The Morning Star

By WILLIAM H. BERNARD. WILMINGTON, N. C.

MONDAY EVENING, SEPT. 21, 1885.

EVENING EDITION TRUE MANLINESS VERSUS SELF

The STAR is not unfriendly to the North. It merely pays in kind

When Northern papers and demagogues for mean party purposes malign the South and exaggerate its foibles and faults and shortcomings we like to give them a full Roland for their Oliver. For the people of the North who are fair and generous and kindly we have naught but good wishes and kind words.

The STAR is not of that class of papers that believe that "the King can do no wrong." It knows that all parties make mistakes and the way to correct them and avoid them in the future is to point them out-show them up. It knows that party leaders are often blind leaders of the blind. Hence, it proposes to look and judge for itself. It is a positive puzzle to understand how self-respecting, pure, intelligent men can blindly follow political guides who are very strong for "the old flag and an appropriation."

The STAR is a staunch advocate of those principles that are fundamental and upon which the safety, perpetuity and prosperity of the country absolutely depend. It is for economy in the administration of the Government, State and National, and is for the people. This is a democracy where the people rule, and when they are not ignored it is generally well for the country. Taxes ought to be so levied as to relieve and not full harmony and in full loyalty. oppress the people as far as it is possible to do so.

The STAR, in common with the people of the South who fought the battles, long ago in the utmost good faith accepted the issues of the war. The sword was appealed to and the sword decided. It wants no more war but peace. It desires to see harmony prevailing between the sections. It says this and means it. This is one thing, but flapdoodle and sycophancy and gush are altogether different things. It takes no part and makes no investment in that sort of disgusting twaddle that abuses the South, prostitutes it before the conquering North, and has nothing but it favor with the victors.

Now this little vein of reflection has been suggested by the tone of the speech of Gen. Lawton, of Savannah, delivered at the laying of the corner-stone of the new State capitol of Georgia. Gen. Lawton is a scholar, a gentleman, and was a Confederate soldier. He is a lawyer of exceptional ability and learning, and is as manly and upright as he is intellectual and cultured. He is not one of your latter day crawlers and sycophants, Said he at Atlanta in the resence of a great crowd number-ng many thousands.

Better that a people groaning under conspicuous wrongs should fight and be vanquished than not fight at all."

Paste that in your hats and show it to the flapdoodlers. This noble, just, manly utterance moves the chivalrous and gifted poet-editor of the Norfolk Landmark - James Barron Hope-to say:

"This is a noble utterance, and embodies the very essence of that true philosophy which teaches that there is something more in life than mere utility; that honor and self-respect are above all price. The South-ern people have escaped degradation. They command the respect of all men and the affectionate regard of many of their former enemies; and this because the masses of our people were brave enough, and strong enough, and self-sacrificing enough to live up to the standard of the gallant Georgian.

Gen. Lawton could thus give emphasis to a great truth and yet declare that the people of the South were loval and true to every promise and pledge. He said:

"We are ready and willing to render service to defend her honor, to fight her battles, to give every man of every section his just due. In that sense we know no North, no South, no East, no West. But, thank Heaven, the time is past when any right-thinking man of the North expects that we shall not love our own families and neighbors better than the stranger; our own city better than another; our own State best of all the thirty-eight; that in a government covering such an area, with so many States and Territories, so different in climate, productions, origin and other beginnings, there must not also be material differences in habits, temperament, opinions and utter-ances, not only to be tolerated but appre-

Now in contrast with such manly atterances as these turn to the oration of another Georgian, an honored and distinguished son of a State never barren of men of parts. Gen. Henry R. Jackson, Minister to Mexico, pronounced an eulogy on Grant that was quite remarkable in some respects. It was delivered in the City of the Montezumas, and aside from its overflowing "gush" it contained a statement to which our attention has been called by a highly cultured and gifted friend. Gen. Jackson has discovered (and he richly deserves : medal of some kind) that when Gen. Grant refused an exchange of prisoners, he merely meant a signification of his desire that he preferred "feeding the poor Confederates to fighting them," and that such a course on Grant's part was a Christ-like manifestation of charity!! Was there ever before such unmitigated bosh? As our friend says: "Ask some of the survivors of Yankee prisons how they were fed?" All over the South there are brave men who "could a tale unfold" of suffering and privation and almost starvation. On many a Northern prison might have been written-"Blessed is the halfstarved Confederate who expecteth little, for he shall not be disap-

