

PLUBLISHER'S ANNOUNCEMENT. THE MORNING STAR, the oldest daily newspaper in North Carolina, is published daily, except on Sundays, at 75 cents per week for six months, $2.00 for three months, $1.50 for two months, $1.00 for one month, to mail subscribers. Daily rates to subscribers by mail, $1.00 per week, $5.00 per month, $10.00 per three months, $15.00 per six months, $20.00 per year. The WEEKLY STAR is published every Friday morning at $1.00 per year, $1.00 for six months, 50 cents for three months.

The Morning Star.

By WILLIAM H. BERNARD. WILMINGTON, N. C. THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 5, 1885. EVENING EDITION.

THE INAUGURAL. We refrained from all comment upon the Inaugural Address of President Cleveland yesterday because we wished to reflect and to consider more carefully the important declaration of principles. The first words uttered by an incoming President are weighty and pregnant with the public weal or public woe. Hence his words are to be considered with care and fairness. The Address as a composition is well done. The style is nervous, lucid and direct. There are a number of sentences that formulate most impressive and important political truths—truths that should be remembered and should constitute the watchwords of a great party coming into power again after the lapse of twenty-four years. It will be well to heed the patriotic injunctions of the new President in such words as these:

President Arthur has been a Republican and his appointments have always shown this. His administration has not been charged with corruption and it has not been particularly wasteful and extravagant. Some of his appointments have been very good and some have been far below any proper standard of capacity and character. Let the New York Times be heard just here. It says: "He has used the appointing power in some conspicuous and important instances with sound judgment and for the public interest. He has used it in other cases equally conspicuous, if not so important, with entire disregard for those interests. His course in these cases has been guided by a theory which he will hardly repudiate, that the appointing power may, within certain broad limits, be used as the personal privilege of him who is intrusted with it. This is a theory wholly unrepugnant, and no intelligent American can fail to regard it with disapproval and indignation."

President Arthur has been a Republican and his appointments have always shown this. His administration has not been charged with corruption and it has not been particularly wasteful and extravagant. Some of his appointments have been very good and some have been far below any proper standard of capacity and character. Let the New York Times be heard just here. It says: "He has used the appointing power in some conspicuous and important instances with sound judgment and for the public interest. He has used it in other cases equally conspicuous, if not so important, with entire disregard for those interests. His course in these cases has been guided by a theory which he will hardly repudiate, that the appointing power may, within certain broad limits, be used as the personal privilege of him who is intrusted with it. This is a theory wholly unrepugnant, and no intelligent American can fail to regard it with disapproval and indignation."

President Arthur has been a Republican and his appointments have always shown this. His administration has not been charged with corruption and it has not been particularly wasteful and extravagant. Some of his appointments have been very good and some have been far below any proper standard of capacity and character. Let the New York Times be heard just here. It says: "He has used the appointing power in some conspicuous and important instances with sound judgment and for the public interest. He has used it in other cases equally conspicuous, if not so important, with entire disregard for those interests. His course in these cases has been guided by a theory which he will hardly repudiate, that the appointing power may, within certain broad limits, be used as the personal privilege of him who is intrusted with it. This is a theory wholly unrepugnant, and no intelligent American can fail to regard it with disapproval and indignation."

President Arthur has been a Republican and his appointments have always shown this. His administration has not been charged with corruption and it has not been particularly wasteful and extravagant. Some of his appointments have been very good and some have been far below any proper standard of capacity and character. Let the New York Times be heard just here. It says: "He has used the appointing power in some conspicuous and important instances with sound judgment and for the public interest. He has used it in other cases equally conspicuous, if not so important, with entire disregard for those interests. His course in these cases has been guided by a theory which he will hardly repudiate, that the appointing power may, within certain broad limits, be used as the personal privilege of him who is intrusted with it. This is a theory wholly unrepugnant, and no intelligent American can fail to regard it with disapproval and indignation."

President Arthur has been a Republican and his appointments have always shown this. His administration has not been charged with corruption and it has not been particularly wasteful and extravagant. Some of his appointments have been very good and some have been far below any proper standard of capacity and character. Let the New York Times be heard just here. It says: "He has used the appointing power in some conspicuous and important instances with sound judgment and for the public interest. He has used it in other cases equally conspicuous, if not so important, with entire disregard for those interests. His course in these cases has been guided by a theory which he will hardly repudiate, that the appointing power may, within certain broad limits, be used as the personal privilege of him who is intrusted with it. This is a theory wholly unrepugnant, and no intelligent American can fail to regard it with disapproval and indignation."

President Arthur has been a Republican and his appointments have always shown this. His administration has not been charged with corruption and it has not been particularly wasteful and extravagant. Some of his appointments have been very good and some have been far below any proper standard of capacity and character. Let the New York Times be heard just here. It says: "He has used the appointing power in some conspicuous and important instances with sound judgment and for the public interest. He has used it in other cases equally conspicuous, if not so important, with entire disregard for those interests. His course in these cases has been guided by a theory which he will hardly repudiate, that the appointing power may, within certain broad limits, be used as the personal privilege of him who is intrusted with it. This is a theory wholly unrepugnant, and no intelligent American can fail to regard it with disapproval and indignation."

THE LATEST NEWS.

FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD. UNITED STATES SENATE. EXTRA SESSION. The Opening Proceedings—Galleries Crowded with Visitors—Executive Session. The Senate opened at 10 o'clock. The galleries were crowded with visitors. The Executive Session was held at 11 o'clock. The Senate adjourned at 12:30 o'clock.

COMMERCIAL.

STAR OIL, Turpentine—The market was quoted at 84 cents per gallon, with no sales reported. ROSIN—The market was quoted at 90 cents for Strained and $1.00 for Good Strained, with no sales reported. TAR—The market was quoted at $1.10 per barrel of 280 lbs, with sales at quotations. CRUDE TURPENTINE—Market steady, with sales reported at $1.15 for Hard and $1.75 for Virgin and Yellow Dip. COTTON—The market was quoted quiet, with small sales reported on a basis of 10 to 13 cents per lb. for Middling, and 100 to 100 on private terms. The following were the official quotations:

WHEAT BAKING POWDER. PURE AND WHOLESOME. MARTIN KALBFLEISCH'S SONS, Grocers.

THE GREAT SAUCE OF THE WORLD. LEA & PERRINS. IMPARTS THE MOST DELICIOUS TASTE AND ZEST TO EVERY PREPARATION.

NEW RIVER MULLETS. 100 BARRELS FINE NEW RIVER MULLETS. JOHN DUNCAN'S SONS, AGENTS FOR THE UNITED STATES.