WILMINGTON, N. C., TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1884.

Whenever we have seen a performance on the trapeze we have always felt that it was very fool-hardy however well done. A dispatch to the Herald from Madrid tells of the misfortune that befell Miss Dare, an American, and M. George. She was suspended from the roof of the theatre by her feet, and held in her teeth the ropes of a trapeze bar on which a male acrobat known as M. George was performing. During the act Miss Dare was seized with a nervous fit and dropped the trapeze. M. George and the apparatus fell whirling to the floor. He is dying. The woman is so shocked she is confined to her bed. Let the foolishness

The London Truth is partly in love with Mary Anderson, but is not much carried away with her acting. It says of her Juliet:

"And Miss Mary Anderson? Well, prettier girl than she looks when she ap pears in the ball-room I have rarely seen and she dances with wondrous grace. If however, we are to estimate her acting by any high standard, le plumage vaut plus que le ramage. To act Juliet up to a point is not difficult for any one who has some stage experience. It has been performed so often, and by so many excellent actresses, that there is a vast mass of accumulated traditional stage business, which enables almost any one to play it with a certain amount of effect, provided that she looks the part. Above this level Miss Anderson's impersonation does not rise. She acts Juliet without being Juliet."

Bradstreet's reports for last week 251 failures in the United States against 115 in 1881. Not the Man He Wanted.

A colored minister states that he was or his way home from his church Sunday night, with some books under his arm, when he was suddenly accosted by stranger and turned to ask him what he wanted, when he detected him in the act of drawing a pistol. As the man got a glimpse of his face, however, he restored his pistol to his hip pocket and went on, remarking that he (the minister) was not the party he wanted. A piece of information which the latter was not slow to appreciate.

A Comical Letter from a Prison Cell. The colored individual, hailing from the West Indies, who was arrested a few nights ago for acting disorderly on the streets, and who at the time was armed with a long and dangerous looking knife, which was exhibited in court, has written a letter from his cell in the guard house! Mayor Hall, which, from its novelty, was thought would bear perusal and hence we give it t the public, as follows:

WILMINGTON FREE HOTEL, Nov. 29, '84.

Mayor Hall—Right Honorable Sir:—] come humbly and respectfully to pray your honor to reconsider in his conscience the decision your honor, under the impression that I was a tramp and a dangerous man, has past in my case. The deposition of the policeman contains nothing against me. There was no witness to testify against me. The large knife alone produced a bad impression in the mind of your honor. Right honorable sir, I affirm before heaven that this knife I always used to soften the wood ground of signs, to scratch hard letters from small or large glasses previous to painting other letters—is only a tool indispensable to my art.

Honorable sir, I am neither a tramp, a vagrant or a bad man. There is no harm in me. I fear God and the law of the land. I have a great deal of work on hand. From several distinguished gentlemen of your own party, I have received money in advance to draw the portrait of Cleveland, our illustrious President. Will your Honor banish me, and oblige me to keep the money of these gentlemen, jeopardizing the good name of my ancestors. Your Honor is a Christian, a gentleman, a paterfamilias, as well as the father of the city. I am a useful man wherever I go. I have contributed time and time to save the city from destruction by fire. I am well known and respected by the high society of Wilmington. I come with all due respect to your Honor to supplicate your Honor, to liberate me, so that I may go and make all the money I can, and then assuredly I will realize the greatest object of my soul, return to my native land, where from father to grandfather we have always occupied the highest social positions. I give your Honor the assurance that my future conduct will be such that your Honor will never regret to have listened to the ardent prayer of one of his most grateful, respectful admirers and servants.

The Fire Last Night.

Fire broke out last night in the residence of Mr. Sternberger, on Ann street, between Front and Second streets. Fortunately the "Comet Star Club," a colored organization, was holding a meeting in the Cape Fear Engine house, on the lot adjoining, and when the alarm was given by some of Mr. Sternberger's family, members of the Club rushed in and speedily extinguished the flames. The fire was in one of the rooms on the second floor, the wood work of which was in a blaze. Capt. A. Jones. of the Club, gave the alarm.

Vaughau, Editor of the "Greenwich Review," Greenwich, O. writes: "Last January I met with a very severe accident, caused by a runaway horse. I used almost every kind of salve to heal the wounds, which turned to running sores, but found nothing to do me any good till I was recommended HENRY'S CARBOLIC SALVE. I bought a box, and it helped me at once, and at the end of two months I was completely well. It is the best salve in the market, and I never fall of telling my friends about it, and urge them to use it whenever in need.

wm. H. Green, Agent, Wilmington, N. C. A DOWN TOWN MERCHANT, having passed several sleepless nights, disturbed by the agonies and cries of a suffering child, and becoming convinced that Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup was just the article needed, procured a supply for the child. On reaching home and acquainting his wife with what he had done, she refused to have it administered to the child, as she was strongly in favor of Homesopathy. That night the child passed in suffering, and the parents without sleep. Returning home the day following, the father found the baby still suffering; and while contemplating another sleepless night, the mother stepped from the room to attend to some demestic duties and left the father with the child. During her absence he administered a portion of the Soothing Syrup to the baby, and said nothing. That night all hands slept well, and the little fellow awoke in the morning bright and happy. The mother was delighted with the wonderful change, and although at first offended at the deception practiced upon her, has continued to use the Syrup, and suffering crying babies and restless nights have disappeared. A single trial of the Syrup never yet failed to relieve the baby, and overcome the prejudices of the mother. Sold by all Druggists. 25 cents a bottle.
