"ASTRONOMY."

Mr. Editor:-An "extraordinary" correspondent in your paper, a few days ago, said that "no astronomer ever taught that the sun threw off worlds." Now let us see. In 1655 Kant outlined a system which supposed an immense nebulae condensing and throwing off worlds from its periphery, the condensing sun being the centre, and controlling all. Herschel seized the thought and moulded it into better form. Laplace, who was contemporary with Herschel grasped the idea, and assuming the existence of "nebulæ filling space equal to the solar system," he fancied that system to have been "evolved by the operation of natural forces, out of that nebulous mass." But to make short work, and not to quote from many others, I give Prof. Winchell's statement. He says, after exhibiting the matter of the solar system originally existing as an intensely hot vapor, so attenuated as that several cubic miles of such 'firemist" condensed would only weigh a grain, "the cooling and contracting of this vapor inaugurated a rotation which was inevitably accelerated to such an extent that a peripheral ring was detached which became planets in due succession, the present sun being the residuum of the mass." Also, Prof. Wells, eminent as a scientist, says: 'The cooling and contracting of this mass of vapor, under great rotatory motion, by the centrifugal force threw off rings. Such detached masses formed themselves into single planets, or, like the great original sphere, into planets with satellites and rings, until finally the principal mass condensed itself into the sun, which still occupies its original position as the centre of the system, and as the largest body." Now the relative sizes of the members of the solar system are as yet only approximations to the real. Some of the best astronomers say that the sun is only five hundred times greater than all the planetary matter around him. Others say six hundred, and still others seven hundred and fifty. All these may he taken with due allowance. In making a statement of these relative sizes, we may make a mistake and wrong impression unless we state it all; that is, that while the diameter of the sun is one hundred times greater than that of the earth, the sun is only one fourth as dense as the earth.

A grown up "school boy" ought to wait until he reads and studies more. I believe your first correspondent wrote only to stimulate young people to hear Prof. Proctor's A GENTLEMAN.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.-REV MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.—REV SYLVANUS CORE thus writes in the Boston Christian Freeman:—We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be good—particularly to infants. But of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant troubled with colic pains, quiet sleep and the parents unbroken rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the eleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural and the little cherub awakes as "bright natural and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button" And during the process of teething its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say that they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething singe, on any consideration whatever. Truth is Stronger than Fiction. THE OLD ADAGE, "THE PROOF OF THE PUDding is the eating of it," the proof that one's method of doing business is good is not what he says, but what he does; not what he advertises, but what he performs; not what he claims, but in the results. Business success gained by a fair, uniform and honorable dealing with patrons, by selling good goods at the lowest prices, by conducting the business to the mutual benefit of ducting the business to the mutual benefit of both huyer and seller, is a true success.
