The screams of the girls, however, quickly brought some of the neighbors to their aid, and through their exertions the life of the poor girl was saved. The most active among the rescuers were Henry Berry and David Williams, colored people living in the vicinity, who showed great presence of mind under the circumstances, smothering the fire with appropriate material and even taking measures to prevent the unfortunate girl from inhaling the fire; one of the first acts of Williams being to place his hand over her mouth.

Catharine was burned very badly from the waist upwards, especially about the breast, face and arms, and it is feared that she inhaled some of the fire. Surgical assistance was immediately summoned and at last accounts she was resting as easy as could be expected. Miss Della also had her hands and arms burned pretty badly in trying to save her sister. The house caught fire, but, thanks to prompt assistance, the damage was trifling. A messenger was sent for Mrs. Casteen and she reached the bedside of her suffering daughtemperature.

KINSTON, May 15, 1885 .- On Wednes day night Rev. Mr. Lewis preached, and on Thursday morning, being the Feast of the Ascension, Early Communion was cele brated and there was Morning Prayer and sermon by Rev. Mr. Hillyar, of Goldsboro. The writer was necessarily detained from these services, or he would give more detailed account of them, and a Convention met immediately after Morn

The Bishop referred to the Episcopal residence, the ownership of which has lapsed to the parishes in Wilmington. The parish of St. James has given her share to the Diocese. He proposed to claim the Diocese's share to the scholarship to the General Theological Seminary, now owned by the Diocese of North Carolina.

On motion of Mr. Shield it was resolved that a committee be appointed to consider that part of the address relating to the University of the South. On motion of Col. Fremont it was re-

The Bishop declined to appoint a committee under the latter resplution; and asked the Convention to nominate the same. The nomination of the committee for this latter object elicited considerable dis-

the writer feels that it is never too late to render a tribute of grateful remembrance to one so tru-ly a Christian, and so fondly loved ! All who knew John Bright Brown, of Bladen county knew and loved a Christian gentleman. Generous and hospitable almost to a fault, his wide open doors ever bade the friend or stranger "enter and wel-come." His courtesy and winning smile (Addi-son like), won hearts and hand-grasps many. His warm, Christian soul, loving, every one, even to the timest babe learning its carliest lesson in life's alphabet, to the bent and bowed form with its crown of si vered hair. But, above all, at the bedside of the dying his character was most beautiful. Tender as a woman, but firm and un-skrinking at his post, he never wearied of admin-istering comfort and sweet words of consolation skrinking at his post, he never wearied of admin-istering comfort and sweet words of consolation to the sick and suffering. No worded liturgy could produce a more soul-stirring prayer, or more elequent heart appeals, for a sin-sick and suffering isoul. Like the twilight of our own Southern hand, which leaves, ere the darkness of night fails upon us, a soft, rich and golden light apon the face of nature, beautifying and glorify-ing the world about us, so does the light of this good man cast its illumined shadow behind him, and the world in which he lived and moved is made actor by his life.

The Sun says: "She was a native of Richmond county, in this State, and the daughter of the late Wm. P. Leak, Esq. With the exception of her brother, Mr. Jat. A. Leak, of Wadesboro, she was the last surviving member of a large and influential family. She was married in 1840, and has raised a family of devoted sons and daughters. Her health failed about two years ago. She was always remarkable for sweetness and gentleness of disposition, but throughout her long and painful illness these characteristics seem to have intensified. Her character grew more lovely and perfect under suffering. Seldom has a death occurred in our community which has caused such widespread sorrow for called forth so many expressions of regret and sympathy." Mrs. Lilly was the mother of Mrs. Preston Cumming and Mr. E. J. Lilly, Jr., of this city.