The Southern people have borne themselves with a fortitude, dignity and firmness that are above al praise. The best people in the North have admired the calmness, bravery and resolved will with which the South acted under the humiliations of defeat, of disappointed hopes, of great loss of property, of disorganized society, of real and threatened dangers, of a tremendous upheaval of cherished institutions and the dominancy of former slaves, of the "oppressors' wrongs" and "proud men's contumely," of robberies, burdens, privations, heart-aches, defeats, slanders, abuses and falsehoods. These things have been, and the people of the South went through them all heroically, grandly, with a hardy fortitude that was superior to every ca-

They are in the main the very same Southern people. They are in The Union of States is their Union. The Constitution of the fathers is their Constitution. The flag of the country is their flag. But there is no occasion for getting down in the dust and crawling on the belly and covering the head with ashes and crying unclean. Let the true manliness of our people assert itself and let all mean flattery and degrading pandering be frowned upon. The South could well apply to itself the fine sentiment of Sir William Napier. In his splendid history of the Peninsular War, in describing the death of his own commander, Sir John Moore, and which called forth the immortal lines of Wolfe, Sir William said: "He saw the expiring hopes of triumph disappear, but the austerer glory of suffering remain, and with a firm heart he accepted that gift of severe fate."

THE GLADSTONE MANIFESTO.

The manifesto of Mr. Gladstone will be variously interpreted. We venture to predict that the Tory papers in the United States (for there are such) will take a view much as set forth by Mr. Gladstone much better than the Tory cohoes in this country understand them. The Times does not regard the manifesto as revolutionary, or even startling, but thinks it will satisfy the Moderates in his party and at the same time it will not discourage the Radicals under Chamberlain. Altogether is seems to be an artful and conserv ative document as drawn by the great political Reformer. It is not to be denied that the points presented by Mr. Gladstone would have been a great shock it given out about 1830, or indeed, later. But the world has moved and England with it. There has been steady progress, thanks to such statesmen as Gladstone and Bright and others, and to-day propositions that would have seemed little less than revolutionary even a quarter of a century ago are read without dismay by the great organ of Torvism in Great Britain. It is announced that Mr. Gladstone will make at least one speech to his Midlothian constituents when we will have more of his policy in detail.

The females outnumber the males in many of the States. The advice given now is to go West, young wo man. In the District of Columbia there are 112,524 females to 100,000 males; Rhode Island, 106,870 females to 100,000 males; Massachusetts, 107,712 females to 100,000 males. These figures are evidently not reliable, or how could there be just 100, 000 males in two States and the District? In Connecticut, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and Alabama the females are in excess of the males, but only two or three per cent. In Maryland, Georgia, New Jersey, Louisiana, Tennessee, Maine and Pennsylvania the males are slightly in the ascendant. In all of the other States the males exceed the females by about five per cent. on an

John Sherman is trying to make it appear that the South is solid and that the electoral vote in the South is given to the Democracy by suppressing the negro vote. To show how the Republicans gained in the States that composed the late Confederacy we give the vote: Garfield, in 1880, received 895,188; Blaine, in 1884, received 1,044,532 - an increase of 148, 744 votes in four years.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- We do know that quite number of the leading whiskey dealers in Kentucky are Protectionists. We do know also that Mr. Randall and his followers advocate the repeal of the whiskey tax in order that they may force the retention of high duties on the necessities of life. To whatever he and they can make by ascribing our opposition to free whiskey and taxed woollens to an interest in the whiskey trade they are welcome. But we submit that gentlemen who claim to be the apostles of all that is practical in business and beneficent in political economy might better employ their time with arguments and facts bearing directly upon the question at issue than by seeking to escape the logic of the situation under cover of an imaginary whiskey ring, which has never had any defined existence beyond its name. The Internal Revenue duties will stand, because they are a tax on luxuries, and relieve the people of just that amount of taxes on necessities. - Louisville Courier-Journal,

