Where an advertiser contracts for the paper to be sent to him during the time his advertisement is in, the proprietor will only be responsible for the mailing of the paper to his adin the Mulligan business, in which he prostituted his high office, or as the able Schurz puts it, "marketing his official power for private gain." We shall certainly draw upon this clear arraignment of Blaine although it may be days hence. The speaker confined himself almost entirely to one point, but no oue can understand the speech without seeing as if under the sunlight that Blaine is indeed a disgraced and "tattooed man"-a man who holding the most influential office in the country next to the President debauched himself that he might grow rich. No wonder that Mr. Schurz said that Blaine's conduct as Speaker "means official power offering itself for prostitution to make money."

Mr. Schurz shows in the strongest way that Blaine is not the man to be trusted-is not fit to be President His election would be a national disgrace and a national calamity. The standard of official responsibility and integrity is very low now; elect Blaine and Logan and it will be still lower-will reach even the lowest deep. NOMINATIONS.

The renomination of Hon. J. Ran dolph Tucker to the U.S. House is richly deserved compliment. By far the ablest of Virginians in the Congress he is one of the few genuine Tariff Reformers among the leading men of his State. Mr. Tucker is Professor of Law in Washington and Lee College, and is sound on the great fundamentals-the reserved rights of States and Constitutional limitations and wise political economy. The nomination of Mr. Kerr Craige, son of the late Hon. Burton Craige, in the Salisbury (Seventh) District is a good one. Mr. Craige has legal training and is a man of good capacity. He is personally esteemed, and has the prestige of his father's popularity to some extent His election may be considered certain.

982 were schooled and mainly at the expense of the white tax-payers, against whom the negro votors are always arrayed. There are eighteen negro colleges and thirty-one intermediate schools in the United States.

Mr. Joel Chandler Harris ("Uncle Remus") George W. Cable, the novelist, and James B. Cable, his gifted brother, agree that it is not true that the banjo is the chief musical instrument of the negro. Mr. Harris says:

"The question is not whether the banjo played by negroes here and there, but whether it was and is played to an extent sufficient to constitute it the typical musical nstrument of the plantation negroes, and to justify the use it is put to by those who pretend to represent the negro.

This is correct. In forty-five years we never saw more than a score of negroes who could play on the banjo. We suppose every Southern white man's observation is like this.

The Boston Post says it is in posession of some "very queer stories" affecting the fellow Ball who is bespattering Cleveland after supporting him for pay. The Post says "it is not unlikely that we may feel it our duty to give the public a chapter or two of his career. From what we now know of him we are safe in pronouncing him a fit man to be doing the dirtiest work of Blaine's dirty campaign." If this thing goes on we shall have a campaign of filth that will disgust every decent man in the land. Ball is a fraud, so let him and his nasty record go.

On our local page a communication appears concerning the "House of Rest"-the home provided by the Ladies' Benevolent Society of this city, of which Mrs. Kennedy is the President. It is situated on Seventh street, and the property is owned by the Society. The indigent and helpless women of the city are cared for, and their declining days are made free from care. It requires money to sustain this excellent institution, and the object is one that commends itself to every philanthropic and generous heart. Read and sct.

