There are troubles at Vanderbilt University. Rev. Dr. Shipp, a native of this State, has published a card concerning Bishop McTylere. A Nashville dispatch to the New York Times, dated 15th, says:

"The card has created a great deal of talk, and some additional interesting publications are expected. Bishop McTyeire is one of the most prominent divines in the Methodist Church Court Methodist Church South, and stands very high in the estimation of the public, who are loth to believe that the University has suffered under his management."

If the Bishop does not come out with flying colors it will be the first time in his life.

Mosting of the Association at Smith ville-President Baniel's Address-Election of Officers, &c.

The Press Association of Morth Carolina assembled in the pavillion of the Hotel Brunswick, at Smithville, Wednesday, June 17th. The roll was called by the Secretary, and on motion of Mr. Bryan, of the Hickory Press, the names of those papers that had discontinued were erased from the list.

Representatives of the following papers were present and asked permission to join the Association :- Tar River Talker, Newberne Journal, Wilson Mirror, Cleveland New Era, and Twin City Daily. The President of the Association then delivered his Annual Address. We regret that time and space will not permit the publication of this admirable production. In the course of his remarks he drew a contrast between the papers of to day and twent-yfive years ago. He referred to the day when the Raleigh Standard and Payetteville Observer supplied the reading matter for all sections of the State; now, there are 130 papers in the State. He discussed many practical topics for the consideration of the members of the Association. Among them was the the practice of drumming, which, seems, all editors have to engage in He submitted, that inasmuch as some periods of time have been termed "the Golden Age," "the Iron Age, and "the Era of Good Feeling," this ought by all means to be called "the Age of Indiscriminate Puffery." He thought editors ought to be so truthful that their utterances could be always relied upon with safety. His descriptions ought to be true to life; his criticisms ought to be honest and manly. Nothing will sooner destroy the influence of a paper than for its readers to know that the editor is indiscriminate in his praise. insincere in his commendations, and unreliable in his statements. The editors were urged to discontinue the practice of puffing unworthy men and unworthy objects. The editorial department ought to be the most attractive part of a paper, and the Presi dent advised editors to prepare their editorials carefully and thoughtfully. The habit of publishing sensational articles in the family newspaper was condemned. He held that no editor of a country weekly had the right to outrage the public sense of decency and propriety by publishing all the sickening details of a crime. The President showed how, through the exertions of the Association laws had been passed requiring the publication of official and legal notices which pay some editors as much as $300 a year. He pointed out five other such bills which ought to be passed. He showed how the people, as well as the editors, were benefitted by these laws requiring the widest publicity to be given to these laws and notices. He next discussed journalism as a profession, and showed why so few men of talent and education in North Carolina had adopted Journalism as a profession; predicted that with the spread of education the time would come when all the people would read and take papers and then that the profession of journalism would step to the front rank; then will the best educated and most talented young men go out from our colleges into the editorial sanctum. He predicted that the day would come when editors would be required to serve an apprenticeship and pass an approved examination before the State would allow them to edit or publish a newspaper. He argued that it was as essential that editors should be examined and licensed by the State as that lawyers and doctors should be thus examined. This

By the way, the Rev. Edward pretends to a knowledge of physic, and claims that he can take care of the bodily ailments of his friends and admirers with as much facility as he can minister to their spiritual health. No one will dare to doubt that he is equally proficient in either profession.

Base Ball Reporting. Our friend Wade Harriss, of the Charotte Observer, evidently speaking from experience, has this to say of base ball reporting; "A local reporter may grossly nisrepresent a sermon and be forgiven. He can have the wrong man arraigned before the mayor and the injury will soon be orgetten. In reporting the state of the cotton trade he can make a mustake of a few thousand dollars and the world will still move. He can even afford to tell the truth sometimes and not make anybody mad, but if he wants to raise an echo from 'sheol.' all he has to do is to give a re-down the rough edges." The Crops in South Carolina. A letter to one of our merchants says the crops of cotton, corn, potatoes and field peas in the Mullins section in South Caroina are about an average, notwithstanding the heavy rains. The oat erop is poor. The correspondent suggests as a good motto for farmers : "Live within your means." It is not only an excellent motto for farmers, but it would be equally applicable in all the callings, trades and professions of ife. Colored Boat Bace. Upwards of four hundred colored people from this city witnessed the rowing race on Lake Waccamaw, Wednesday, between the colored boat clubs, "North Pole" and 'Neptune's Sea Blues.". The course was one half mile against time. The "North Poles" made it in 11 minutes and 20 seconds, and the "Neptune's Sea Blues" in 5 minutes and 17 seconds, the latter receiving the prize a "union lack." The race in the river has been postponed until Monday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