--- The great majority of those who rob their employers are simply weak. They contract habits that require more money than they earn. They first borrow and then steal to pay their loans. Having started on the downward course their progress towards ruin increases until their crime is discovered. Many a disgraced and ruined young man dates the beginning of his downward career from his first cigarette, or his first bottle of wine. As a boy he thought it manly to smoke and drink. He probably took buggy rides when he didn't know where the money to pay the expense was to come from. It is not improbable that there are boys in this city who owe for cigar-ettes, cigars and wine. Boys, and even young men, who go in debt for such things, are in danger. It is an evidence that they arel iving beyond their means. The boys who pride themselves on being able to ape the vices of their elders do not as a rule acceed in life. They are practically wrecked before they reach maturity. They fall along the way and are quickly forgotten. - Savannah News.

DEVELOPMENT OF GIBSON'S STATION.

Star Correspondence. Here we have the neatest and most interesting little town in the South, taking its age, etc., into consideration. Fifteen months ago we had only one store here and two or three five very neat and well appointed stores, (all of which are two stories high and varying from forty or fifty to one hundred feet in length and proportioned according), may be seen now, standing mostly on last years vacancy. We also have a good hotel and a parsonage, belonging to the M. E. Church, South, which is considered the best in the county, and prospects of having in the near future, a church corresponding, in every respect, with its dignity. Mr. F. B. Gibson proposes to give a lot, worth $200 and $500 in cash, or $1,000 if necessary, to complete the same. We already have a neat Baptist Church and a good school in the place. A great many other enterprises and curiosities might be mentioned if space permitted. Among the curiorities is a young man who is said to be working, actually work ing himself to death! Another is a lady who has never, no never been in love! And still another is a man who goes to church regularly and pays all his church dues without grumbling. And added to all this we have a depot agent and a doctor who neither swears nor drinks whiskey. Yes, and alas! we may add to this list our worthy conductor on the

Gibson branch of the R. & A. R. R. Cotton crops are short this year notwithstanding this is one of the very best farming sections in the entire State. We hear no complaint of corn and other crops.

Our cotton market is unsurpassed in this portion of the country, not withstanding the boasts of Bennettsville, S. C., one of our sister markets. If Bennettsville is such a prominent cotton market why is it that some of her near citizens bring cotton to this market? This is another item Mr. Bennettsville can "put in his pipe and smoke it" at leisure. We do not condemn our contemporary market, still we know it does not predominate.

MR. GLADSTONE'S MANI FESTO.

Marvellous Effect of the Great Liberal Oracle's Utterances.

Associated Press Special Cable Letter. London, Sept. 19 .- Mr. Gladstone's manifesto, the most Delphic utterance he ever made, has proven the most successful pamphleteering of his life. The document was secretly issued to his political collast Monday. Its first per ceptible effect was the palpable approachement between Messrs. Chamberlain, Hartington and Harcourt, the three most powerful leaders next to the ex-Premier himself in the Liberal party. All three are ambitious men and they had been pulling apart. Each was taking a large following along. The Radicals were going with Chamberlain. Whigs with Hartington, and Harcourt was endeavoring to hold the Moderates together. The Liberal party was being rent to pieces. The manifesto put a stop to the ripping and the diverging triumvirate at once set to work to replace the stitches and with each effort came closer together. To-day, a week only having elapsed, the Liberal party in Great Britain is a solid unit. Chamberlain, Harcourt and Hartington have each indicated complete submission to Mr. Gladstone and have become opportunists. There are two explanations of these remarkable submissions. No one doubts that if these three leaders had been permitted to persevere in the courses they had mapped out for themselves the Liberal party would have been dismembered. Circumstances have demonstrated that the party will at present accept no leader but him, and that without him restoration to power is impossible.

It is everywhere apparent that the ex-Premier's effort has secured a marvellous and instantaneous restoration of unity in the Liberal party and given it fighting trim. It is thoroughly revivified. Perhaps the most remarkable proof of the power of the manifesto is that afforded by the bourses, which deal specially in Egyptian, Turkish and Russian securities. In these markets Egyptian stocks fell 13 points, and Turkish and Russian securities fell a of a point almost immediately after the publication of the tenor of the document. The speculators whose sales brought about these declines explain that the situation created by the manifesto is one of a probable return of Gladstone to office, which, they say, means a British evacution of Egypt and an uncertain foreign policy on the part of England. This extraordinary taking time by the forelock would appear to establish the fact that Mr. Gladstone is the most powerful man out of power in the world.

ROME, Sept. 21 .- Reports from Palermo to-day, regarding the progress of the cholers, show that a distressing state of affairs is prevailing there. Thirty thousand persons have fled from the city. All of the shops are closed and the streets are almost deserted. There is a great scarcity of food and water, and the epidemic is increasing with frightful rapidity. The sanitary offi-cials are attacked by the people every time they attempt to disinfect the houses where the disease prevails, and are met with great difficulty in carrying on their work.

MADRID, Sept. 21. - Disastrous rains have prevailed during the past twenty-four hours in the southeastern part of Spain. The rain came down in torrents, and soon the rivers overflowed their banks, causing much destruction of property and the loss of many lives. The Segura river and the Lorca canal, which run by Cartagena, rose rapidly until the water was seven feet deep around the walls of the city. Houses, trees and dead animals are being carried out to sea by the raging flood, stretches for a mile around the city.

forth and South Join Hands Around the Graves of the Fallen Heroes at Winchester, Va.-Touching and Affecting Scenes.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. WINCHESTER, VA., September 20.-The dedication services at the marble shaft presented by Col. Herbert Hill, of Boston, and erected on the battlefield of the 19th of September, were largely attended Saturday morning, Lieut. Governor Ormsbee, of ermont, delivering the oration. The vete rans were escorted into the city in the afternoon to a banquet provided by the citizens. A speech of welcome by Mayor Williams was responded to Col. Carroll D. Wright. After the banquet Justice Harlan, of the Supreme Court, Col. Thomas Jones, of Alabama, and Gen. Thomas, of Vermont, made speeches. Much enthusiasm was evinced, and many patriotic sentiments were expressed by the orators. The band performed "Hail Columbia" and "Dixte," the veterans rising to their feet and loudly cheering.

Last night was New Hampshire night, when the same scenes were re-enacted with a great crowd in attendance, estimated at ten thousand people. Stirring speeches were made by Col. Wright and Judge Harlan. A letter from Gen. Fitzbugh Lee was read, followed by addresses from Mayor Williams and others.

A large assemblage was present at the services in the National and Stonewall Cemeteries this afternoon. The services around the mound to the Confederate dead were touching. The veterans kneeled. A splendid tribute to the dead was delivered by Col. Wright, and a feeling invocation was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Whittemore, of Boston. Jubilee services of song and prayer is

WASHINGTON, September 20.-The conecration of Rev. Jeremiah O'Sullivan, pas tor of St. Peter's Catholic Church, of this city, as Bishop of the Drocese of Mobile Ala., took place at that Church to-day. The ceremony of consecrating a Bishop usually takes place in the Cathedral, but at the urgent request of Father O'Sullivan, the Archbishop consented to perform the ceremony at the Church of the Bishop elect, in the presence of his congregation. Therefore the same ceremony which for more than eighteen hundred years has at interwals been performed in various parts of the world, was to-day performed for the first time in the capital of the nation, in a little unpretentious Church on Capitol Hill.
