IRISH NATIONALISTS.

Second Annual Convention of the League in Fancuil Hall, Roston-A Large Representation.

[By Telegraph to the Morning Star.] Boston, Aug. 13.—Delegates to the second annual Convention of the Irish National League began to assemble in Fancuil Hall, in this city, at 11.30 a. m. to-day. By noon the body of the hall was pretty well filled with delegates, who numpretty well filled with delegates, who number 800, and the galleries were crowded with spectators. Among the delegates and spectators are a great many ladies, many of them being representatives of the Woman's Branch of the Irish National League, recently established by Mrs. Parnell. The delegates present a fine appearance, and undoubtedly form a representative body of Irishmen. Throughout the body of the hell are many centlemen whose habiliments Irishmen. Throughout the body of the hall are many gentlemen whose habiliments indicate their priestly calling. Although it was announced that the Convention would be called to order at 11 o'clock, the delegates at 12.15 had not all arrived. Fanders euil Hall was never more profusely decorated than it is this morning, and every feature of the adornment indicates the gathering of a host of Erin's sons.

At 1.30 P. M., when Hon, Alex. Sullivan entered the hall, leaning upon the arm of John Boyle O'Reilly, his appearance was the signal for prolonged and enthusiastic cheering, which was repeated when the chairman shortly afterwards took his place upon the platform. Hats and handker-chiefs were waved and the delegates rose to their feet in their enthusiasm. The enthusiasm during the delivery of the chairman's address was unbounded, and frequently the delegates stood upon their chairs, waying their hats and shouting. When the speaker referred to the work of the National League in Ireland the Convention rose en masse and cheered, which was repeated when he accused the English government of bringing famine upon Ireland.
When the speaker said, "the shamrock on the banner of the Irish National League, tear-bedewed in its native bed, is the symbol of the glorious union of that race in their homes, separated by seas that divide continents—united by the determination of the race to achieve the independence of the nation," the applause was tremendous, and it was a long time before quiet was restored. At other points in the address these scenes were repeated; particularly when the eloquent speaker referred to the spirit of liberty which hovered over the hall in which the Convection was assembled, and when

Lieut. Greely Denies the Charge of Cannibalism-Military Execution of Private Henry for Stealing from the Scant Stores of the Party. [By Telegraph to the Morning Star. ]

Boston, August 13.—A special dispa from Portsmouth, N. H., says: Early this morning Col. Kent obtained an interview with Lieut. Greely, who admits that Private Henry had a military execution on the 6th of June. As early as March it was suspected that Henry was stealing the limited food which was apportioned out to the survivors for their sustenance and this fact being finally and positively ascertained, Lieut. Greely had thereafter hard work to protect the man's life. It became necessary in order to keep up discipline to inform Henry that he would be shot if the practice continued and that a similar fate would be meted to any other member of the party who should be detected in a like crime. If Henry had been permitted to continue his stealing the entire party would surely have starved to death and Henry alone would have survived. After and in spite of these warnings Henry was again detected stealing pro-visions; among the food taken being two pounds of bacon, the eating of so much of which made him sick. Search was then instituted, when it was found that Henry had among other articles, stolen and secreted a pair of seal-skin boots which had belonged to the hunter of the party. Lieut. Greely was therefore forced, in order to maintain military discipline and to protect the lives of his other comrades, to issue a written order that Henry be shot, which order was carried into effect on June 6th. As to the alleged cannibalism Lieut. Greely says that if there was anything of the kind it must have been an individual act and not general. Nothing of the kind, how-ever, came under Lieut. Greely's personal Sergeant Brainard, who is in the hospital at the navy yard, confirms Lieut. Greely's statements.

More than a week ago Lieut. Greely for-warded to the Secretary of War a detailed report of Henry's execution. Upon proper representations to Secretary Lincoln a court of inquiry will undoubtedly be ordered.

The State Assembly Convened in Extra Session.

(By Telegraph to the Morning Star.) RICHMOND, August 13.-The General Assembly met at noon to-day in extra session. Over three fourths of the members of each house answered to roll calls. A joint committee waited on the Governor to inform him that the Legislature was ready to receive any communication he might wish to make, and were informed subsequently that he would communicate in an hour. Whereupon both houses took a recess for that time. Upon reassembling a brief message from the Governor was presented, in which, after giving his reasons for responding to the demand for an extra session by calling the Legislature together, he says that although there were some errors of law which called for correction and some matters upon which new legislation would be desirable, he did not then nor does he now recognize such necessity as would have justified him in the absence of constitutional demand in convening s

Senator Wickham introduced a resolution requesting the Governor to inform the Senate whether or not any facts have come to his knowledge that will make any legislation necessary at this time to enforce the provisions of previous acts to protect the credit of the State.

At 2 o'clock, after eulogistic remarks, the Senate adjourned in respect to the memory of the late Senator C. D. Crumpler, of Isle of Wight county, who had died since the last session.

The House adjourned immediately after reading the Governor's message.
