BIG STEALING.

It is a fact that during the first seventy-two years of our Govern ment, beginning with the administration of George Washington, the money lost by defalcations of unfaithful and corrupt officials aggregated $24,441,829.32. There is no mistake about this. The records of the Government have been searched for the facts. The sum is large. It is an average loss of $330,000 annually. But this is small, absolutely a trifle, when compared with rogueries and thefts since Lincoln went into office. Since March 4th, 1861, when the Republicans took charge, there is known to have been stolen or otherwise made way with so as to cause a loss to the Government, the sum of $45,527,625.27. This covers but twenty-three years. The losses are reported by Cabinet officials. Great as this sum is we verily believe it is but a drop in the bucket. Let Gov. Cleveland become President and let the Republican book-keeping be scrutinized by experts, and the people will then really know something of the rascalities that have been practiced upon them.

But here is an average of $2,000,-000 a year stolen by scoundrels in office. In twenty-three years under Republican rule nearly twice as much money is stolen from the people as was stolen in the seventy-two preceding years. Of those seventytwo years Southern men, for the most part Democrats, had charge fifty-two years. Under them only some $330,-000 annually was stolen; but under Republican rule nearly $2,000,000 was taken. Is it not high time that the cry went up from every honest voter in the land-Turn the rascals out and keep them out?

When all is known we verily believe that tens of millions will only represent the yearly plundering under Republican administration.

LOW METHODS.

The intelligent reader should not lose sight of the fact that Blaine is responsible for the assaults upon Governor Cleveland's private life of years ago. There is no doubt of this. The facts as given by ex-Gov. Plaisted, of Maine, show this conclusively. A dispatch from Augusta, Maine, to the Philadelphia Times says:

"It is no longer any secret that Blaine originally encouraged the use of the outrageous charges against Cleveland and was the direct means of their publication in the one Boston newspaper of any consequence, which supports him. Several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of Mr. Blaine, who were then here from different and the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of Mr. Blaine, who were then here from different and the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was held by a few friends of the several weeks ago a consultation was

ed on and noted the effect of the policy

It was because of this that we said that Blaine was entitled to no mercy at the hand of Democrats. Forgetting his own painful and damaging private record he was perfectly willing to achieve success by causing an exposure, greatly distorted and magnified, of an early scandal in which his competitor was involve But he has not injured Cleveland, whilst very greatly harming himself. He is a man of low instincts and depraved methods. He is now learning what it is to be assaulted in his own private record. Mrs. Morrill well knows Blaine.

A SHAMEPUL PRACTICE.

It is charged and with excellent reason that bribery abounded in Maine in the recent election. The Republicans spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in purchasing the estimated 10 per cent, of available voters. This is not the only time or the only State in which this bribery business has been carried on. It is a well known and most important factor in all New England, a section only too prone to talk of free and fair elections. The prevailing idea is that a free election means the right to debauch the ballot by the open purchase of corrupt and purchasable electors. If you think we are strong or excessive in language read what the Philadelphia Times, an Independent Republican paper, says of it. We quote:

"Only in New Hampshire is bribery a more thoroughly accepted agent in a political campaign than in Maine. In both States corruption of voters has been practiced for many years, in the smallest hamlets as well as in the largest cities, until with certain classes of men the sale of their vote has become quite as certain a reliance for eking out a scanty income as is the sale of crop or ox or daily labor. But in Maine and New Hampshire it takes a form seen nowhere else. The rural voter, a large number of small farmers, who in other localities have a recognized position s independent and honest, go into the market with their votes. They dispose of them at a price which would both discourage and surprise the manipulator of votes in a city ward. "All parties have yielded to this insid ious influence until bribery is as much an accepted element in the politics of Maine or New Hampshire as the club banner or the weekly parade are in other States. Men of high position in society, church or office engage in the nefarious business and make no concealment of their work. Candidate are nominated for their ability to contribute the money to bribe voters, and men otherwise moral and honest consent to thus seek and obtain office."

This is very shameful. What right have the people of New England to be eternally mouthing about the abuse of the ballot in the South when they are so guilty themselves?

THE KAISERS IN COUNCIL.

