directly or indirectly, a single cent derived in any manner or shape from the Credit Mobilier or the Union Pacific Railroad Company.

Now read that over again and see precisely to what Blaine swears. Mind you, this investigation proceeded by four years the investigation that awaited Blaine himself.

Now read the following letter (one of the Mulligan package), dated April 13th, 1872:

"I left with Mr. Mulligan, January 1871, $5,000 in land grant bonds, Union Pacific Railroad, to be exchanged for the amount of land bonds owned by Mr. Caldwell.

Now take the letter and the testimony together and then say if a "lie is not out." But Blaine said in his defence of himself as follows as he is reported in the Congressional Record:

"There is mentioned in this letter $5,000 of land grant bonds of the Union Pacific Railroad, for which I stood only as part owner; they were only in part mine."

"Those bonds were not mine except in this sense: In 1869 a lady, who is a member of my family and whose name is Mrs. Henderson, was asked to sell her bonds for $5,000."

"The six bonds were in my possession, and I had previously advanced money to her for certain purposes and held a part of those bonds as security for that advance."

"Now whilst this statement, if true, may relieve him to some extent of the ownership in the Union Pacific, as it shows how he came by the bonds, there are statements in explanation that do not appear to be true."

"The Herald affirms that this exchange of Union Pacific bonds for Little Rock bonds was made on the 10th of May, 1871, and that the quoted price of Union Pacific Land Grants at the Boston Stock Exchange on that day was not 40 cents on the dollar, but 82; that the bonds were paying 7 per cent interest, and that the company was not in default."

"It does really seem that it is impossible for Blaine to 'act upon the square' in any transaction. He is full of guile and duplicity and untruth. He is very ingenious and very tricky."

"Blaine deserves no mercy at the hands of Democratic editors. He has shown himself in the past a most bitter and vindictive personal enemy of men far superior to himself in all the elements that make character, and until Ben Hill carried him down so effectively he was the malicious and implacable enemy of the Southern people, and in his place in the Congress was wont to empty the vitriolic contents of his mental vial upon this section."

"We propose to call attention to another phase of the Blaine record that is attracting the attention of Northern papers. Mr. Schurz has stripped off the guise in which Blaine tried to hide himself in the famous scene when he dared to read his own letters to the House—those blistering witnesses of his own deep shame and intense depravity."

"Blaine as a PROHIBITIONIST. Blaine made a little speech on the night of the election and tried to break the force of his dodging the vote on Prohibition. But he was heart and soul with Dow, the leader of the Prohibition iron-clad amendment."

"I have had many letters from different parts of the country, making inquiries about Mr. Blaine. My reply has been that he has always been a friend of the Maine law and has many times rendered important services to it."

"The Republican party of Maine has always made Prohibition a part of its platform and conceded to the people at the last Legislature an opportunity to vote on the question of Constitutional Prohibition."

"I wish to state, without reservation or qualification, that I never owned a share of either by gift, purchase, or in any way whatever. Nor did I ever receive, either directly or indirectly, a single cent derived in any manner or shape from the Credit Mobilier or the Union Pacific Railroad Company."

agitated Kansas and Iowa. Mr. Blaine himself has expressed his purpose to vote for it. The average of Republicans have so calculated the effect of the amendment.

He calculated well. He shows that as a party manipulator he is shrewd, very shrewd. The Democrats made no fight and the majority is rejoiced over as very satisfactory to those concerned.

Mr. John S. Henderson has been nominated for the U. S. House from the Seventh District, in place of Mr. Kerr Craige, declined. We take this to be a good selection.

THE VOICE IN MAINE

The returns from Maine, though not complete, are sufficient to allow a close estimate of the result. The total vote is in round numbers 143,000, which is 5,000 less than in September, 1880, and but 4,500 more than in 1882.
