the sublimest spectacles. You are one of the great councils of the people. Do you know that those gatherings of the people-whether of one side or the other-are the sources of all laws, institutions, and Governments among our people? To be sure, the Mississippi and the Oregon, in their lower measures and spaces, are more visible, but in the mountains the springs are fed which create them. Legislatures seem to be more eminent than those popular gatherings, but you are above Legislatures. You are the makers of Legislatures. Courts seem to be more venerable, but you make courts and Judges. Congress and the Presidency are ordinarily thought to be high in honor and dignity, but you are the source of all their honor, of all their authority, and all their power. [Applause.] "It behooves you, therefore, not to make mere amusement of this work. I speak to you as to a jury. The case before you is not that of some trembling culprit, or some wronged citizen seeking redress. It is your whole country that is before you to-night, whose cause I am to plead, to plead as if life or death hung on the issues. [Applause.]" Beecher reviewed a part of Blaine's vile life and he did not spare him. He gave an account of his interview with "the plumed knave" at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. He took up Blaine's civil service record and exposed it. He rejoiced in being a Puritan and said in stirring eloquence:

"What is the tone of moral sense of people who, when a body of men are anxious to redeem the Government from corruption, call them Pharisees ? as if to seek to stem the tide of corruption was to say 'I am holier than thou, I am a Pharisee.' Who was the Pharisee ? In the earlier day he was the Puritan of the Jews. The Pharisees were the men that in the Babylonish captivity undertook to keep their own people from idolatry, and help them into the worship of Jehovah. They were the Purians of the Orient as the Englishmen were the Puritans of the Occident. It was the Puritan that gave liberty to old England, and it was the Puritan that brought liberty to New-England, laid the foundations of the institutions on which we stand. So the Pharisee were the Puritans, and I am a Pharisee, thank God. [Tremendous aplause].

He showed a high and proper appreciation of Cleveland. As Governor he said of him:

"Nor has there been any sort of chance to make any effectual criticism on his administration since he has been Governor of this imperial State. [Applause.] In this position, simple as a child, sincere as a saint, [applause,] with broad common sense and very uncommon honesty, [applause,] a true and enthusiastic member of the Democratic party, [applause,] but putcent. He says furthermore that the enormous surplus must be kept up also. Now Secretary of Treasury Gresham made a speech in New York Line. recently and he did not agree with Major Blaine. He distinctly took the other side. He said this: "A liberal estimate will not require more than $50,000,000 for the sinking fund for the current year, and we will have a surplus over this of, say, $40,000,000 or $50,-000,000. The steady development of the country and the growth of its trade and commerce will increase the revenues under existing laws. There is, therefore, no necessity for maintaining our present rate of taxation.

But this is not all of Blaine's financial and political stupidity. He once wrote a letter-and not a year agoin which he advocated the plan of keeping up the surplus and to distribute the whiskey tax among the States. He does not say anything of this brilliant scheme as he goes through the land with his circus and his harangues. The New York Times thus comments upon Blaine's unstatesmanlike, absurd and unjust proposition:

"That proposition was a fair measure of Blaine's statesmanship. One could expect no solution of the revenue problem more satisfactory and statesmanlike from the Speaker who reminded Fisher and Caldwell of the ruling that saved the Little Rock grant, the Congressman who fell on his knees before Mulligan, the Senator who strove to defeat the Thurman act, the Cabinet Minister who upheld the Landreau guano claim in Peru, and the speculating politician who 'stood on velvet' in the Hocking Valley enterprise. It was unconstitutional, and would be in practice most unfair, dangerous, and demoralizing. * * We do not expect that this candidate who talks so broadly and generously about protection will reproduce for the edification of his audiences this ridiculous distribution scheme which he put forth with a flourish of trumpets less than one year ago. We do not expect that he will now advocate this or any other plan for reducing the surplus, for the reason that he and the men who surround him prefer that there shall be a surplus, and a large one. They thrive upon conditions that breed extravagant legislation, and they sneer at old-fashioned economy. They have no sympathy with those who hold that all taxation shall be limited to the requirements of economical government."