cation in 1876 of Mr. Blaine's own memoranda of his transactions. The facts were that Mr. Blaine induced the Coburns of Skowhegan, the Mor-rills, Sanborn of Augusta, Hazeltines and Johnsons of Belfast, Alanson B. Farwell and some others, to purchase through him, of Warren Fisher, Jr., of Boston, securities of the Little Rock and Fort Smith Rail-road for which they paid in gross the sum of $190,000. Mr. Blaine went to each of these gentlemen and told him it was a very good thing; that he had himself invested a large amount of money, and that he recommended it to them because he wanted to put them into "a good thing." The business was to be done entirely through him. Each one was to receive for every $1,000 in cash paid $1,000 in first mortgage bonds, $1,000 in preferred stock and $1,000 in common stock. Mr. Blaine assured them that they were "on the ground floor" with himself. Subsequently Warren Fisher, Jr. failed and the enterprise broke down. Mr. Blaine astonished all his friends by promptly handing over the $130, 000 and taking all the securities back. They were exceedingly glad to get their money again, and asked no questions, but it surprised them, when Mr. Blaine's account book was produced and published in 1876, to ind that Mr. Blaine had never invested a cent in the enterprise, but had received from Warren Fisher, Jr., $130,000 in land-grant bonds and an agreement to deliver $32,500 first mortgage bonds in addition, as a commission on the sale of the other securities to his Maine friends, while had they gone direct to Mr. Fisher they would have obtained not only what Mr. Blaine gave them, but the land-grant bonds in addition. This publication created a vast amount of astonishment here, and some of the gentlemen interested have not recovered from it yet. They say that Mr.

Blaine's intimate friends promised that he would explain the matter, but that he has never done so. Some of them get together once in a while and talk the matter over, and it is not difficult for them to understand why it was that Mr. Blaine was willing to get down on his knees to Mr. Mulligan to implore him not to make this secret agreement with Fisher public. The Arctic Relief Fleet at New York -Funeral Honors to the Brave Explorers-The Names of the Bead and the Bisposition of their Bodies. [By Telegraph to the Morning Star.]

THE LATEST NEWS

NEW YORK, August 8 .- The Alert, Bear and Thetis, of the Arctic Relief fleet, which lay in the lower bay all last night, weighed ancher soon after 8 o'clock this weighed anenor soon after o o clock and morning, and steamed slowly up towards the harbor. The troops on Governor's Island were early on duty, and at 9 o'clock Gen. Hancock, with Generals Whipple and Jackson, and other officers of his staff, had a funeral escort and saluting companions under arms. A lookout man was posted on the terreplane of Castle William, to signal the coming of the flect. At 9.30 o'clock the Navy Yard tug Catalpa arrived at the Island with Commodore Fillebrown and Captains Kirkland and Watson on board. The next arrivals of note were Secretary of War Lincoln, General Sheridan and Gene-ral Hazen, with the members of their staffs, who were saluted by a guard of honor or landing at the dock.

At 11 o'clock the watch on the fort an nounced that the Thetis was in sight, and the casemated guns on the first and second tiers of the Castle began to fire a funeral salute of twenty-one rounds. The stcam launches Gen. Green and Catalpa and the steamboat Chester A. Arthur at once start ed out to meet the fleet.

It was not until after noon that the bodies were transported from the Bear to the dock on Governor's Island. They came on the tug Catalpa. Following them came Gen. Hancock's barge, and after that were Commodore Fillibrown's barge and the steam launches Dispatch and Minnesota The flotilia was commanded by Lieut.Com mander R. D. Hitchcock, U. S. N. There were about four hundred troops in line made up from six batteries of foot artillery together with mounted men of the ligh battery.

WEAKNESS AND STRENGTH.

The source of Cleveland's weakness is in the numerous candidates in the field; the course of John Kelly, Ben Butler and Charles Dana; the opposition of the New York Sun and the New York Star; the dissatisfaction among the Irish and the effort of Blaine to hoodwink the laboring classes generally. His strength lies in his pure political record; in the great work he has done as a Reformer in a State numbering nearly siz million inhabitants; in the dissatisfaction in four or five States with Blaine's very vicious official record in the revolt in ten or a dozen States to a greater or less extent, among the more intelligent, honorable, self-respecting Republicans; in the defection among the German Republicans; in the support he is receiving from eight or ten of the most influential and ablest Republican papers in the North; in the high indorsements he is receiving from men high in position in the Republican party as to his ability, integrity and conscientiousness; in the dangerous elements in Blaine's bold and aggressive character that alarm the business men of the country and make them distrust the man who as Secretary of State insulted and bullied three Governments; in his own high conservatism, admirable balance of qualities and patient industry, and lastly, in the very strong undercurrent in his favor among the business men in all the North-inen who will not support any man who is a disturber of the peace, who is reckless and impulsive, who is venal and pliable in using public office for personal gain. There are tens of thousands of Republican voters in the North not heard from and who do not mean to get in the newspapers who will go to the polls in November and vote for Cleveland and Reform.