It has been announced that very soon the Emperors of Germany, Austria and Russia will have a meeting and for fear that some satanic fellow not having the love of Kaisers in his heart might blow them across the river Styx with infernal dynamite, the place of meeting is kept a profound secret. What is the occasion of the meeting is unknown to us. That it means harmony between them is very probable; and that it means hostility to other Powers or to any one Power is more than doubtful. The meeting of Crowned Heads to-day is not an event of so much pith and moment as to excite alarm or arouse deep suspicion. The New York Times thus discourses upon the proposed meeting: "It is quite certain, therefore, that the conference of Emperors will do no business, and the only justification of the meeting must be that it is an imposing spectacle, calculated to establish the peace of Europe and to influence the patriotism of the Teutonic and Slavonic peoples by showing how very friendly the Romanoffs and Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs are. It is about a century too late for an imperial conference to accomplish this purpose, even if the three anachronisms were to meet in the capital of one of them, and to 'paint it red' with all manner of pageantries. * * The conversation of the three Emperors will be quite innocuous, though they will doubtless deplore the growth of pertiferous doctrines of equality, and they may exchange their recipes for the best hygienic measures to be taken against dynamite. But it is hopeless to reason with the Nihilists, encouraged, as they are, by the successful explosion of a Czar, and determined to hunt surviving Emperors to their fastnesses. If they find out where the meeting is to be held they will assuredly make preparations for an explosion of Emperors on a scale of unprecedented gran-

In Alabama there is a county called Limestone. We would say that it is good missionary ground. It reports $3,099 as the value of all farming utensils, whilst guns, pistols, dirks, &c., are valued at $5,587. But batt, very bad as this picture is, there is even a worse one and on a much larger scale. It is Alabama itself. The Auditors report shows this for

The STAR copied from one of its Eastern exchanges-we think from one of the Elizabeth City papersthat two farmers in that section had raised more than this: one raising 21 barrels to the acre and the other 120 bushels, if we correctly recall the figures. But North Carolina can equal the world in many things, Twenty years ago Dr. Robert Patterson, of Halifax, made more than 20 barrels of corn to the acre. We forget the odd pecks.

We give some good reading to-day about the Mulligan letters. Blaine is completely "done for." His case is hopeless. His character is gone forever. Indeed he is the "tattooed

BUTLER'S ORGAN ON THE NEW LETTERS.

A Very Bad Case for Blaine.

New York Sun. By far the most damaging feature of the case against Mr. Blaine as it now stands is the further and final evidence that he took refuge in deliberate falsification when he made his first statement to Congress in April, 1876. This is contained in the confidential letter he wrote to Fisher on April 16 of that year enclosing the form of a statement which he desired his old friend to forward to aid him in vindicating himself before the investigating committee. "You can do me a very great favor," he pleaded, "and I know it will give you great pleasure to do so—just as I would do for you under similar circumstances." "Burn this letter," he added in a postscript. The favor was this: Fisher was to say under his own signature that Blaine had "purchased about $30,000 of Little Rock & Fort Smith bonds on precisely the same terms that every other buyer received, paying for them in installments running over a considerable period, just as others did." And Fisher was to add: "The transaction was perfectly open, and there was no more secrecy about it than if you had been buying flour or sugar. I am sure you never owned a bond of the road that you did not pay for at sity, now for Blaine. the market rate. Indeed, I am sure that no one received bonds on any OUR STATE CONTEMPORARIES.

Fisher did not grant the favor, nor did he burn the almost pathetic appeal of Mr. Blaine for protection. One week later Mr. Blaine went into on his own account: "La common with hundreds of people in New Eng-land and other parts of the country, I bought some of these bonds—not a very large amount—paying for them at precisely the same rate that othwhere toughness is required, in from North Carolina and Eastern Tennessee. 'It is wonderful what toughness the hickory timber of that mountain region is capable of, said a wheel maker recently. 'We can turn a piece completely around a circle without breaking a fibre.'"

We can turn a piece completely around a circle without breaking a fibre.'"

Which I know is controlled by highly honorable men—ever parted with a bond to any person except at the regular price fixed for their sale. My whole connection with the road," he went on," "has been as open as the day." Again he said, in sumther the day."

Again he said, in sumther the controlled by highly honorable men—ever parted with a bond to any person except at the regular price fixed for their sale. My whole connection with the road," he went on," "has been as open as the day." Again he said, in sum-Mr. Blaine, who were then here from different parts of the country, at which this matter was talked over. It was then understood to be Mr. Blaine's opinion that the greatest possible use should be made of the Cleveland scandal as being the most effective thing in the hands of the Blaine people at the time. It was then that a vicious fire began all along the line. Decent people were all the time looking for Blaine himself to cell a halt on the disgraceful business, but Blaine calmly look.

We can turn a piece completely around's circle without breaking a fibre."

