"Minister Curry prefaced his remarks upon the subject of international commer-cial relations with the expression of his and his Government's condolence upon the sad hereavement that had fallen upon the Queen in the death of King Alfonso. Queen Chris-tina was deeply affected by the expressions of sympathy. Recovering from her emo-tion she declared her thanks for the expres-sions of kindness by the United States Min-ister."

Cluverius is in poor health it is aid. It is probably temporary. His devoted aunt has paid him a visit of several weeks. A Richmond letter in the Baltimore American says:

"Before leaving, she remarked to a friend that she did not expect to come to the city again; that she had done all she could for her nephew, and had reached her end-conveying the impression that she had spent all she had for his defence. The arting between Mrs. Tuntstall and Cluverius was very affecting."

She lives in King and Queen county.

All sorts of suggestions are made as to the moving principle of Mr. Gladstone in dealing with the Irish question. The latest is the following which comes from London:

- The law makes November 30th the close of the school flacal year, and re-quires the county treasurers to make imme-diate report to the State Superintendent of receipts and disbursements of school funds. The penalty for delay in not complying with this requirement is severe, and ought to be, because it involves delay in the Su-perintendent's report. It is now the 22nd of December, and sixteen treasurers have not reported. Why this delay I do not know, but it is to be hoped that this com-plaint will not only cause the delinquent treasurers to forward their reports at once, but will prevent delay in the future. - S. M. truction - Winston Daily: Seventeen convicts escaped from the stockade at Dalton Sunday night. It was planned for all to escape. They had axes hid for the pur-pose, and when they knew there were only two guards on duty, one at each entrance, they rushed to one entrance, which attracted both guards to this one, and immediately the convicts rushed to the other entrance, and before the guard could interfere with an axe he had picked up, seven. teen of the convicts made their escape by chopping through the door. They were fired at, but no one was hit. its noble citizen and conscientious jurist, Judge'Mckoy, passed away in peace, and now his youthful succes sor on the bench, Judge Boykin, is sorely bereaved in the death of his noble Christian wife. Mrs. Boykin was a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church and was in her 30th year. Her husband was holding his second court, and at his home when the great loss fell upon him. Many will sympathize with him in the acute sorrow that fills his soul.

When a boy we read "Festus." that everybody read, and thought it strange and wonderful, Our old revered school-master, James M. Lovejoy, who was something of a poet, was in raptures and would read it to us at recess. It had a great run and was greatly praised. It is strange that it is almost out of print. We have tried in vain for two or three years to buy a copy. Some enterprising publisher ought to put it on his list and get out a neat $1,25 copy. It would sell for much if it is poetry. We are reminded of this famous book by the following paragraph clipped from a Northern exchange:

"Philip James Bailey, whose poem of "Festus' made quite a stir in the literary world a generation ago, and which had an enormous sale in the United States, is still living at Nottingham, England, the place of his birth, in his 69th year. He sucks sweet solace from the thought that 'Festus' s immortal."

North Carolina road, resulting in the death one engineer and two firemen, and the probable fatal injury of another engineer. The accident was apparentdue to the carelessness of the conductor and engineer in charge of one of the trains in not strictly following out train orders. An official of the Western North Caroling Railroad Company gives us the following particulars of the collision; Two freight trains, Nos. 5 and 6, collided four miles east of Old Fort at 2:45 o'clock a. m. The cause of the accident was a miscalculation of time on the part of conductor Drake and engineer Perkins of train No. 6. Marion was the regular meeting point of these two trains, and conductor Trott and engineer Jack Edwards, running No. 5, arrived at Marion on time, and after waiting their delayed time for No. 6, proceeded on their rights, and when within four miles of Old Fort they met No. 6. Conductor Drake's watch had stopped and was wrong; but engineer Perkins had compared his watch a few minutes before leaving Old Fort and he and his fireman both had standard time. Engineer Perkins and his fireman, Jim O'Neal, were killed on their engine, and fireman Asheley McIntosh jumped and was killed by spinal concussion. Engineer Edwards was slightly hurt. The engines and five cars were damaged but not seriously. THE CITY

Mr. George C. Miln will begin his engagement at the Opera House in Wilmington with a matinee performance this afternoon, appearing in "The Fool's Revenge." Mr. Miln closed his engagement at the Academy of Music in Charleston with this piece, and the News and Courier of that city says of the performance:

"The audience was small, but the performance was all that could have been desired. Mr. Miln was equal to all the exacting demands made upon Bertuccio, the leading character in the play, in the forcible interpretation of which he found ample opportunity for the display of the highest order of dramatic talent. Miss Adele Payn appeared to excellent advantage as Francesca Bentivoglio, the 'Fool's' daughter. The rest of the support performed their parts creditably.
