arly literary paper of the Northwest, the Chicago Current, understands this and says:

"Local news and thought are rapidly losing their just places in this age of mani-fold copy and labor saving appliances. Journals with a small circulation filled with matters pertinent to the scene of publica-tion are becoming rarer each year, which is a development the wrong way. Besides, the easy methods of the present day bring forth too many papers."

The following is patriotically and nandsomely said:

"To-morrow the people of North Caro-lina will dedicate a Confederate soldiers' monument at Wilmington. The death of brave men is thus proved to have a lesson eyond even the cause for which they battle. That they should be remembered with love and admiration, though their lives went for nought that was of political import, is a point to the credit of human nature. The worship of gold shall not yet prevail against the instincts of heroism."

This is from The Currant but it s mistaken as to the monument. Wilmington honors its heroes who sleep in its beautiful city of the dead, but it long ago erected an exquisite monument-a Confederate in bronze -that has been greatly admired by all who have seen it. The eloquent Long told us it was incomparably the finest, the most striking he had seen. Gen. Jo Johnston gazed upon it at his last visit, and as the tears stood in his eyes he was only able to ejaculate, "My God,"

Death of Mr. B. T. Hancock.

Mr. E. T. Hancock, of the well known firm of Hancock & Daggett, of this city, died at his residence, northeast corner of Sixth and Princess streets, yesterday afternoon. Deceased had been in bad health for several months, suffering mostly from serious affection of the head. His condition had improved somewhat lately, and he had been out riding with Mrs. Hancock on two or three occasions, but Monday afternoon he was stricken with paralysis, when he commenced sinking rapidly.

Mr. Hancock was a native of the State of Maine. He came here directly after the war, or during the year 1865, and acted for a time as clerk under Mr. N. Jacobi. In 867 he went into the business of paints, oils, etc., for himself, and in the following year Mr. W. T. Daggett became connected with him. He had been twice married, his last wife being a daughter of Col. C. L. Grafflin.

Agricultural.

Our agricultural editor seeded the last of his cotton yesterday, adding largely to the acreage of North Carolina. His plantation is rear of STAR office, and covers an area of 8x15 feet. He planted just thirty-six seed, and he is offering to bet two to one that he makes two bales to the acre. In fact, it is the two-bale kind he planted; and it is warranted to grow as tall as Dolly Browning and to spread after the manner of Pres. Bridgers's butter in July. Futures, strong and excited. August, 18 cents to s dollar and a half. Consolidated net receipts, one bale. Please keep your margins solid, boys, Mayor's Court. The only case before the Mayor's Court vesterday was that of John Waddell, colored, charged with disorderly conduct He was arrested north of the railroad about 7 o'clock Monday evening, by Officer Terry, when he strugged and resisted to such an extent that he had to be tied with ropes and put on a dray, and then he shouted "murder" at the top of his voice all the way to the guard house, besides using horrible language. He was required to pay a fine of $10 or go below for twenty days.

The following clippings from Paris journals, have just been received by a gentleman of this city, and will be read with melancholy interest by the many friends of the unfortunate gentleman whose unexpected death was such a shock to those who knew him and esteemed him for his generous qualities and many virtues. 'Mr. Joseph Flanner one of the oldest American residents of Paris, died suddenly on Tuesday last, at his residence, 22 Rue d'Antin. He came home early in the afternoon of that day, in apparently his usual health, and ordered some refreshments which were served to him by the concierge.
At 7 o'clock he was discovered lying life less upon the floor of his bed chamber, having succumbed to an attack of apoplexy. He was a gental and kindly gentleman, and possessed many warm friends amongst the Americans in Paris. Mr. Flanner was unmarried and had no relatives in "The late Mr. Flanner, a day or two before his death, dined at a table d'hote in the Rue de Seze. After he was seated, he remarked upon the fact that there were thirteen persons at the table, and appeared somewhat uncomfortable. Mr. Flanner stayed and ate his dinner, westering however that he did not 'want. protesting, however, that he did not 'want

A New Way to Transport a Prisoner. A novel plan by which a prisoner was transported from the classic precincts of Brooklyn to the guard house was invented by two of our policemen on Monday evening last. The prisoner, who had imbibed too much "knock-knee," was placed in a small hand-cart, which one of the officers pulled in front while the other pushed from behind. The rider's legs were dangling and being kicked about in front of the cart. while he apparently took in the situation. and seemed to enjoy his ride, as he was kissing his hand to the girls on the sidewalk and laughing and screaming and shouting "go further," while some of his language was simply outrageous. Good time was made, however, and the station house was reached without any accident.

A City of Flowers.

Wilmington might just now be aptly termed "the city of flowers." The front yards of many of our citizens present a gorgeous spectacle. It is worth a ride around the city to behold the levely panorama of nature spread out before one. Flowers-beautiful flowers-are to be seen on every hand, while the green plumage of thousands of shade trees vie with the roses and the dahlias, the hyacinths and the camilias in the dazzling, bewildering picture. It hardly seems possible that our beautiful "city by the sea" was ever arrayed in such glorious splendor before. We can almost endorse the language of an enthusiastic lover of the beautiful in nature. who, yesterday morning, in the exuberance of his feelings, after a drive through the city, exclaimed "It is the most beautiful place in the United States!".

No Criminal Court To-Day. There will be no session of the Criminal Court to-day, it being the anniversary of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence and a legal holiday, and jurors summoned for to day will be in attendance to-morrow (Thursday) morning, at 10
