WILLIAM H. BERNARD, WILMINGTON, N. C. THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 18, 1885.

THE EDITORIAL PROFESSION.

In the estimation of some people education is an actual drawback. In another place we copy a part of an editorial from the Raleigh Register, in which the right view is taken of college-bred men in newspaper offices.

Our Raleigh friend is correct. The college-bred fool in a printing office would be a fool anywhere. Said Solomon, the wise man: "Though thou shouldst bray a fool in a mortar among wheat with a pestle, yet will not the foolishness depart from him."

But education helps wonderfully in editing as well as in journalism. A good library is an essential, and you must know what is in it. There is no newspaper man in the State who is better qualified to form and express an opinion as to the value of a liberal education in a printing office than the able and scholarly editor of the Register.

along. The preacher, too, may take his text, and if he sticks to it, do well. But not a day passes that an editor is not called upon to form and express an opinion in relation to law, morals, medicine, and politics.

CONCERNING FINE TOBACCO.

We copy elsewhere from a communication in the Shelby New Era, by Mr. Thomas Dixon, a member of the last Legislature, who has been visiting Granville county. Mr. Dixon rests under a misapprehension, as does the farmer he interrogated. The soil of Cleveland is not the "same" with that of Granville. The Granville farmer is not well informed in what he said. The soil is not the same—the formation is not the same—nor is it the "same land" as is supposed.

A manufacturer of this city, who is from Granville, and who worked tobacco for more than twenty years in that county, informs us that in a section of Granville lying rather south of Oxford and east of the Hillsboro road the finest tobacco he ever saw is made.

A PRAGMATIC.

We hope Mr. Gladstone will not condescend to go into the House of Lords. As the greatest English statesman, financier and orator, and one of the most admirable scholars and authors of the public men of his country he is greater than any peer in the land.

Under "Our State Contemporaries" the reader will find an extract from the Bookingsham Booklet. It is absolutely necessary that a magistrate should command respect. No magistrate can afford to be treated with contempt.

disreputable conduct. The late Judge Caldwell or Judge Manly would have sent the offenders to jail so quickly as to make their heads whirl.

AN "OFFENSIVE" PARTISAN.

Postmaster Slingerland, of Slingerland's, N. Y., has tendered his resignation to the Postmaster General in the following language: "Entertaining as I do the conviction that 'to the victors belong the spoils,' and admitting that I am an 'offensive' (i. e. Republican) partisan, I hereby resign the position of Postmaster, to take effect when my successor is appointed and qualified. Permit me to add that while I would not as a partisan presume to make any recommendation whatever as to who such successor should be, but as a citizen I beg leave to say that Mr. — is a 'defensive' (i. e. Democratic) partisan, and his appointment as Postmaster would please all the patrons of Uncle Samuel in this vicinity, whether they are 'offensive' Republicans or 'defensive' Democrats."