We are glad to know that the opinion is widening that the children are much overworked in the schools of the country. The STAR has many times directed attention to this and we hope all editors interested in the welfare of pupils will not fail to put in a few licks in their behalf. BLAINE'S FINANCIAL OPE-RATIONS.

LIGHT UPON HIS PAST CAREER.

A Letter from Augusta, Maine, in Spring field Republican.

CHAPTER SECOND.

His Enormous Gains in Congress and Since the War. When important changes were made in the tariff and internal revenue laws in 1864, Mr. Blaine as a member of Congress had the earliest information of prospective changes in values, and this field was found to be a very rich one. Mr. Blaine's brother-in-law and other relatives here and in Boston were commission merchants and had the best facilities for speculations in goods which were sometimes doubled in value a single day by the action of Congress. Mr. Blaine was a liberal speculator in al-coholic liquors, which fluctuated so widely in value in 1864. Some of his operations were done through his brother-in-law, Stanwood, in Boston. James Mulligan was at this time the private book-keeper of Mr. Stanwood, and it is understood that Mr. Mulligan's memoranda concerning Blaine's whiskey speculations are quite as valuable and interesting as those which he gave to the world concerning the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railway transactions in 1876. In the year 1864 Mr.

Blaine's profits had become so large that he was obliged to seek good permanent investments for his money, and it was at that stage of his career that he purchased the large coal properties near Pittsburg, Pa. which have never been worked, but which are certain to become enormously valuable in the future.

Comparatively little is known here in regard to Mr. Blaine's larger operations since the close of the war. That he has always been a heavy speculator is a fact which neither he himself nor his friends attempt to Rockingham Rocket.

The Convention which met in Lumberton on Wednesday, 30th ult., did a wise and commendable, thing in nominating by acclamation the distinguished gentleman named above. This act of the people of the 6th district is a fitting confirmation of the choice made by the people of the whole State two years ago when with unexampled unanimity they placed in his keeping the standard of the party as their candidate for Congressman-at-Large. The prospects before the party at that time were anything but encouraging. There was imperatively needed the services of a heroic leader. The party was practically in a state of semi-disintegration. An unpopular measure had lately been precipitated upon the people of the State and, instead of being endorsed, had been voted down by an overwhelming majority. Every effort was being made by the opposition party, however unjustly, to saddle the responsibility for it upon the Democratic party; and then, if ever, thought the implacable foes of Democracy, was the time to wrest the power from Democratic hands and change it back to its whilom channel of venality and corruption, peculation and fraud. Extraordinary qualities of leadership were called for by the exigency of the situation. The eyes of the State instinctively tarned to Judge Bennett as the one man available and possessing the high qualification; and, although securely enthroned upon the bench, his fitness for which position was already an acknowledged fact, yet he cheerfully stepped down from so lofty a pinnacle to obey the voice of his countrymen and that he might discharge a responsible duty to which he felt himself irresistibly called. He made the fight and carried the State.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Advertiser is at last doing zealous if not effective work for Blaine. It has skirmished around and found a new defense for Blaine, which it sets forth in a two-column article, to the effect that he was not "conscious that the Mulligan letters proved him a knave, and that their publication involved his ruin," when he "prayed on his knees to Mulligan for them, implored him to think of his wife and six childsen, and threatened suicide if they were not delivered up to him." Mr. Blaine will probably take immediate steps to gag his new defender, the Commercial Advertiser.-Louisin Pottsville, Pa., will receive the body; Private Wm. Whistler, who will be buried by his father in Detha, Ind.; and Private Wm. A. Ellis, whose mother will take charge of his remains in Clyde,