The Rain and Crops, ed. le branding We learn that the heavy and continuous rain of Wednesday hight was general all the way from Charleston to this city, and probably it was so for a good distance in the interior. Maj. James Reilly, who was in the city yesterday, says it did considerable damage to the corn and cotton crops in his section. The cotton has a very good stand, but so much rain interferes materially with the proper working of it.

E moBASE BALLIO 9.1 Palmetto 2-Sentide 3. There was a large attendance at the Ber side grounds yesterday to witness the play ing between the Marion, S. C., nine and the home team. The game was closely contested, and the winning club won by only one run. The Sessides led off with one run on the first inning, and then were balked for three innings in succession. On the fifth inning Waddell knocked a ball to left field which struck the foot of the fielder and bounded to his side. He failed to see the direction in which the ball went. and before he recovered it Waddell had crossed the home plate, bringing in Bacon, who was on first base when the ball was struck It so turned out that these two runs, which were unearned and unexpected, gave the Sesside the victory. The Palmetto never scored until the ninth inning, when a wild throw by Waddell to third sent the man on that bag home, and mortly afterwards Koockogey had a passed ball, which brought another in.

The Palmettos claim that the game was lost more through their bad playing than by any good playing by their opponents, and there is ground for such belief.

Sellers at first played well, and DuBois at short caught two hard liners and made one pretty double play. Davis pitched

There will be this afternoon another game, and if yesterday's playing is any indication of the relative strength of the nines, close, hard work may be expected. The Marion boys are determined to have no "slips" this time, and if they do not go back home to-night victorious, the Seasides will have to play better than yesterday. Let them have a good audience to day. Below we give the score: SEASIDE.

OPERA HOUSE. "The Two Orphans." The French melodrama "The Two Orphans" was played last night at the Opera House by the Standard Dramatic Company, most acceptably, the audience rendering its tribute of praise in no unstinted manner. All the parts were well sustained, Miss Alice Irving filling the leading role as Henrietta. Miss Nellie Claire and Mrs. McEireth played dual parts, and played them well. The duel between the Chevalier, (Mr. Caulfield), and the Marquis De Pressels, (Mr. Harcourt), was an exciting scene and greatly pleased the audience.

To night the play of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" will be given. The Company have won a high place in popular favor here, and will doubtless have good houses as long as they remain.

Death of a Walf.

On the night of the 20th of May last a foundling in the shape of a male infant, about six weeks old, was left on the piazza of a colored woman named Rena Jane Freeman, living in Sampson's alley, She adopted the waif, had it bound to her by the Superior Court Clerk and christened it John Logan Freeman, after "Black Jack" of Illinois. It was an evil genius that suggested such a name, for Wednesday the poor little foundling died and was buried.

A DOWN TOWN MERCHANT, having passed several sleepless nights, disturbed by the agonies and cries of a suffering child, and becoming convinced that Mrs. Winslow's Scottling Syrup was just the article needed, procured a supply for the child. On reaching home and sequainting his wife with what he had done, she refused to have it administered to the child, as the was strongly in favor of Homeopathy. That night the child passed in suffering, and the parents without sleep. Returning home the day following, the father found the baby still suffering; and while contemplating another sleepless night, the mother stepped from the room to attend to some domestic duties and left the father with the child. During her absence he administered a portion of the Soothing and left the father with the child. During her absence he administered a portion of the Soothing Syrup to the baby, and said nothing. That night all hands sleet well, and the little fellow awoke in the morning bright and happy! The mother was delighted with the wenderful change, and although at first offended at the deception practiced upon her, has continued to use the Syrup, and suffering crying babies and restless nights have disappeared. A single trial of the Syrup never yet failed to relieve the baby, and overcome the prejudices of the mether. Sold by all Druggists. 25 cents a bottle.
