The Cabinet makers are still hard Harriss, C. A. Pickens, R. W. Pe-t work. They have no authority gram, J. P. Simpson; S. Simpson, S. Simpson, teen rooms, for lawyers' offices, including at work. They have no authority for the slates they have made up. lum. Senator Garland's claims for the Attorney Generalship meet with much favor from the papers. In Washington it is confidently said that no one knows Mr. Cleveland's mind, and it is all guess work as to who will compose his Cabinet. McDonald, Bayard, Randall and Garland are mentioned most frequently. Randall is said to prefer the House. The Philadelphia Times's staff correspondent, who is evidently a High Protectionist, writes on the 3rd instant : "A large Southern element, notably the younger leaders of the South, who are tired of by-gone war issues and Bourbon free rade, are inclined to push Randall for the Treasury. They want a new departure. They want the South in accord with Pennsylvanis, New York, New Jersey, Connec-ticut, Ohio and Indiana on industrial issues and in industrial progress and they are likely to affect a speedy revolution in the South. They want more schools and less politics, more factories and fewer distileries, and they must bury the men as well as the issues of the past to get the South in the line of profitable advancement. This sentiment asserted itself in the remarkable ovation given Randall in Atlanta last week and it will assert itself in like manner when he obeys the pressing call for him to visit Nashville, New Orleans, Montgomery aud other Southern centres, as he will at an early day." This may be taken with a great many grains of allowance.

Courier-Journal says: "Judge Finley, of Williamsburg, a noted mountain jurist, is Judge of this circuit and for two years past has not dared to go to Whitesburg to hold court, because of a threat made by one of the most desperate man in the county to kill him if he ever entered it." This man recently fell a victim to the prevailing plague and after his death Judge Finley again went to Letcher. At this term of the Letcher county court a man was to be tried for murder. The man was out on bail and his friends -all of them being of the same desperate stripe as the murderer-determined that he should no be punished. The case was set for Wednesday, and on that day the accused came marching into town, carrying a double-barreled shot-gun and a belt full of revolvers, followed by a score of his friends, armed to the teeth. These were almost immediately followed by another crowd of the same size. all carrying shot-guns and pistols. The other company was composed of friends of the victim, who encamped on a bluff overlooking and commanding the town. Mean. time a third band, composed of citizens, who thought the law should be allowed to take its way and the peace be preserved. 'even if they had to kill every desperado in the county to secure that end,' organized, armed themselves and went on duty, to stay until after the court had adjourned."

Thus far the number of persons who have died from the fearful plague now devastating parts of Virginia and Kentucky is said to be more than 800. It is a form of flux and began six weeks ago in Letcher county, Ky. A dispatch of 1st December from Barboursville to the Louisville Courier-Journal says:

"The disease spread with great rapidity, and it now extends over a territory embracing about one half of the northern portion of Wise county, Va.. the northeastern portion of Lee county, Va., the eastern part of Letcher county, Ky., the upper edge of Harlan county, the southwestern part of Knott county, the southwestern part of Pike county, and the southwestern portion of Leslie county This embraces a strip about seventy miles wide by eighty miles long. The disease is most violent at the headwaters of Straight Creek, Clover Fork and other small streams which rise on the north side of the Pine Mountains, and on Poor Fork, in Harlan county, at the head of Powell's Creek and other streams rising in the Cumberland Mountains."

The reports, the reverberations of which travelled from west to south, were accompanied by a shaking, jarring movement, and attracted the notice of people all over Brunswick. THE FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE OF THE NURSERY.—The following is an extract from a letter written to the German Reformed Messenger, at Chambersburgh, Penn.: A BENEFACTRESS. Just open the door for her, and Mrs. Winslow will prove the American Florence Nightingale of the Nursery. Of this we are so sure, that we will teach our "Susy" to say, "A blessing on Mrs. Winslow" for helping her to survive and escape the griping, colicking, and teething siege. Mas. Winstow's Soothing Syntr relieves the child from pain, and cures dysentery and diarrhoza. It softens the gums, reduces inflammation, cureswind colic, and carries the infant safely through the teething period. It performs precisely what it professes to perform, every part of it—nothing less. We have never seen Mrs. Winslow-know her only through the preparation of her "Soothing Syrup for Children Teething."
