to "cast an Anchor to the Windward" in his own behalf. He did not "prove a dead-head" in this instance any more than he did in the larger operations of the Little Rock and Port Smith Railroad. Blaine is such "ways that are dark" never moved "in vain." He always caught on his feet in his monetary jugglery and tight rope performances. The Bank was started and the President was one Logan H. Roots, who was greatly interested in the L. R. and F. S. Railroad. Now this I. H. Roots is the very man who helped Blaine to get the vote of Arkansas that nominated him at Chicago. Roots is an ex-member of the House and a Star Rouser. He is the very fellow to help Blaine, by party to his rascality, and reward him well for corrupt jobberies as a Congressman. This is another refreshing chapter in the political history of the "tattooed man."

WHAT THE SOUTH IS DOING.
The papers are discussing the growth of the South. It is a pleasant theme and one we delight to dwell upon. The statistics gathered from year to year are only approximately correct, but they are near enough to furnish a solid basis for reflection and hope. There may be exaggeration but it is not enough to prevent genuine gratulation and a firm confidence in the future of our section. The South has in it the real elements of growth and prosperity. Many years ago the Century Magazine treated our section to a series of admirably illustrated papers and "The Great South" was represented in bright and encouraging colors. Since then the development has been most marked and the growth has surpassed all calculations. Since 1850, the progress has been very conspicuous and the North sees it. North Carolina about three years ago began to wake up and it really looks as if she were about to open her eyes widely and bestir herself in earnest. Other Southern States have rapidly advanced along the great highway of progress and growth and North Carolina is travelling the same road. We have before us some tables prepared by the New Orleans Times-Democrat. The contrast made between the years ending 1st September, 1883, and 1st September, 1884. We do not accept the figures as perfectly accurate, but they are probably enough so to justify full belief in the large development of the South. We take first the assessments of property:
