Our Northern mail comes very regularly. Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Virginia papers come with regularity generally. But New Orleans, Mobile, Louisville and Asheville papers come with exceeding irregularity. We generally receive two or three issues of our New Orleans and Louisville exchanges at one time. It is not unusual for two or three of our Asheville daily exchages to come together. Why there should be this irregularity in the mails is more than we understand.

The attack was so sudden and overpowering that Mr. Dukes could offer but slight resistance. He was thrown to the ground, and the infuriated animals were tearing and biting the flesh of the unfortunate man at a terrible rate, when, fortunately, assistance opportunly arrived and the dogs were beaten off. It is believed that Mr. Dukes would have been killed by the ferocious animals but for the timely arrival of help. As it was he was bitten through both hands and one of his wrists, and also badly bitten in the left leg and thigh. It is thought he will be laid up for some time with his wounds. The annual meeting of this Club was held last night at the City Hall, and was one of the most spirited and enthusiastic meetings that the Club has ever held. C., and the Savannah Yacht Club, of Savannah, Ga., will be invited to participate in the same. If these Clubs can come over to this race it will be the finest thing in the order of yachting that this Club or Wilmington has ever seen, as not only the competition between yachts from other Clubs, but the fact that three or four new vachts will be added to the fleet of the Carolina Yacht Club, in addition to the fleet of fast yachts that it now has, which to their inches are equal to any in America, there will be the most hotly contested race that ever took place in these waters.

Alleged Ghostly Visitations.

Considerable excitement has existed i the neighborhood of Second, between Hanover and Brunswick streets, for several nights past, by what is claimed to be ghostly visitations. The apparition is said to appear at the house of Mr. James E. Padrick about 8 o'clock every night, and it is claimed to be the spirit of a Mrs. Carroll, who died in Bladen county some three years ago, and who left two children, one aged 16 and the other about 8 or 9 years, who live with Mr. and Mrs. Padrick. The spirit only makes itself visible to these children, but the "voice" can be heard calling the children and directing their movements when "on duty." When the chil dren go into the room in which the "ghost" always appears it commences throwing pillows and chips about promiscously, often striking persons. Sometimes the ghostly presence makes itself felt in room where the company is assembled, according to the evidence of one of the males who was present Sunday night. "She is in your lap, now," remarked one of the mediums to a lady sitting among the visitors in the parlor, "Yes, I feel her weight," replied the lady. Sunday night the programme was somewhat varied by the appearance of the "spirit" of the little child who died in the same house a year or so ago, but belonging to another family. Night after night curious people gather at the headquarters of the alleged visitors from the spirit land.

COL. MCRAE INTERVIEWED.

His Recent Visit North-Compromise of the Matthews Railroad Litigation-The Business Gutlook North-Matters in Washington-President Cleveland-The North Carolina Senators-Appointments, &c.

Col. D. K. McRae, who has recently returned from a visit North was interviewed by a representative of the STAR yesterday. Col. McRae said that he had been in New York for two weeks or more, engaged in affecting a compromise of the Matthews (Carolina Central Railroad) litigation, and was glad to say that all the suits have been compromised.

Will there be any good effect on Wilmington?

The effect ought to be decidedly benefit cial. The Carolina Central Railroad is properly conducted, a local Wilmington road, with capacity to below and setura commerce through a rich country, of which this ought to be the ocean outlet. By this compromise, the new organization obtains the sanction of the large minority interests heretofore withheld, and there is a mutual contract that the road shall be operated in its own interests for the benefit of all its stockholders; the minority are admitted to two members of the Board of Directors, and the old per rates of the Murchison time are continued. This ought to bring more cotton here and return more through freight. The first mortgage bonds, already a first class security, will certainly be enhanced in value, and the owners of these large blocks of income bonds are certainly interested that the road shall earn and pay income. I think this community and all that part of the State on the line of this road are to be congratulated on the termination of these controversies.

You ask me about the business outlook in New York. I think it more favorable, notwithstanding the fluctuating phases of the war aspects in Europe keep up a feverish excitement and retard the ordinary flow of enterprise. Most people think that a war hetween England and Russia, once begun, will be long and general, and that this country will reap the benefits of furnishing the supplies. This is only one side. I think there is quite another side, and for my part I would rather see a natural and normal growth of prosperity than such as will be stimulated by a general war.

Did you stop in Washington?

Yes, I stopped in Washington, and saw some members of the Cabinet, Postmaster General Vilas and Mr. Lamar, and also the President. They are all working as hard as beavers and are doing the very best they can, and I think remarkably well for the party and country.

Did you see much evidence of discontent at the action or non action of the admin-

Some, yes, of course—they who have not yet been reached in the service of the courses are impatient and getting to be soreheaded, and they whose plates have been passed by are disappointed, hungry and mad. The administration is now navigating its shallowest waters-the distribution of the offices. It is in no danger of shipwreck, because the water is not deep enough, but the bottom will now and then, and pretty often, too, be rubbed, and both skill and caution are necessary to keep off the shoals and rocks. But the people at large are not taking on any powerful sight of bother about the offices. The truth is that while keeping strictly within the line of the party civil service platform and his own promises, Mr. Cleveland is moving faster than either Pierce or Buchanan, and the changes from Republican to Democratic incumbents are developing more rapidly than they did from Whig to Democratic under Mr. Pierce. We all remember, that his foreign appointments ran far into the summer months. Some mistakes have already been made under over-pressure. But these are no more conspicuous than some under Polk and Pierce and not to compare with many Republican blunders. You ask me what impression the President made upon me. Really, he makes but a single impression on every one; and it is because he has no arts and no practices. He is an earnest, unaffected, straightforward, matter of fact man of business. He has atrong limbs, a portly person, a big head and it full of brains. Whoever thinks he is not a great man and seeks an encounter with him on that idea will find himself unexpectedly in the hands of a giant. He is heavy featured and rugged, but yet with a Napoleonic cast of countenance and an expression of general good nature and of great will. I should say of him that in his convictions he is obstinate to the last degree; unless the approaches are made on the amiable side of his disposition. I have seen a great deal of official presentations and receptions in Washington since the days of Mr. VanBuren, and Mr. Cleveland compares favorably with the best of them in ease and dignity of manner, and in an imposing presence, and surpasses most of them in graciousness and affability, and the White House looks more like the people had a property in it than it has since "Old Hickory" was its occupant.