THE LATEST NEWS. GREATEST OF THE PARADES

Seventeen Thousand Business Men March for Cleveland and Reform-FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD Seven Thousand Dry Goods Men in

New York Herald, Oct. 26th.

The "Cleveland and Hendricks' parade yesterday of the business men of New York was the greatest and most imposing outpouring of sub stantial citizens that has ever been witnessed in this or any other city of the continent. Everybody expected that the parade would be a big affair, but it far surpassed the most sanguine expectations of its promoters. It was a vast popular demonstration that was fairly astounding in its proportions and enthusiasm. People remembered the tremendous gathering in Wall street a couple of weeks ago. They recalled the many significant features of that demonstration. The whirl of the campaign had not dimmed their realization of the fact that up to that time the Wall street event was the greatest thing in recent Democratic history; that men turned out then who had never turned out before in a political demonstration; that thousands of men who had always regarded the Democratic party as a thing to be avoided enthusiastically marched the streets for a Democratic candidate; that hundreds of the men who displayed badges were men worth their millions, who went heartily into their first street parade because they believed the rule of the man they marched for would be vasty better and safer than the "briliant" pyrotechnic and magnetic administration of his opponent. So that people were prepared for an 1mposing array yesterday.

EXPECTATIONS FAR SURPASSED.

But they were not prepared for what actually occurred. It simply staggered those who looked for something big. And the men who make cool calculations about such considerable sum of money was raised to things and estimate the effect they endow the Monteflore chair in the Jewish will have in a political canvass saw their calculations go all to atoms.

MONDAY EVENING, OCT. 27, 1884.

EVENING EDITION BEECHER AS A CAMPAIGNER.

We do not often read campaign speeches. But we did read Henry Ward Beecher's, and of its kind it was indeed capital. There is no living American who can be placed with him, take him all and in all. As a platform speaker he is of the very first order, As a lecturer he has but very few equals. As a preacher he is almost unrivalled. The celebrated Dr. Parker, of London, in one of his books we have read, says Beecher is the greatest living preacher. As a writer he ranks high. His prayers as published, are the most remarkable in literature that are the productions of one brain. His reading is wide. His learning is' varied and, perhaps, profound. Such is Beecher and without exaggeration. In one particular he unquestionably excels any preacher whose productions are in book form. None of the great Continental preachers equalled him in fertility of illustration. In that special gift he is unrivalled. Neither Masillon, nor Fenelon, nor Bossuet nor any of the pulpit masters of Europe equalled him. In Great Britain neither South, nor Jeremy Taylor, nor Melvill, nor Robert Hall, nor Chalmers, nor Whitefield, nor any other preacher ever equalled Beecher in the inexhaustible richness and variety of illustrations.

What a politician Beecher would have made. He is a born "stumper." He can make a better, a more telling, a more magnetic campaign speech than any politician in the North. We doubt if there has been his equal as a stump speaker in that great section since Tom Corwin died.

Beecher, for once in his life, is on the right side. He is for Cleveland, and his speeches must have a considerable effect in New York. He is a power, and if he had never been under a cloud and his morality had never been suspected he would produce a tremendous impression throughout the country.

In his Brooklyn speech last week he stood by the Constitution and gave Paternal Government a black-higher than the party, [applause,] while Mr. Blaine has been imitating the pothouse politicians in the ward elections, going from grog shop to grog shop, and crooning with men, dishonoring the example of all Presidential candidates we have ever had up to this hour, making a canvass everywhere throughout New York State and throughout Ohio, throughout Indiana and Michigan, and coming back soon to upset everything in Brooklyn and New York, here, [laughter] there staid Grover Cleveland, refusing to stir! [Prolonged applause.] He attended to the duties of his office and let the country employ its own best judgment as to whether he should go

BLAINE OPPOSED TO A REDUC-TION OF THE SURPLUS AND TAXATION.

Blaine has never shown any statesmanship in his life. He has shown all of the evil arts of the demagogue and has played the bully and braggart to perfection, but he has never exhibited either the insight, ability or consistency of a statesman. He stands before the American people to-day as the expounder of false ideas and exploded theories in economic science. He poses before his audiences as the advocate of High Taxation, and tells his hearers in effect that the true way to national progress and prosperity is by taking from the pockets of the people their earnings. In other words, that the way to make a country rich and flourishing is to pile up the taxes. That is Blaineism boiled down.

