GOVERNOR CLEVELAND.

The Democrats conducted the last campaign masterfully. Heretofore the Republicans have rejoiced in a certainty of success because of "Democratic blunders." But this year it is different. The Republicans became the "blunderers" and from first to last the managers under Blaine's leadership perpetrated many mistakes, the biggest of which was the feast of the Money Kings and the alliterative insult of parson Burchard. Gov. Cleveland has borne himself most admirably. He has shown himself to be a man of even temper, of sound judgment, of calm dignity, of firm will, of self-contained re. sources. Tried severely by slander and venom he remained calm and unmoved. He made no mistakes. He spoke at the right time, he acted at the right time, he journeyed at the right time. Good taste, propriety, excellent common sense have marked his career from the Mayoralty of Buffalo to the high position of being President-elect of fifty-six million people. Although elected he maintains his serenity, his mental equipoise, his good taste, his dignity and his simplicity. The "man of destiny" means well.

The people in selecting him have made no mistake themselves. We say this, and he was not our choice. We would not have named him. But he has grown upon our good favor · by his bearing, by his excellent, conservative administration as Governor of a great Commonwealth, by his discretion, his good judgment, his prudence, his cool balance under peculiar temptation and trial.

Let him have a fair chance. Democrats at least must be patient. There are 115,000 offices. There will be 1,000,000 office-seekers. Nine out of ten are doomed to be disappointed. Do not curse and abuse Cleveland because you fail in your desires and aspirations. Mr. Cleveland has been elected as a Reformer. He must sustain that character and be tested by that standard. The Independent Republicans must be fair sink in the contemplation of such and just towards him, and he will doubtless be fair and just towards

Let us look forward with hope and confidence. A new era has begun, Already the Orient is illumined with Auroral light. In a little while the Days of prosperity will be upon us, and then all men may rejoice in the triumph of an Honest Man.

glad of this. Logan is an illiterate fellow who ought never to have been in the U. S. Senate. The best thing that Illinois can do for him, if grateful for his services in the tented field, is to send him to school. Logan is not as bad a man as Blaine is, for that would be almost an impossibility, but he is a bitter, malignant fellow who has been extreme in all things. He was extreme in his attacks upon the negroes before the war; and he is extreme against the whites of the South now "that the cruel war is over." He was with the South at the beginning of "the late onpleasantness" and when he flopped he set his war coulter very deep and ever since has been giving the war whoop and brandishing his toma-

But the bold and empty headed ignoramus is to go into retirement. We hope Mrs. Logan will at least find time from her domestic and literary cares to teach Black Jack some of the rudiments of "English as she is spoke" by her knight of the long locks and the agonizing frown, She ought also to correct his bad manners so he will not spit tobacco juice into the faces of citizens when the next time "a campaigning he does go." The country is to be congratulated in no longer having the services of the Illinois rouser.

THE "PLUMED KNAVE,"

When they reached Mr. Blaine's house their compliments and friendly regards were expressed in a speech by H. M. Heath, of Kennebec. Mr. Blaine responded his speech being continually interrupted by applause. He said the national contest was over, and the Republicans had lost by the narrowest of margins."—Blaine's speech

The Republicans did come very near capturing the Presidency again. It was driving too near the precipice for comfort, But for the Belshazzar feast and the Burchard alliterative slip-up the Maine office-trader would have gone into the chair once honored by the presence of Washington, and Jefferson and Madison.

What is to be thought of a party that could nominate a fellow of the well-known record of Blaine? What can be said of a party that could first nominate and then support such a creature? Seriously, deliberately and with all our heart we say that there is not as vicious, as selfish, as desperate, and as venal a politician known to the history our country as this rascal from Maine, who is utterly without principle of any kind. He would trade off his country for money if within his power. We believe that Arnold had a white soul compared with the defeated knave of the Republican party. Arnold under disappointments and mortification, with the bad in his nature uppermost, essayed most basely to betray the liberties of his country. This is the one great blur in his heroic life. But Blaine is bad all the time. He sold his personal friends; he sold his high office when Speaker of the United States House of Representatives; he sold his honor, and he would sell his country if he were in power, and opportunity offered. We have never read a more disgusting record than his. His official life is stained with guilt and crime, and it is an eternal disgrace to the party that nominated him for office and then came so very near cursing the country with his supremacy and triumph. The Republican party had indeed fallen awfully low when it got low enough to select Blaine

When we know that so many millions of people voted for the office broker and rascal for the highest office in this great country it is most dispiriting. It shows how widespread is the corruption of the American people when they can so readily support a man of the most shameful life-a fellow without honor or virtue of any kind.

How can any man familiar with the history of nations have hope for his country in view of such an election? The heart of patriotism must a shameful and staggering fact. propos of Blaine's vileness and the country's degradation in allowing him to come so near being elected is a passage in a letter from a distinguished North Carolinian, a member of the present Congress and elected to the next House. Our friend savs: LOGAN SWAMPED.