Our two Senators? Why certainly, both are on hand. As to each's respective influ ence, you know "comparisons are odorous." But those who know them expect to see them reach results by obviously different methods. One by the suaviter in mode, the other by the fortifer in re. I saw Gov. Vance only for a moment, and then he was hard bent on towing Ham Jones into the Western Attorneyship, and it is manifest from the favor shown to his brother, the General, and from Hale's getting the im- | and he wants the public to know it.

portant consulship to Manchester, that the Administration likes to keep the Governor in a good humor. Besides, Ransom gave nist efficient help in both these matters. Any one who looks can see that Gen. Ransom has close relations with the President and Cabinet, at once cordial and confidential, and it is well that it is so, for he is very conservative, and always a safe and wise counsellor, and a true hearted North Carolinian.

In the short conversation which I had with the President he spoke with warmth of his interest in North Carolina, and said it was both his hope and expectation to pay our people a visit, and that before a great while. I saw, too, Mr. Randall, who is also looking forward to visit North and South Carolina. I saw no Democrat who was inimical to Mr. Randall: on the contrary, I heard on every side the expression of confidence in his orthodox Demecracy, and he is everywhere regarded as the leader who is to maintain and defend the admin tion in the House of Representatives. Having himself greatly contributed to the platform as it now stands, he is expected to be its prominent and faithful expositor n speech and action.

Of our local matters I entertain a very decided opinion, but I disavow any positive knowledge, for I neither sought to know nor was anything said to me that was at all precise or positive. I am sure both the administration and our representatives would like to see Wilmington harmonize on the applications, and if this were done the appointments would be advanced, I believe. But if selections are to be made between rivals, in my opinion there will be no great haste unless some official delinquency be alleged against the incumbents. Without professing to know, I entertain no doubt that Mr. Robinson will be the collector. It would be very extraordinary if the Lieut, Governor of the State should be refused the single favor he is asking, and that a local office for a citien of recognized worth. Do you think if the Lieut. Governor of New York, or Pennsylvania, or Massachusetts, were to plant himself on one single request for a favor that it would not be conceded to the office, and the more so if the man also carried weight? I think this is the case as to the collectorship.

I prefer not to say much of Dr. Warren's application for the Consulship to Paris, to be charged against North Carolina. It is ckeeky enough, in all conscience. I heard wonder expressed that he had Gov. Vance's recommendation. I don't wonder at it, because I know of ties between them that the present generation are not informed of. His late narrative on the "Fall of Raleigh and the Mission of Govs. Swain and Graham" was intended as a service to Gov. Vance-and although he talked as though of his own knowledge with a glib tongue, there is in the statement no more than a grain of fact to a bushel of error. For example he says, "We had passed beyond our own pickets and were proceeding to fulfill the mission upon which we were dispatched, when an order of recall was suddenly received from President Davis, who was then at Charlotte. This action of the President was no doubt based upon a serious misunderstanding of the purposes of the mission, and is doubtless the real cause of the present controversy." Now no order of recall or other order was received from President Davis. He was not then at Charlotte. He knew nothing of the mission and had no understanding or misunderstanding about it. Gen. Johnston sent the revoking order. He sent it on information which I furnished him, of the purpose of the commissioners, and the information was true. I have long ago, when all parties were alive, told the story to Mr. Paul C. Cameron, of Hillboro, and I have it in manuscript for the historian when the time comes. suppose Gen. Johnston's attention has not been called to the matter or he would not let the case rest where the narrative puts it. I did hear that this application of the Bey's was only a feint to cover a real application which he is making to the Mahdi for a Pachalich in the Soudan. But I suppose that this is a romance, like the "Fall of Raleigh."

The Shop-Lifters-They Waive an Examination and are Remanded to Yesterday afternoon, about 3:30 o'clock, the six female shop-lifters, Mag. Fisher, Sophia Fisher, Ida Fisher, Mary Riley, Lizzie McNeill and Jane Holden, were taken from the county jail and carried to the City Court Room in the City Hall, where it was proposed to hold the examination. In the meantime an eager crowd had filled the court room to its utmost capacity, while the passage, the porch and the adjacent streets were thronged with people, all eager to get a sight of the alleged culprits, if they could not hear the testimony. Solicitor Moore was present to represent the State, and Mr. A. G. Ricaud, of Russell & Ricaud, of counsel for the defence. The accused, through counsel, waived an examination and the defendants were required to enter into bond in the sum of $150 each for their appearance at court. failing in which they were remanded to jail, when the crowd dispersed.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.-REV. SYLVANUS COBB thus writes in the Boston Chris-tian Freeman: — We would by no means recom-mend any kind of medicine which we did not mend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be good—particularly to infants. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant troubled with colic pains, quiet sleep, and the parents unbroken rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly nearly and the little charub awakes as "bright." the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." And during the process of teething its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say that they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething siege, on any consideration whatever. Sold by all druggists. 25 cents a bottle.
