Mr. Council S. Wooster, of La Grange, an alumnus of Wake Forest College of the class of 1861, has just delivered a lecture before that flourishing institution upon the nature and theory of the Government of the United States. Such a lecture was never more needed. It is a pity he could not deliver it to the politicians generally. An account in the Raleigh News-Observer says:

"The body of the lecture dealt largely with the question of State's rights; not in the spirit, however, of the advocate, but of the judge who examines with impartiality and presicion all the evidence in hand. The argument was full, close and unassail-able, and the upshot of it was that our government is not national, but federal—a compact of sovereign States. * * He concluded with observations on the evident tendency towards the national idea, and affirmed the conviction that unless it was checked it could only end in an absolute despotism."

Here is Senator Vance's own explanation of the charge in certain hostile papers that he has sixteen of his family quartered upon the public service: "There are but four of us who hold such positions except my-

"Of all the many musical entertainments of merit that have been given in our city since the opening of the Messenger Opera House that of the Boston Star Concert Company, on Friday night and yesterday afternoon, was the finest. We doubt if Miss Kellogg, at her zenith, ever sang bet-ter than does the young and gifted soprano, Mrs. Medora Henson Emerson, who, like Miss Kellogg, is of Southern birth, being a native of Virginia. Certainly did the en-tertainment of the above company so far eclipse that of Kellogg's in this city that comparison is out of the question. The cornet solos of Mr. Walter Emerson, ren-dered with such ease and grace that not an dered with such ease and grace that not an effort was apparent, were a revelation in cornet playing to the audience. As to Mrs. Nella Brown Pond, the accomplished reader voice, we feel utterly unable to do her jus-tice. As she reads the varying emotions called out by her subject flit across her ex-pressive features and enchain the attention of the audience as by magic, and the clear-$25. ness and purity of her enunciation give an in-describable charm to her efforts. She unites in her reading such dramatic strength, sympathetic feeling and rare intelligence that it is easy to understand why she so thorough-ly gained the unbounded admiration of the appreciative audience and, like others of the excellent company, received so many encores. Nor can we close this imperfect report without adding our most cordially given testimony to the ability of Mr. Chas. F. Durnee as a planist, than whom no one in his specialty has ever so pleased an audience here. "The Last Rose of Summer," by Mrs. Emerson, accompanied by her husband on the cornet and playing her own plano accompaniment, was indeed the richest musical treat that we have ever experienced."

How Did They Come There?

Mr. Henry Bacon, U. S. engineer, in his report of dredging operations in the river below Wilmington, mentions the removal of 261 stumps of trees from Lilliput, Logs and Big Island Shoals. They were unexpectedly easy to extract, being mostly pine stumps, with few roots, in place of cypress

J. R. R., in his letter from Wash ington to the Augusta Chronicle, 88V8:

"Republican Congressmen and reporters say their side lost ground during the last three days, and they are sick of the medicine given them by Wilson, Norwood and Breckenridge. Conservative Republicans are trying to reform their lines and curb the fiery untamed orators."

Of the last debate in the House of a sectional character J. R. R. writes to the Augusta Chronicle:

"Henderson revived sufficiently to day to break the force somewhat of Norwood's attack and make a plea for sympathy at the Northwest. He alluded to his assailast as a buffoon, but did not press the point. Col. Hammond got a sharp lick, and Cabell, who made an intemperate speech, received a nasty blow. The Scotch man is a game fellow. He was scotched, but not killed.

Representative Norwood of Georgia, who made a speech in the House a few days ago that gave him marked reputation, is not a new man, as some of the papers say. He has been in the House before and, as Senator, made some of the most striking speeches at that times. Ben Hill, Alex Stephens and Bob Toombs are dead, but Georgia has still several able men and strong debaters left.