"Me and Jim is beat." Black
Jack Logan has fallen upon disastrous times for him. He is not only left out in the cold as far as the Vice Presidency is concerned, but he is also relegated to private life by the fact that the Democrats have control of the Illinois Legislature. We are

"Thanks to Him above and congratulations mutual for the opportunity afforded us in the election by a Constitutional party of a Chief Magistrate of a return to Constitutional methods. Heaven grant that your man prove a good sweeper, and ply the broom right lustily. We must prove ourselves Radicals in ejection to get at the bottom lines of 'Radical rascality.' Has Blaine his match for brazen impudence outside of hell or the penitentiary? Have written a friend that it was a fit termination to an utterly vile career, his attempt to steal the biggest thing in the world, and in return for this diabolism to be kicked into "Thanks to Him above and congratula-obscurity, instead of his retiring with the lecorum of an ordinary rogue and scoundrel. Meet termination, I repeat, to his un principled and audacious career. Since the base born sinve who bought the Roman impire at public auction, by the Prætorian Guard, this fellow's effrontery has not been paralleled in history'. And let it be added

'Since he miscalled the Morning Star, Nor man, nor flend bath fallen so far.'

If the language of our friend or our own words appear harsh we can say truly that they are deserved. We did not write one word or line concerning Blaine that we did not be lieve or that we would recall. We were dealing with a very bad man, a very dangerous man, and we wrote precisely as we thought. We regard Blaine as the very Macbeth of politicians. He would stab his country to death to secure his own ends and to gratify his "vaulting ambition." We rejoice that "even-handed justice" has "commended the ingredients" of his own "poisoned chalice" to "his own lips."

Col. Wharton J. Green's majority over Brogden is 4,533. The vote

was as follows:	1
	Green	Brogden
Moore	619
Harnett	526
Cumberland	385
Sampson	1,105
Duplin	1,069
Wayne	144
Onslow	855
Pender		19
Bladen		101
Total	2.55	10.000
	4,653	120

This estimate gives Brogden 96 votes in Bladen that were cast for Boyden. Deduct these and Green's majority is 4,629. Col. Green carried all but two counties. A few more votes in Pender and he would have had that, and with the Boyden votes thrown out in Bladen he falls behind but 5 votes. We congratulate the worthy Colonel on his splendid victory over unstable Brogden.

A gentleman at Lumberton, W. F. H., writes us a polite note relative to a recent quotation in the STAR that was oredited to Byron. He is right in his corrections with the exception of the beginning, which he thinks should be "But time," &c. We reproduce the lines as they should be, which we take from the book:

"For time at last sets all things even, And if we do but watch the hour There never yet was human power. Which could evade, if unforgiven, The patient search and vigil long Of him who treasures up a wrong.'

Our correspondent is wrong in saying they are in Tom Moore's "Fire Worshippers." He will find them in Byron's "Mazeppa," tenth division. We relied upon a very imperfect copy in a newspaper which we had previously clipped, not having a copy of the poems at hand when we were writing.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- In a recent speech in New York Mr. Randall defined the programme of the Democratic party to consist in the abolition of useless offices, simplicity and economy of administration, "the reduction of excessive taxation," the curtailment of monopolies, and the protection of the American citizen wherever he may go, no matter where he was born. So far so good. But in regard to the reduction of taxation Mr. Randall does not speak with the explicitness which the public have a right to expect from a statesman. During the campaign just closed the only reduction of taxes which he advocated was the internal taxation on whiskey and tobacco. The platform on which Cleveland and Hendricks were elected declared against repealing this internal taxation until the war debt is paid, and in favor of admitting raw materials free of duty, and of making duties bear lightest on articles of necessity. If Mr. Randall favors this policy there is no serious difference between him and the advocates of tariff reduction. But none but the most extreme advocates of the present tariff will join him in advocating repeal of the liquor and tobacco taxes in advance of a revision of the tariff. As for "the curtailment of monopolies," that is a mere phrase, without meaning or purpose. What the times demand of public men are plain, unambiguous speech and straightforward action. Democratic double-dealing on the tariff question in Pennsylvania has run up the Republican majority to 80,000 votes.-Philadelphia Record, Dem.

-- The result of the Congressional elections is now known. It is certain that the tariff reformers will have a majority in the Forty-ninth Congress unless some of the Democrats who are now classed as tariff reformers prove to be protectionists and follow the lead of Mr. Randall. It is noticeable that of the forty-one Democrats who joined Mr. Randall in opposing the Morrison bill, only eighteen were reelected. The tariff reformers who followed the lead of Messrs. Carlisle and Morrison were generally returned. It is fair, therefore, to interpret the recent elections as an approval of the tariff reform policy, and a condemnation of the protective system so far as the Democrats were concerned. In the next Congress Mr. Randall, as far as now appears, will have a following of only eighteen as against forty-one in the present Congress if he takes a position against a reduction of the tariff. -Savannah News, Dem.

AN ASTOUNDING PHENOME-NON.

