Pocket-Book Snatching. A colored man, who gave his name as Samuel Young, made complaint last night that he had been stopped on Front street by a colored girl, who asked him for change for a quarter of a dollar. Young says that he took out his pocket-book to get the change when the girl snatched the book out of his hand and ran. He attempted to overtake her, but the evening was dark and she soon disappeared from sight with her booty-the pocket-book, which contained a twenty dollar gold piece and some silver change. The victim of this robbery is an intelligent looking young man. He showed testimonials to the effect that he was a native of the South coast of Africa, one of the Moonlight tribes, or African Creoles, from Jaffnee Land, and that his tribal name was Bookroucon. He had been attending school at Hampton, Va., under the nameof Samuel Young, and is now trying to raise money by lecturing to enable him to complete his theological studies at Atlanta, Ga., when he will return to South Africa as a missionary.

A Street Quarrel. Quite a considerable "scrimmage" occurred in front of Mr. Will West's saloon on Front street yesterday morning. A white lad drove up to the front of the saloon and backed his cart up to the sidewalk to deliver some oysters. A difficulty arose from some cause between the lad, who was measuring the ovsters, and the colored porter who was taking them into the saloon and finally some very opprobrious epithets were interchanged, when the young man became so enraged that he threw an cyster at the man's head and struck it, upon which the porter grabbed the iron upright connection of the water plug in front of the store, unloosed it and aimed a blow at the young man's head, which, if it had struck him, would probably have resulted fatally; but fortunately the blow fell upon the covering to the cart and he sustained no injury. This ended the affray.
