Miss Olcott. The Statesville Landmark speaks in the following flattering terms of Miss Olcott as Juliet:

"Miss Lillian Olcott, supported by Mr. W. F. Burroughs, as Romeo, appeared at the Academy of Music as Juliet last evening to a fair-sized audience. Miss Olcott's interpretation of the character in the main does not differ from that of those who have preceded her in the same role, yet there newness about the impersoustion which, if it does not realize one's ideal of the Juliet whom Shakespeare drew, is at least as interesting. Unquestionably Miss Olcott is an actress of considerable merit. She is conscientious and painstaking and there are elements of success with those who do not underestimate their value.'

The Olcott troupe give two performances in this city-Friday and Saturday.

A DOWN TOWN MERCHANT, having passed several sleepless nights, disturbed by the agonies and cries of assuffering child, and becoming convinced that Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup was just the article needed, procured a supply for the child. On reaching home and acquainting his wife with what he had done, six refused to have it administered to the child, as she was strongly in favor of Homeopathy. That night the child passed in suffering, and the parents without sleep. Returning home the day following, the father found the baby still suffering; and while contemplating another sleepless night, the mother stepped from the room to attend to some domestic duties and left the father with the child. During her absence he administered a portion of the Soothing Syrup to the baby, and said nothing. That night all hands slept well, and the little fellow awoke in the morning bright and happy. The mother was delighted with the wonderful change, and although at first offended at the deception practiced upon her, has continued to use the Syrup, and suffering crying babies and restless nights have disappeared. A single trial of the Syrup never yet failed to relieve the baby, and overcome the prejudices of the mother. Sold by all Druggists. 25 cents a bottle.