But not only does Blaine advocate High Taxes, but he actually favors its continuance in order that a great surplus may be derived therefrom. There is a surplus now in the Treasury of the United States of 400 millions. This is the excess of taxes above the expenses of (lovernment. The people have been robbed of this vast sum for nothing. The expenses of the Government are very highfull one-third more than is really necessary, and still the Republicans pile up the surplus, and oppose Tariff reduction. Call that statesmanship? It is foolishness, and criminal foolishness, because it oppresses and despoils the people.

Blaine is an arrant fraud in statesmanship as he is in all things. He is blind and fatuous enough to fight the declarations of his own party in Convention assembled. At Chicago the Republicans declared:

mind some facts and figures. All good citizens must desire honest. economical, just government. Al the burden bearers must be anxious to keep down the taxes. All men of ordinary sense know that taxes are a necessity, and yet they are a curse. They take from men their earnings, but it is necessary that this should be done. The true end of Government is to protect men in life, liberty and property. To do this the expense should be as little as possible Therefore, the taxes should be made just as light as the demands and exigencies of Government will allow. Bearing this in mind, read the following figures that tell a true story that all taxpayers are interested in: RATE OF TAXATION IN NORTH CAROLINA. In 1883, Dem......25 cents on In 1884, Dem.....Nothing. COST OF LEGISLATURE. Of 1868, Rep. $430,950

A Glorious Speech. Correspondent of the News-Observer.

WADESBORO, N. C., October 23.-Maj. Stedman and Judge Faircloth spoke here to-day. The audience was composed of one white Radical-the postmaster at this place-a dozen or so negroes and, a large number of Democrats. Major Stedman made a magnificent speech; in fact the best I have heard since the war. He took the audience by storm and carried it with him. Up to this morning politics here seemed at a stand-stilldead. But now every man is wild with enthusiasm for the Democratic cause. His speech has done a world of good in this county. If he could make two or three such speeches in our county old Anson would roll up such a Democratic majority this year as was never heard of before, Hurrah for Stedman ! VOTER.

Whiskey Dealers Preparing to Resist the Police-Railway Store-House Destroyed by Fire.

(By Telegraph to the Morning Star.) TORONTO, Oct. 26.-Information has reached this city that the aspect of affairs at Michipicaton, on Lake Superior, is most serious. The whiskey pedlers and their friends, hearing that a detachment of police had been sent from Toronto, determined upon upholding their trade by violence if necessary. A large number of navvies in camp were armed with Winchester rifles and revolvers, and a regular watch organized to prevent the steamer carrying the police from landing there. Notices were posted declaring that the police would not be allowed to land or to remain at Michipicaton. The steamer has been delayed by bad weather, but the news of her arrival at Michipicaton may be expected at any moment.

----New York Rice Market.

N. Y. Journal of Commerce, Oct. 25. The demand for domestic sorts has fallen off. No weakness of tone is visible, the reduction of volume being due to scanty supplies and indifferent assortment. Holders promise fine displays next week, and buyers are disposed to wait. Foreign sorts are firm, with but little doing except in the lower grades and for export. The quotations are: Carolina and Louisiana, common to fair at 4@5]c; good to prime at 51@5]c; choice at 6@6]c; extra (brand) at 61@61c; Rangoon at 41@41c, duty paid, and 24@24c in bond; Patna at 5@54c; Java at "Their great value in Malarial Diseases and Sequela has been most abundantly and satisfac-torily tested; and I have no question that it would have been a valuable auxiliary in the treatment of the epidemic of Yellow Fever which so terribly afflicted the Mississippi Valley during the past summer. I prescribed it myself, and it gave prompt relief in a case of Suppression of Une. In Yellow Fever, and decidedly mitigated other discovered, but how far the water may have contri-buted to that result (having prescribed it in but a single case) I, of course. cannot undertake to ay. There is no doubt, however, about the fuel that is administration was attended by the most benefit cial results.
