The question now agitating the London public is-"What has become of Gen. Stewart?" That is next to the dynamite affair.

It is said that the British have not yet encountered the best troops of El Mahdi, : If they have much of a showing they will be victorious. The world never saw any better soldiers than those who fight under the flag of Great Britain in this as in all other

Thirty-four men, women and children were wounded by the dynamite fiends in London. This trying to murder innocent people, the little children included, in order to rectify political wrongs, is a most infernal and horrible affair. If John Bull gets fairly aroused some awful retaliation may follow.

Twelve boxes of dynamite were found secreted in the library in the City Hall in Chicago, A special says:

"Twelve boxes, each a foot long, eight inches wide and six inches deep, were found to be filled with dynamite. Among them was one with a thirty-two calibre revolver placed inside with a crank to make it explode."

He reeled, and as he gasped for breath smoke rolled from his mouth and blood trickled down on each side of his chin. At the time he fired, he had about an inch of the pistol barrel in his mouth, and his head was thrown slightly backward. The doc ors say that it is the most marvelous escap from instant death on record. Wounded as he was, Goode returned to Mount Holly and played the bass fiddle for the dancers until past midnight, when the bullet began to make itself felt in his head. His mouth

A Bold Surglary Saturday Night.

Mr. Henry Westermann, of the firm of E. Peschau & Westermann, was visited by burglar on Saturday night last, at his residence, 411 Dock street, between Fourth and Fifth. One of the Captains in port was on a visit to Mr. Westermann and the family remained up until about 12 o'clock. When Mrs. W. awoke about 7 o'clock Sunday morning, she discovered that Mr. W.'s clothing, which he had worn the previous day, had all disappeared from the positions they occupied at the time of retiring. An investigation followed, and it was found that the house had been entered during the night, and that every door and window on the lower floor had been left open or unfastened, while the bureau drawers, etc., had been ransacked and the clothing and other articles scattered promiscuously over the floor. On the floor in the passage, near the front door, was found Mr. W.'s vest, with his gold watch lying upon it and on either side was any empty pocketbook, from one of which had been taken $20 in money and from the other 91 cents; the former belonging to Mrs. Westermann and the latter to Mr. Westermann; while from the pockets of Master Fred. Wester mann had been taken the sum of $7. The clothing was found piled in a heap down stairs. Mr. W.'s papers had been disturbed but none of them was carried off. Money seems to have been the object of the bur-

The French Spoliation Claims, In response to an inquiry, Mayor Hall has received the following explanation in reference to claims and claimants under the French Spoliation bill, which will be matter of information to parties interested:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 24, 1885. Dear Sir:-Your favor of the 22d inst, in received. I have quite explained the status

By the act of Congress recently passed all the French spoliation claims are to be presented to the Court of Claims, under such rules and regulations as they shall adopt. Until those rules and regulations are promulgated, no move can be made tofor any move at this time must necessarily be somewhat in the dark.

With respect to the question whether the claim can be substantiated, we must know: first, what evidence will be required by the Court of Claims? second, whether such evidence can be adduced in support of the claim? It must be seen at a glance that the answer to the second of these inquiries depends wholly upon the answer to the first; and no one, not even a member of the Court of Claims, can yet answer the

I will advise you or Mrs. —— at the earliest moment what is to be done, but some patience on her part is surely not too much for me to expect. Mr. Perryman is still absent from the city.

Death of the Venerable William

Hankins. Our community was saddened by the intelligence, yesterday morning, of the death of the venerable William Hankins, of this city, in about the 77th year of his age. He was one of our best known as well as oldest citizens, and perhaps no man has ever lived in the community who has enjoyed to a greater degree the respect and esteem of his fellow-townsmen, or in whom was felt more implicit confidence. He was born in Bruns wick county, and in his younger days was called by the people to the office of the Sheriffalty. About two years before the late war broke out he removed to Columbus county, where he lived until peace was declared, when he came to this city. During all these years he devoted himself to agricultural pursuits. He has long been a consistent member of the Methodist Church, and in his death that denomination of worshippers, as well as the community in general, has been deprived of a good citizen and a pure and upright Christian gentleman. He breathed his last Sunday night, about 11 o'clock.

An Incident. Mr. L. W. Hodges, writing to a friend in this city, describes an excursion in which he participated a few days since, during which a call was made upon Hon. Jefferson Davis, at his home in Mississippi The party met with a cordial reception and were much pleased with the ex chief of the late Confederacy, who made them a little speech. Father Ryan, the famous priest and poet, and a staunch friend and admirer of Mr. Davis, was also present, Mr. R. H. Pickett, to whom the letter was written, showed us yesterday two orange leaves from a tree immediately in front of Mr. Davis' home, which accompanied it.

Knights on the Road.

The Masonry's Commandery of Knights Templar, of Philadelphia, passed through this State a few days ago, by way of Charlotte and Columbia, en route for the World's Exposition at New Orleans. They were accompanied by Mayor Smith and ther dignitaries, and we are informed that they propose to return by way of Wilmington and make a short stoppage here. Every year this Commandery makes what it terms an annual pilgrimage, travelling in a palace car and provided with every comfort, for which, as the members are all wealthy, they are abundantly able to pay.

Mr. J. B. Farrar, the well known machine agent, had a severe nervous attack Sunday night, but at last accounts was reported improving. Mr. Marsden Bellamy goes to Raleigh to-

Yesterday afternoon, about half past two clock, a difficulty took place at the saloon of John Owen, colored, on South Water street, between the proprietor and one Sam King, colored, during which the latter suddenly drew a pistol from his pocket and levelled it at Owen. Fortunately for the saloon-keeper, however, Officer Sylvester Bryan, of the police force, who happened near by at the time, noticed the action of King, and snatched the already cocked rewolver from bladand just as he was in the not of pulling the trigger. King was then taken to the guard house and locked up, to await a hearing before Mayor Hall this

It was ordered by the Court that the child be turned over by the sheriff to Mr. Garrett. Mr. Marsden Bellamy appeared for the latter.

> For the Star. ASTRONOMY.

MR. EDITOR:-When Mr. Proctor comes ne will doubtless tell us how the Philadel phia Record came to make the mistake in saying that "the diameter of the sun is one hundred times greater than that of the earth!" He will also explain the mistake in saying that "the whole mass of the planets is as nothing to that of the sun."
The sun is really about six hundred times reater than the mass of the planets, planetoids and meteoric matter. Now Mr. Proctor will doubtless solve this problem: If the Nebular hypothesis be true, and the sun is still so much greater, as he is, than all the planets thrown off, why does he not throw off another world? But if he cannot, and the exact equation has been reached between the mass of the planets and the present residuum of the mass of the sun. why was that equation not reached before! and not having been reached, what was then the balance between the centripetal and centrifugal forces? In other words, if there are no other worlds to be thrown off because the universe is now in complete and exact equilibrium, how was its equilibrium preserved before Venus, the Earth and Mars was thrown off? If it was by an increase of the speed of the earlier planets(?) then every planet thrown off must have tended to lessen the speed of all the others. This may be true, and now we live in the age of general fixedness. I doubt the Nebular theory; but if necessary would walk walk ten miles to hear this great man explain it. It is the grandest conception in science of the human intellect. Of course the mistake in the Record was a typographical error.