Carl Schurz is doing such effective work in exposing Blaine and his very corrupt methods that the organs are letting out upon him in the old time way of abuse. They never fail to denounce and slander any decent price."

Why did not Mr. Fisher accede to Mr. Blaine's urgent appeal to suping enough to refuse to vote for one of their dirty candidates. But the more they abuse Schurz the more they will hurt Blaine.

In this statement? The answer is afforded in Fisher's own letter to Blaine, written four years to a day before: "Of all the parties cannected with the Little Reak & Ft. Smith Railroad, no one has been so fortunate as yourself in obtaining money out of it. You obtained sub-for the building of the Little Rock & Fort Smith Railroad. Out of these subscriptions you obtained a large amount, both of bonds and money, free of cost to you. I have your own figures, and know the amount. Owing to your political position you were able to work off all your bonds at a very high price. Blaine, the publication this morning, of a fresh instalment of his correspondence with Warren Fisher, in which his prosti-tution of his official position and his gross untruthfulness are presented in a new and startling light, will bring no surprise. To those Republicans who have denounced and repudiated his nomination this new evidence of his unworthiness will afford a not unexpected justification of their course, and its sure effect will be to bring further and important access sions to their numbers. Upon the defenders of Mr. Blaine these letters will impose the difficult and unpleasant duty of revising and bringing down to date their pleas in vindication, 'I his will be awkward, but it is what we have repeatedly warned them to expect. They have but imperfectly understood the character or measured the capacities of the Republican candidate if they have fatuously imagined that the Mulligan letters were the only storehouse in which those who distrust Mr. Blaine would be able to find facts to support their position. To them and to voof the letters we present this morn-

Some degree of familiarity with Mr. Blaine's Little Rock and Fort Smith speculations will be requisite a full understanding of the import of these letters.

CURRENT COMMENT.

.- "Owing to yur political position," wrote Warren Fisher, Jr., to James G. Blaine on April 15, 1872, "you were able to work off all your bonds at a very high price. Would your friends in Maine be satisfied if they knew the facts?" Four years later Blaine's friends in Maine discovered, to their great astonishment, that when he assured them that he was putting them into "a good thing" "on the ground floor" he was deceiving them. He had received a large commission for disposing of the Lit-tle Rock bonds to them, and they reasoned that if they had dealt directly with Fisher they might have secured for their money not only the bonds which were delivered to them but a much larger bonus of stock and bonds. They could see why Blaine so promptly repaid to them the money and took back the securities. "Some of them," wrote a correspondent of the Springfield Republican in a remarkable history of Blaine's career, published in 1880, "get together once in a while and talk the matter over, and it is not difficult for them to understand why it was that Mr. Blaine was willing to get down on his knees to Mr. Mulligan to implore him not to make this secret agreement with Fisher public." They were "satisfied" that when Blaine declared that he had paid for the bends "at precisely the same rate others paid," he had deliberately said what was not true."-N. Y. Times, Rep.

For ourselves we have long regarded Bishop Pierce as the greatest pulpit orator of the South, and the squal of any in America. At the Methodist Conference held in Pittsboro in 1854—thirty years ago, Bishop Pierce presided, and on Sunday preached on Faith, Hope and Charity. Fayetteville Observer.

ON THURSDAY, FEBRUARY STH, 1883, THE undersigned will revive the publication of the FAYETTEVILLE OBSERVER.

The OBSERVER will be a large 28-column weekly newspaper, and will be mailed to subscribers, postage paid, at $2 per annum, always in advance. It will give the news of the day in as ample form as its space will permit, and both regular and occasional correspondents will contribute letters from the Capital on State politics and affairs. Democratic in politics, the Observer will labor, first of all, to assure the prosperity of the Town of Fayetteville, to develop the vast agricultural resources of its own and the neighboring counties, and to promote all that concerns the welfare of the people of North Carolina.

Opposed to such innovations on the homely ways of our fathers as, in the guise of progress, harm society, the Observer will be found in full sympathy with the new thingr born of the changed condition of the South which sound judgment or enlightened experience find to be also good. As to the rest: it will strive to deserve the reputation of the name it inherits.

"Their great value in Malarial Diseases and Sequelæ has been most abundantly and satisfactorily tested; and I have no question that it would have been a valuable auxiliary in the treatment of the epidemic of Yellow Fever which so terriby afflicted the Mississippi Valley during the past summer. I prescribed it myself, and it gave prompt relief in a case of Suppression of Unit Yellow Fever, and decidedly miligated other tressing and dangerous symptoms.