Dr. J. S. T. Baird writes Asheville Citizen as follows: "The people living in the vicinity of Elk mountain, both on the Reems Creek and Beaver Dam sides, were startled by a strange and unusual phenomenon which visited that section about 9 o'clock on Saturday morning the 1st inst. Standing as I did on an elevated point on my farm, with a full aud unobstructed view of the entire Elk mountain range, and happening at the very moment to have my eyes turned in the direction of the point in question, it afforded me an excellent opportunity to observe the whole phenomenon. The morning was exceedingly bright and almost ominously calm. At point about due north of my home, and seemingly just over the crest of the mountain, and at the hour above stated, there was what seemed to be a most terrific subterranean explosion, followed by a very perceptible jarring and trembling of the earth for miles around, as of the deep ntonations of distant thunder, which came on with increasing volume for several seconds. The sound proceeded with rapid undulations in an eastwardly direction, following the course of the mountain, and seeming to traverse the deep bowels of the earth, until it reached a point on the horizon of our valley about fortyfive degrees east from where it started, when it suddenly leaped forth from the bosom of the mountain, and lifting itself far above the horizon, peeled out upon the ear like a mighty thunder-bolt, and thus it ended as suddenly as it began. I have conversed with one gentleman (Mr. A. E. Hemphill) who was on top of the mountain in the immediate vicinity of where the first shock occurred. He says it seemed to be directly beneath him; and the sensation was as though the whole mountain was tumbling from its base, with a fearful shaking and trembling of the earth. I learn two other gentlemen, (Mr. Steve Munday and Mr. James Edwards) who were on the mountain some two miles further east, describe the sound and the shaking and trembling of the mountain as most appalling and terrifying, even putting the leaves on the trees in rapid and lively motion. I have seen other persons who felt and heard the shock many miles away. But what renders it really phenome-

The Rev. Dr. Ball.

New York Evening Post, Nov. 17. Rev. Dr. Ball has got out an apology for the filthy and lying stories he told during the late canvass, which is in substance a plea of good intentions. But this will not do. Nobody knows anything about his intentions but himself, while all can judge his acts. We must remind him of a libel suit he brought two or three months ago against the Evening Post. He must not let it drop. We want a chance at him in Court. If we get it, we shall abate him without cost to the city where he lives.

OUR STATE CONTEMPORARIES.

Our Democratic brethren must not think that the millennium is at hand. We fear that many of them are expecting too much from our great victory. In national affairs we cannot accomplish as much as is desired, because the Republicans will continue in control of the Senate and can prevent the passage of bills repeating existing laws. For instance the revenue laws will remain in force because the Republican Senate will oppose and prevent their re-peal. But while the election of a Democratic President and House of Representatives will not enable the Democrats to repeal any of the existing laws, yet it will prevent the passage of any more. Especially will we be able to defeat any civil rights bill that the Republican Senate may attempt to pass, in accordance with the pledge made by the National Republican Convention.—Pittsboro Record.

While the colored people of North Carolina wili be treated exactly fair and just, and all necessary rights accorded them, all classes should continue to understand that this is a white man's Government, and that white men must fill the public offices. Let there be no misunderstanding on that point and don't deceive the colored man in any way. There is no danger of his being put back into slavery under any circumstances, but he is not considered the person to hold office over white men. That was what all Democratic speakers said before the election, and it is what the great mass of the good white people of the State say now. Freedom and justice and all neces-sary rights to the colored man, but the whites must continue to rule and control. All who talk otherwise only tend to keep up contention and bad feeling.—Charlotte

It is the first in stance in which a candidate for the Presidency, maddened by defeat, has tried to inoculate his country with sectional passions in revenge for its choice of another man. The Times says: "Mr. Blaine took the occasion of a serenade, at Augusta, last evening, intended as a personal compliment by his townsmen, to deliver the most bitter and mischievous sectional speech that has been heard in the North for many a day. The anguish of defeat seems to have extinguished all of the generous sentiment which he professed to have, when he penned his letter of acceptance, or rather shows that that sentiment was paraded in the hope of winning Southern votes; and having failed in that he shows his real temper. He belittles the Northern influence that contributed to his defeat, and reats the result as a transfer of the control of the government to the South, which he professes to believe is fraught with misfortune to the country. He shows no con-ception of the principle that the government belongs to the people of the whole country, and not to a party or section, and endeavors to revive the old antagonism and hatred and to inflame the fears of Southern negroes. A more unpatriotic, mischievous and bitterly sectional and narrow spirit than Blaine exhibits in his defeat, is inconceivable, and adds another to the many causes of congratulation that the country has been saved from an administration dominated by such a spirit."

CHAPTER I. 'I was taken sick a year ago With bilious fever.

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I Could not move! I shrunk! From 228 lbs. to 120! I had been doc.

toring for my liver, but it did me no good, I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. rectly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles, I am not only as sound as a sovereign, but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life." R. FITZPATRICE. Dublin, June 6, '81.

"Maiden, Mass., Feb. 1, 1880. Gentlemen— I suffered with attacks of sick headache." Neuralgia, female trouble, for years in the most terrible and excruciating manner No medicine or doctor could give me re ief or cure, until I used Hop Bitters. "The first bottle
