached we saw the vessel was a steamer, and the waves were breaking over her. We anchored on her starboard quarter, 200 or 300 yards away. The cutter boat was at once lowered, manual by five men, in charge of Lieut. Rhodes who brought off seven men. A return trip was mane and one man was brought to the vessel. Lieut. Kennedy was then dispatched in the gig with four men, and took off four or five men. In the meantime the life boat transferred several men to the cutter, and at length the rigging was cleared of survivors. The vessel sank in about four fathoms of water, and the railing on the bow was the only portion of the hull vissible. We found the men in the forward maintop and rigging. It was impossible to row over the rigging, as the boats would have been pounded to pieces. The men in the rigging were forced to jump into the sea, and we caught them as they rose to the surface and pulled them into the boats. Some of the men could not swim. but nearly every one in the rigging was saved. Eugene McGarry jumped from the rigging. Lieut. Rhodes jumped for him but the boat was lifted fifteen feet
