The nomination of Henry G. Pearson, to be Postmaster of New York City was conirmed without count or division. Considerable discussion took place over the nomination of Alexander R. Lawton, to be Minister to Russia. The committee on Foreign Relations had reported it adversely, a majority being of the opinion that al-though Gen. Lawton had received full pardon and amnesty from President John son in February, 1867, yet by the Four-teenth amendment to the constitution he was ineligible because his political disabilities had not been removed by Congress. The committee reported this as the only objection to the confirmation of General Lawton. In the Senate it was contended by some of Gen. Lawton's friends that the form of oath prescribed and taken by him. when he entered the military service of the United States, did not include the requirement to "support the Constitution," and that therefore it did not require any act of Congress to enable him to hold the position of Minister.

During the discussion, a message was received from the President asking that ac tion be suspended, and later the nomination was withdrawn. This action was taken on account of the committee's adverse report; the Administration being of opinion that President Johnson's pardon rendered Gen. Lawton eligible.

Although the Republicans in cancus failed to agree upon the party policy regarding the proposition to make an issue with the Administration upon the question of removals without cause from offices which are not covered by the tenure of office act, they seem to have been unanimously opposed to such removals; for, when the nomination of Mr. McGrow, to be Internal Revenue Collector of the West Virginia district, was reached, the point was made that the in-cumbent was an ex-Union soldier and that he had not served four years. It was argued that though the office had no fixed term, the principles of the tenure of office act were nevertheless applicable, and Republicans expressed themselves as opposed to making a removal of the kind proposed upon political grounds alone. A motion was made to postnone action until after the pending nominations had been gone over, and upon a yea and nay vote was carried by a strict party vote. Several other nominations were temporarily laid aside upon the same ground, and when the list had been completed the subject was further discussed. There being no prospect of an agreement without a long debate, it was decided to postpone action until December.

The Senate adjourned without electing a

GEN. GRANT.

A Decided Improvement in his Condition - Resolutions of Sympathy Adopted by the Southern Press Association.

(By Telegraph to the Morning Star.) New York, April 2.-Dr. Fordyce Barker, at 3 o'clock, left Gen. Grant's house, where he had been in consultation. He said to a reporter: When I went in Gen. Grant was asleep. He awoke and recognized me, saying "How do you do?" I replied that I felt very good and that he looked a little more comfortable himself. The Doctor said that Gen. Grant, during his visit, could breathe through his nose. He is of epinion that Gen. Grant will pro-bably live through the night. His greatest danger, the Doctor thinks, is to be feared between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning. Gen. Dent left the patient soon after, and said that his brother in law's condition is about the same.

6.30 P. M.-A member of the household has just stated to a reporter that the General is considerably better. It is the belief of this person that the patient may live three days yet. The General is at the moment reposing easily on a sort of couch made of two chairs, although he has lately shown some restlessness by walking up and down. Senor Romero is now with him. 5.45 P. M.-The improvement noted at 2.45 continues. The General has just had his throat attended to, at his own request, which gave an opportunity to examine it closely. There is no increase of ulceration and the parts are not so angry in color as a week ago. He has the appearance of one refreshed by a good sleep. There has been a decided improvement all day to-day. At one time he said, "I am not suffering At half past 8 o'clock Gen. Grant took his own temperature and timed his pulse beats by his stop-watch. He feels comfortable and cheerful, and has asked for the presence of the members of his family, that he may enjoy their company. His general improvement continues. His pulse is 80 and of fair temperature. He is not suffer

Dr. George Thurber, for nearly quarter of a century the editor-in-chief of the American Agriculturist, Joseph Harris, Byron D. Halsted, Col. M. C. Weld, and Andrew S. Fuller, the other long time Editors, together with the other writers who have made the American Agriculturist what it is to-day, ARE STILL AT THEIR POSTS.
